Charleston campus expands, Adds Bachelor's program

by Carol Rizkallah
News Editor

One of Johnson & Wales University's branch campuses, the Charleston location, is expanding its program to offer three Bachelor of Science degrees. The campus, established in 1984, initially offered only an Associate's degree in Culinary Arts. In 1990, the school added Baking and Pastry Arts, Hotel Restaurant Management, Food and Beverage Management and Restaurant Institutional Management to its list of majors. Now, in 1992, a student will have the option of continuing his/her education to four years with a Food Service Management, Hospitality Management or Hotel Restaurant Institutional Management Bachelor program.

The campus, with its population of 570 students, is located in the Business & Technology building, a five-story brick building. The facilities include all administrative offices as well as several demonstration/production kitchens, a bake shop, dining room, storeroom, mixology lab and culinary and hospitality resource center. Residents of the university live in nearby apartment complex, Ashley Hall Gardens.

Paul Conco, Dean of Academic and Administrative Affairs, commented "We have plans for a lot more growth. We are in a great location for a four year education. We will develop and grow with the addition of more computers, faculty and faculty offices. We will soon probably need to look into adding more buildings. The students are already growing out of the resident halls."

Stanley Marcus speaks to retailing students of the importance about good service.

described how many people who enter business only think of profit.

"This is the wrong thing to think about when going into business, you should be thinking about the services you are giving the customer and in the end you will get the result you want — profit," said Marcus.

Council organizes war effort

by Chris Cameron

Do you know these people: Dan Hogan, Matthew Gartley, Greg Martinez, Brian Park, David Fluette, Thomas Scavino, Stephen Lipa, Gary Cockerham, Jonathon Krause, Mark Hamil or Jerry Person? These 11 students are now stationed in Saudi Arabia. To show them we have not forgotten their sacrifice and to show our support, the Greek Letter Council (GLC) will be sending "care packages".

The project began in December when various businesses were asked to contribute items for the boxes. So far, the Providence Journal-Bulletin and Eagle Snacks have donated and the GLC is working to solicit condiments like Tabasco sauce and mustard, Q-tips for personal hygiene, magazines and other useful or practical items.

Contributions are being accepted until February 15 and can be sent to: Liz Covino, Dean of Student Life, 6th floor PAR building or James Flanagan, TKE House, 129 Michigan Avenue. Letters can be directly mailed to any of the students in care of: Marc Hamil, 6th MTBn USMC, FPO San Francisco, CA 96608-9501 or Stephen Lipa, MEF C Company, 8th MTBn USMC, FPO New York, NY, 09502-0285.

Unfortunately, some problems are arising. As of now, all packages over ten ounces are not being mailed to the Gulf and mail is backing up quite a bit. Of those that are making it through, many are being searched and censored for security purposes.

Many people wear the yellow ribbons to back our troops, but they also need something sent to them occasionally that reminds them we still care about them and want to see them back home as soon as possible.

RISD to end Culinary Program All students invited to attend J&W

The Rhode Island School of Design (RISD) announced on Friday that at the conclusion of this academic year they will be terminating their Culinary Arts Apprenticeship Program.

"We are very proud of our Culinary Arts program but as we engage in the long-range planning process with limited resources, we must acknowledge that this highly specialized program, falls beyond the real mission of RISD," said Thomas F. Schutte, RISD President.

Students completing their first year of studies may enroll here and J&W will provide special advising for them. Schutte praised J&W and our willingness to incorporate RISD students into our program.

CARE Committee meets again

by Edmund Brylcyk
News Writer

On January 16, the third CARE Committee meeting of the year was held at the Airport Center Hotel. The meeting, chaired by Thomas Farrel, Chairman of the Humanities Department, was opened by Paula Keogh, Assistant to the President, who read a fax from the Kyoto Institute of Technology explaining a delay in the plans to open the new branch campuses in Japan.

The meeting then turned to old business and started with the discussion of communication on campus. Dr. Steve Calabro, Dean of Academic Administration, demonstrated a system that would place televisions all over campus and be hooked up to a central computer that would broadcast messages all day. This would allow the information to change at any point in the day, provide daily or hourly bus schedules, teacher absences, postponement of classes and even the broadcast of hourly CNN updates.

The next topic was the proposal to alleviate the locker problem at Xavier. Sandra Shean, Director of Auxiliary Services, is currently researching a "coat check" system. There would be cubicles with an attendant and when items are

BSU informs university community

by Sir Ravon Chapman

On January 15 the Black Student Union held a forum on physical and sexual abuse. The first part of the lecture dealt with physical abuse and a panel was present to answer questions.

Physical Abuse Facts:

- 1) In 1990 Approximately 2000 women were killed by an angry husband or boyfriend.
- 2) Every 15 seconds a woman is physically abused.
- 3) 50% of all women are abused at some point in their lives.
- 4) Approximately 3-4 million women are abused each year.
- 5) Domestic violence is the #1 cause of physical injury to women in the U.S.

Signs of an abusive mate are excessive jealousy, isolation from everyone else (family & friends) and an inability to control anger. They have the belief that women are inferior. Some may have been exposed to violence at an early age. They also tend to shun responsibility.

Some questions that were asked of the panel.

Why do women stay? When they're in love you want to believe that it will get better. Financial insecurities and fear of a worse punishment if they leave are also common.

On January 23, The Hospitality Corporate Finance Class of the Graduate School, conducted an informative seminar entitled "The Winning Strategy". The seminar opened with Dr. Yena addressing the students on how important it is to be well educated in the business world and was followed by James Griffin. Griffin is a Johnson & Wales instructor who presented management techniques for new and existing businesses. Griffin was very effective and placed emphasis on securing outside financing. Hulse addressed the students next. Hulse is a local entrepreneur and is the owner of Flag Quarters Inc. He also is an instructor at the Newport Naval War College. He discussed in detail the methods for obtaining financing for businesses. Angela Martel was the last speaker in this seminar. Martel, who is currently a manager for a major hospitality corporation, spoke of the differences and uses of audited and unaudited reports. The seminar was made possible by the special efforts of Professor Raymond Cote and Dr. Louis D'Abrosca, the Dean of Graduate School, with an additional thanks to the following coordinators: Erica Heller, Rich Badgley, James Veldman, Mike Sabitoni, Richard Irving, Peter Cady, Patrick Mansfield and Hasan Ok.

2) One in 12 college men responding to the same survey admitted committing acts that make the legal definition of rape or attempted rape, but only 1% of those respondents saw their behavior as criminal.

3) A 1985 study by the Association of American College Project showed that members of all male groups such as fraternities and athletic teams are involved in a disproportionate number of rapes.

Do women provoke abuse? The panel replied no; a buse is a coward's way out.

What can a woman do to prevent a man from being abusive? Stop the situation in the beginning and let him know that it will not be accepted. If the situation persists, leave.

Director needs cooperation

Dear Editor:

Recently at Hospitality the topic of hall policies or practices, especially those pertaining to fines, has become quiet a controversy. At a recent Residence Hall meeting several students complained and whined to the Residence Director, Thom Andrusko, but no one would offer any suggestions as to how to change when the opportunity was given. I felt that someone had to voice a solid opinion and give realistic suggestions, so I took it upon myself to do so. Many students may not agree with my opinions, but on the other hand, many may but will not say so in front of their peers for fear of being harassed.

In my opinion, Thom handles the residence hall as good as, if not better than many others in his position. He tries to be fair when setting the rules or dealing with disciplinary problems when they arise. Unfortunately by doing so he gets taken advantage of by the students that he is trying to help out. Many do not realize that Thom does not have ultimate power over the Residence Hall, and he must answer to an authority figure also. Many of the policies, especially those dealing with fines, are set by his boss, not Thom. I feel that if Thom were given the respect that he deserved and the rules were followed he would do everything that he could to make life easier for us. Unfortunately, he is not given the respect and the rules are not followed, so why should he put forth the extra effort to help people who will be ungrateful.

Don't get me wrong, I realize not everyone is ungrateful. But it only takes a few bad apples to spoil the whole barrel. Those people don't realize that they are not only hurting others, but themselves as well. In the long run, we will all suffer, even the innocent, if a few select individuals can't grow up and act like mature adults. All that I am asking is that we give Thom a chance to make the hall a better place to live for ALL of us. No more graffiti, fights, alcohol, or drugs! It's basically a simple choice, we can either be mature and enjoy college or be immature and create a prison for us to live in. I know what my choice is, how about you?

More thoughts about the war

Dear Editor:

All of the problems in Saudi Arabia have been on my mind. I have written a poem on my feelings toward the war. I feel that it would be worthy to share with the student body.

What We Did Wrong

We always put each other down
Who's going to be left to talk now
We all stare and make fun of others
When all we fear is each other
If we were all ourselves without facades
Picture the possibilities for this world of ours
Without all of the hatred and poverty
What a society!
The day will come when we will all be one
That's the day peace and love will come

The problems in Saudi Arabia will be a memory
All the boys will be home free
Some will come home some will never
People will realize what a loss can mean
It's a shame people have to be that way
For some the pain will never go away
If we continue fighting each other
There will be no none left to discover
Who wants to be in fear of the rest
It just makes you really depressed
The time will come when we will all be gone
Our children will have to deal with what we did wrong

There is an issue that I would like to address that is causing a lot of discord among the residents of the Harborside Campus. It is the new mail system. In this new system all of the packages and envelopes that are sent anything but regular parcel post are sent to the University mail room, and the students receive a slip telling them to pick up their package. All parcel post items, including standard letters are still delivered to the residence halls.

Most of the packages in question are either insured, overnight or second day air. The problem is that the students are not receiving these express packages on time. The sender of the package has specially paid for this item to arrive within a certain amount of time, and due to a few glitches in the system people are not receiving the service that they have paid for.

I have received two second day air packages this week. One was delivered on time, but I was not notified until the next day. This made me very angry, due to the fact that I needed the package that day, and I knew

Mumm's challenge

by Aaron McLean
Typesetting Staff

Bryant Currie of Wichita, Kansas was the winner of the first annual Champagne Mumm Award for Culinary Excellence.

Currie is a food and beverage major at Johnson & Wales University and the first culinary student to receive this prestigious award which includes a three-week study program in France. Sponsored by Champagen Mumm of Reims, France, the study program consists of a week in Champagne and another week in the Bordeaux region of France. Currie will spend his final week in Lyon, working in the kitchen of the Michelin three-star restaurant owned and operated by the world-famous Paul Bocuse.

Currie was one of five finalists who qualified for the competition by participating in an essay contest at Johnson & Wales University. Each finalist was required to then prepare a four-course meal using ingredients from a mystery basket. The students were given 15 minutes to create their menus and three hours to cook the meals.

Currie's four-course meal consisted of cream of chicken with cucumber soup, flavored with leeks, onions, garlic and celery; a salad of mixed greens with a light mustard dressing; seafood newburg with roasted green beans; and a marinated fruit crepe with a rich vanilla sauce. A senior at Johnson & Wales, Currie plans to earn a master's degree and work as a restaurant consultant.

Dear Editor:

I was recently reading an article in a magazine about how mail to the soldiers in the Persian Gulf helps to boost the morale of not only the soldiers, but their families and loved ones also.

As a citizen, I want our troops to come home safely and soon. As a student here at Johnson and Wales, I pray that the government does not reenact the draft and pull students from colleges and universities across the country. As a member of the United States Army Reserve, I hope that I won't have to report for duty over there.

I think that the University Students, Staff, and Faculty should show support for the troops. I know many people with family, boyfriends, and girlfriends in the gulf. I also know that the letters we send the troops are helping these people to cope with the situation. The addresses to write to follows:

For any Ground Troops, the address is:

Any Service Member
Operation: Desert Storm
APO N.Y. 09848-0006

For any Troops on a Ship, the address is:

Any Service Member
Operation: Desert Storm
FPO N.Y. 09866-0006

If you wish to write to any certain soldier or sailor, instead of "Any Service Member", write his/her name, social security number, and the military unit he/she is in.

Thank You,
Pvt Jason Paulsen

that I had another package coming. The mail room staff was very helpful and at my request, called me to let me know when my package was in. I do thank them for that courtesy, but I still, as do several other students, feel inconvenienced.

The old system allowed the packages to be delivered with the rest of the mail. You could just pick your package up at the front desk as soon as it was delivered, no waiting, no hassle.

I talked to a representative of the mail room and I was told that the reason the new system was instituted was because the packages were either getting misplaced, or stolen from the desk. If this is the case, I can certainly understand the need to make the mail system more secure. I would agree with the new system as a temporary solution. What I would really like to see is the installation of student mail boxes to which they have a key or combination.

Several other Universities have implemented this system, such as Boston University and Wheaton College, and the system has been proven effective.

checked in, students would receive a tag. The group is also looking into having the room staffed by senior citizens from "Dexter Manor."

Discussion then turned to the unsanitary conditions of the bathrooms in many of the residence halls. This problem was introduced by SCR member Chris Wall and addressed by Jeff Cabral, Director of Housekeeping. Cabral feels that "the problem is being properly addressed to ensure a stronger monitoring procedure for common areas." The CARE Committee is also asking that students make a more concerted effort in maintaining cleanliness and that Resident Directors implement a self-policing program.

Sub-committee's addressing the CCE reorganization and the graduate focus group made their final proposals. Paul LaCroix, Assistant Dean of Business, read a list of 19 items in response to earlier discussion, and the graduate group determined that the most important issues for them were placement and special housing.

The next two focus groups that are being addressed are transfer students and O.W.L.S. (Older Wiser LearnerS). Transfer students who would like to add input are encouraged to call Ed Brylczyk at 455-2804 from 1-5pm during the week.

The next CARE Committee meeting will be held on March 13 at the Airport Hotel.

SPORTS

Spring intramurals

by Mike Mineau, Sports Writer

Before we realize it, the 3rd trimester will be upon us. Once again, intramurals, as well as a golf tournament and a mile road race, will be taking place.

Two sports from the second trimester, basketball and co-ed volleyball, will conclude their seasons with playoffs. There are ten basketball teams and eleven volleyball teams vying for their respective championships.

The new sports that will be starting are floor hockey and softball. Floor hockey will be played in the culinary gym. There is a maximum of ten people on a team. The rosters are due on March 4th and the first captain's meeting is March 5th. Softball, last year's biggest sport (44 men's, 15 women's teams) will be played at Triggs field. There is a maximum of 15 players on each team. Teams that would like to join should fill out rosters and return them to the Culinary Gym by 4:30pm on March 3rd.

Griffins back on track

by Mike Mineau and Edmund Brylczyk

After a disappointing loss to Springfield College on January 29th, the Johnson & Wales Griffins got back on the winning track with a 9-5 victory over Bryant College, which is a non-league division one team.

Leading the Griffins attack was Greg Briener who scored three goals and assisted on another. Jeff Greenip had two goals, Chris Plano had a goal and an assist and Tim Hickock had two assists. Rounding out the scoring was Mike Donabedian and Joe Melanson who each scored a goal.

There has been no word on the playoff picture due to the fact that we are on a tri-mester system. The other teams in the league still have several games to play while the Griffins have completed their league schedule. Unfortunately we cannot provide official conformation, but the chances are good that the Griffins will gain a playoff berth. The playoffs will be held at J&W's home ice, Thayer Arena in Warwick, on February 16th and 17th. The next scheduled game is on March 10th against crosstown rival RISD at the Brown Arena.

Basketball playoffs begin

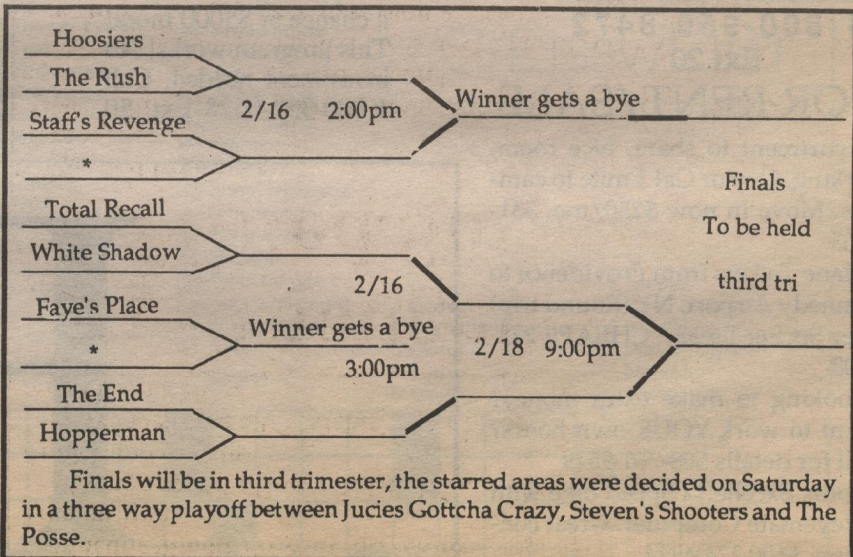

by Sir Ravon Chapman
Sports Editor

The 1990-91 Intramural Basketball season is coming to a climactic end with the last regular season game played last Friday. The playoffs start on Tuesday and the favored teams are Faye's Place, Staff's Revenge, The End and the Hoosiers.

This season has been exciting, with the league expanding to two divisions. League II has been the more dominant division mostly due to the large number of forfeits in League I.

On a sour note, this year was also marred by several unfortunate incidents. On Friday, February 1, fans escalated a general argument on the court into an altercation that should not have happened. I would like to remind everyone that basketball is a contact sport. This is the first year that we have had student officials and they are to be commended for their performance.

Finally I would like to congratulate all the teams that made the playoffs and wish the teams that did not make the playoffs better luck next year.

Thoughts from a Red Sox fanatic

by Edmund Brylczyk
News Writer

According to Mike Barnicle of the Boston Globe, "Baseball is not a life and death matter, but the Red Sox are!"

On February 14th the Red Sox's equipment truck will slowly roll away from Fenway Park in Boston and head south to Winter Haven, Florida for spring training. For New Englanders from Maine to Rhode Island this marks the beginning of spring. Only true New Englanders understand what it is like to be a Red Sox fan. I remember as a child a priest having us say a prayer during the middle of service for the Olde Towne Team. From March to October all conversations from bars to church picnics center on the this year's chances, team scandals and how much we hate the dreaded Yankees. Baseball is a tradition in New England. Even though the Sox have not won a championship in over three quarters of a century there is no team with a more avid following.

A trip to Fenway park on a hot summer day is to be savored like a fine wine. The beautiful green field, the passion of the "bleacher creatures", and the smell of sweet Italian sausage floating over the Green Monster. When one walks into the ball park the troubles of every day life are forgotten and you are swept up by the innocence of an American pastime.

This is the time of year when baseball takes over the sports pages and the evening news. The Red Sox are ready to have an exciting and productive spring training. Management has finally gone out and paid the money needed for top of the line free agents, there are no contract problems with players not eligible for free agency and the team is in a positive frame of mind. This is the first time in a number of seasons where spring training is going to be about baseball itself and not about business and sex (when was the last time you heard the name Margo Adams?)

All of New England is once again saying that "this is the year." There no doubt that they will be competitive, but this is not as important as we Sox fans lead you to believe. The fact that they are part of our day and give us a means of enhancing the monotony of our lives is why we will follow them wherever they lead us.
