Pasta everywhere . . . all you could eat

by Elizabeth Anders
Staff Writer

A pasta lover's dream come true was held Saturday, Sept. 11 at the Tenth Annual Pasta Challenge, sponsored by the K.P.B., "Keep Providence Beautiful." The Challenge started at noon and lasted till 4:30pm.

Seventeen of the area's local restaurants came together to compete with each other to see who made the best pasta dish. A new restaurant, The Atrium, joined the challenge for the first time with the hopes that it would be the winner, of this year's People's Choice Award or of the Silver Fork Award. Seven thousand people attended the Pasta Challenge that was held at Citizen's Plaza to decide who the winner would be. Some of the competitors were: Polla And Pasta, Julio's Family Restaurant, Tav Vino and Tortilla Plaza.

Well prepared dishes were served. Bertucci Brick Oven served a delicious red clam sauce that won the Silver Fork Award. The Old Oyster House served a Fiery-Caribbean Pasta that tasted like pineapple. Tav Vino won the Interesting Sauce Award. The sauce had five different sauces with a melon in your mouth.

Rathskeller caters to students

by Kenn Boyle
Staff Writer

The D.J. is pumping the beat, the tunes are jammin', and the club is hopping. Where's the hottest spot in Providence? The Griffin Rathskeller! The Rathskeller is the first continuing non-alcoholic social club on campus. It was designed to offer an alternative to the bar scene and provide a safe, social environment for students. The Griffin Rathskeller will furnish a D.J. who will spin dance music every Friday from 7-10pm at the Hospitality Center home room.

Danilus Broadnor, Culinary Weekend Club chairperson and Adviser Rob Brown saw a need for a safe entertainment environment for students. They said that the Rathskeller will provide an on-campus outlet for students to dance, party and have fun without facing the dangers of downtown. Eventually, they said they hope to expand to include live bands, comedians, and food.

Students will be encouraged to socialize and dance instead of drinking and doing the bar scene. Rob Brown sees the Griffin Rathskeller as a way for younger students, or those who are adverse to alcohol, to get together and dance, thereby eliminating the problems associated with going downtown with a fake I.D.

"I am attempting to establish a tradition that the students will not be able to do without," Broadnor said. "Once we get it rolling, the possibilities are endless."

The Rathskeller will host a variety of different entertainers and themes from Mardi Gras to the Battle

JWU Library . . . finally a reality

by Liliana Cortez
Staff Writer

Johnson and Wales University Library growth has become evident everywhere, especially in the new location and expansion of its multi-million dollar library.

The new JWU Library occupies the first two floors of the former Broadcast House, now University Hall, located at the corner of Weybosset and Dorrance streets. The library has a seating capacity of 500 and includes four study rooms. In addition, there are thirteen C.D.-ROM computers, a library skills classroom, and up to 30,000 volumes of books. By December 31, the library will hopefully add 18,000 new volumes, and by 1998 it will have a total of 90,000 volumes.

With the availability of resources, the assistance of reference librarians and the new dean of Library Systems, Ms. Helena Rodriguez, students and teachers will have more sources of information than ever before. There will be workshops and library skills classes offered to help support the University's curriculum.

EDITORIAL

JWU bashed again by The Journal

In a recent column, The Providence Journal's Bob Kerr wondered "Can Mom and Dad really drive away thinking they've deposited sons and daughters in the groves of academe?" He also commented that it is "truly bizarre" that parents with out of state plates drop their children off at beat-up downtown hotels now serving as dormitories.

If Mr. Kerr would care to have a tour of our continuously improving facilities, around the state, he could end his ridiculous question. The Campus Herald challenges Mr. Kerr to come and be part of our community. Visit our new library, have dinner in a practicum property, interview one of the many successful graduates who own and operate thriving businesses, some of which are located only blocks away from The Journal's home on Fountain Street.

If Mr. Kerr were to look at things more realistically, perhaps his next column would reflect some of the exceptional opportunities JWU offers.

Changing guard at The Herald

In my new position as editor in chief at The Campus Herald, I am going to continue the fine tradition of bringing important, relevant news and in-

Have you heard . . .

Gossip is idle, often sensational and groundless talk about others. If this definition seems negative and you resent the implication of it, you must likely partake in it. If the idea of gossip is distasteful, then why do so many people talk and listen to it? First, people like to share their "knowledge." They like to feel important, they like the control it gives them. If someone has a piece of information that you do not have, they have control of the situation.

They now can share with you whatever "facts" they believe to be pertinent. You have no idea if they are leaving out pieces or adding their own perspective of the events to the story. Second, people, by human nature are curious. When someone knows more than you, you have to find out what they know. So you ask. You are now a willing recipient of their "facts." Usually, at the end of the conversation, the person telling you the events will ask for your opinion on the whole sordid tale.

You must now ask yourself some questions: Are you the right person to be deciding the fate of this other person? Are you biased or prejudiced against this person? Who made you the jury to decide if he or she should be on trial? Who gave you the right to pass judgement on him or her, just because you heard testimony from others? Who is even to say if the testimony you heard is true?

When we pass judgement on others, we also pass judgement on ourselves. When you engage in gossip, you tell people that you have no concern for others, which leads people to the question: Should they care about you enough to not gossip about you? I feel that you receive what you give out.

Someday, someone will have the opportunity to gossip about you. Don't give them a reason to.

Sports is an integral part of JWU, show support

Dear Editor,

For anyone to say that athletics isn’t an integral part of Johnson & Wales University is totally absurd. In the past, various sport teams have been hurt by a lack of fan support at their home games. We, here at the athletic department, and the athletes, themselves, feel sports is a vital part to the Johnson & Wales University community.

Now, what has happened in the past cannot be changed; but what lies ahead for us this year, and in the future, can. The athletic teams need your fan support at the games. Students around campus complain that there’s always nothing to do or they’re not interested. There is more to do this year at JWU than ever before. As a student, you have to get involved on your own, become interested, and root your school on to victory. A lot of home fan support can change the game totally and give JWU an important victory.

We need to show opposing colleges and universities that there is pride at JWU. So pick up a schedule of the athletic events, and attend games whenever you can. Let’s make this a banner year for the athletic programs, and support your teams. See you at the games.

Correction

The Campus Herald would like to correct the spelling of Res ipsa Loquitur, "it speaks for itself." John F. Kennedy was assassinated November 1963, the date was misprinted last issue.

Question of the Week

What do you think of the new Johnson & Wales University Library located on Dorrance Street?

Greg Goehler, junior: "I think it's about time, and it's very impressive. I didn't think it was going to be this big. I like it a lot."

Thomas Joseph, freshman: "It is really good, but the problem is it's still not fully functional yet. There's a lot of things that need to be put in, but I think it's great."

Shelly Destroches, junior: "I love it! I'm so excited because it's just like every other college around here."

As the new school year begins, the Johnson & Wales community finds itself equipped yet again with another new valuable resource, the library at University Hall. Which is located at 111 Dorrance Street, downtown Providence.

The library's hours are as follows: Mon to Thu 8 a.m. to midnight, Fri 8 to 5 p.m., Sat 9 to 5 p.m. and Sun 2 p.m. to midnight. Students are required to show ID for access into the building, as well as for checking out books.

Most books and related materials can be checked out for two weeks. However, reference materials cannot leave the library. The services offered by the library, although still being implemented, are individual group study rooms, lounge area and single-study cubicles. Other resources are Info Trac indexes, and related computers. A room is available where students may look at text books reserved by professors for his or her related course(s). Laser printers and some dot-matrix printers are available, but "tickets" for the laser printer must be purchased at the bookstore. Word processors are not available at the library.

Open position available

There is a challenging new position to function as a liaison between social service providers and Johnson & Wales University. Focus will be on connecting existing University resources to better serve the homeless of Providence and creating new resources for the prevention of homelessness and families at risk. Seeking energetic, highly motivated individual with an understanding of the effects of poverty, family violence, substance abuse, mental illness, and the incidence of homelessness. Interested applicants should send resume and cover letter to: Hugh F. O'Reilly, Director of Education, Practicum Properties.

Mini courses coming

Johnson & Wales University will be offering additional Baby Wales courses this fall. Several new short-term classes, such as The Dale Carnegie Management Seminar and Personal Catering, have been added to the list of offerings. These courses are noncredit classes taught by the Johnson & Wales Continuing Education faculty and are offered in one to two night seminars and full-day seminars on Saturday. The short-term courses cover a variety of topics from Food Service/ Sanitation Certificate to You and Your Camcorders (Level I). Classes will begin September 13. Students may enroll up to the first day of class. Course fees range from $39 to $55. Dale Carnegie courses cost $825 and $975. For further information, please contact the Continuing Education office at 456-1085.

F & B scholarship offered

The Food and Beverage Association of America is offering its annual scholarships in amounts up to $1,000 cash payable directly to the educational institution. Selection of recipients is based upon dedication to a future career in Hotel or Food and Beverage Management, overall school record, recommendations from school officials, and financial need. While all of the above categories will be considered, no candidate will be excluded because of any particular category alone. Students may apply by writing a detailed letter of request and sending it to: Scholarship Committee Food and Beverage Association of America 140 Manhattan Avenue New York, NY 10025

Take advantage of free scholarship search

Johnson and Wales University is offering a "free" scholarship outlook for anyone interested in attending the University next year. The application must be fully completed to gain maximum eligibility. Some personal characteristics that the application asks from you are race; religion; heritage; work experience; your parent's activities such as their employment and the civil organizations they belong to. If the application has sections left incomplete, then the possibility of receiving any awards will be lowered. Some of the scholarships being offered are fairly competitive. These scholarships require an essay, a faculty recommendation, and a GPA of 3.0 or higher. Other scholarships are based on financial need, race, and the church activities and community organizations to which you belong. Make sure to apply for everything, that way you are maximizing your benefits from this.
... comments on library continue

When students were asked what they thought about their new library, overall responses were positive. A concern that seemed to be shared by all the students questioned was about the lack of materials on-hand at the library.

Dr. Helena Rodrigues, dean of University Libraries, said that comments about the new facility have been good, and wants to assure us that materials for the library will grow as the year continues. Within a few months North Miami; Charleston, SC; Norfolk, VA; and Worcester, MA campuses will have full access to all library holdings and all libraries will be connected through tele communications lines.

Currently, the library is in Phase 1 with 1 1/2 floors and the seating capacity of 566 people. Within the next five years the library will move into "Phase 2" expanding into Cherry & Webb and holding 816 people. Lastly, students are encouraged to use the new library and to get acquainted with all of its resources and staff. They are there to help and are willing to listen to any suggestions.

Any other question or concern can be answered by librarians or by calling the library at 456-1133.

in Yena's world, students of today can’t sit back and wait to make college, careers, and life just happen.

"You must be in charge," said Yena. "If you are not, the prospect for things not happening are tremendous."

Several other administrators gave a pep talk and briefly introduced students to the many organizations, groups, facilities, and resources the University offers them.

Several student comedians livened up the freshman class to prepare them for Yena’s testament.

The hidden truth
by Rambo Jurado
Staff Writer
Recently, in the Xavier Auditorium, Bob Harris was special guest speaker to discuss the assassination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. His message was "Outstanding...Testimony to incredible talent and knowledge," says student Activities Advisor of North Central Technical College.
Bob Harris has a lot of knowledge about the assassination of JFK. He got interested in JFK while doing comedy. He began writing a stage show. His intention was to make fun of the conspiracy theories. While doing his research, he found nothing amusing about it. He continued to gather up all the information that he could find about John F. Kennedy, that is what his lecture was all about.
John F. Kennedy, while riding in the back seat of this limousine on August 22, 1963, was shot. He was on his way to deliver a speech at the Dealey Plaza in downtown Dallas, Texas. The president was shot in the throat, and in the back; he died of a fatal shot to the head.

Who killed JFK? Lee Harvey Oswald

10. Collect and Create: Discover a specific item that fits your personality, and go wild! For instance... Make a collage of bottle caps, draw a picture with seashells. You've got the idea!
9. Stack 'em: Use milk crates or decorated shoe boxes for shelves! Stuff 'em with books, socks, do dads, etc.
8. Pillows: Tote! Any shape, color, or size; throw them everywhere to make a comfortable environment!
7. Wall-to-Wall Coverage: Take advertisements, pictures of your favorite band, or anything that interests you, and cover the entire wall with it!
6. Sheets that Scream: Find the most obnoxious design, the loudest color, mismatch, or make your own! Anything to wake you up in the morning!
5. Design Curtains: Use your artistic abilities! Tie-dye old sheets; wrap different, patterned material together; anything goes!
4. Aromatherapy: Scented candles and incense are illegal in the dormitories, the next best thing would be potpourri! The key is the container!
3. Plants: There's no better way to liven up a dull atmosphere than putting something live in it!
2. Black Lights: For a psychedelic effect!
1. Conversation Piece: The more bizarre, the better you are! For example; a hammock, a state flag, a tombstone... Use some imagination!

2nd Skin defining the mosh

I am back, and it's time to jump into the pit and lose yourself in the mosh. How was everyone's summer? Did you all get a nice tan? Mine, I think could be better, considering where I was for the summer. I hope that everyone had a good summer, because I know I did.

I spent the summer trying to convince my parents that heavy metal isn't noise, but music. Better than that, metal can be categorized as easy listening for some of us, like myself. My parents could also not believe that moshing is an artistic dance, not a means of seeing if you could successfully catch a combat boot in your head without breaking your skull. I don't think I convinced them, but it was fun trying.

The Mosh Pit by Jeory L. Wood

Even though I spent the summer missing my Bomb band (a group of really cool bands make their start) I was still excited about coming back and covering the music here in the Providence/ Boston area. What an awesome way to start the year off, by checking out 2nd Skin in Club Babhead.

I've been told that the second time is a blast for almost anything we enjoy. Seeing 2nd Skin for the second time in five months was comparable to standing at ground zero in a nuclear explosion! They left Babhead scorching hot, and I know you believe that Babhead is still glowing just a bit from the intensity of this band. To put it short, Chad Vincent (vocals), Mike Stein (guitar), Kenny Notcheck (bass), and Fred Jorden (drums) blew the doors off Babyhead.

The music of 2nd Skin is what I would call Mosch Groove music. They come out kickin' you in the teeth with hard power and blistering speed. Then they come to the breakdown of the song (coda) and you want to put you into a mosh frenzy - and it does! If you're a small person, you may find that you're always standing on the wall of the pit you will definitely be in there groovin' and catching boots in your head like the rest of us.

I'm going to have to rank these fellows up there with my top bands, which are King's X and Galactic Cowboys. Now 2nd Skin is getting the third slot for the Mosh Pit top ten metal bands. They're just amazing...plains awesome. They can hang out with me and put their feet on my coffee table, because they are such dudes, actually they're a dude and a half.

Just remember, the next time you see them playing in the area, be sure to show them how much you appreciate them, and besides I want to have Timberland imprinted on my head from moshing all night long. Now that's a metal band for you. Until next time - Par-tee.

Grip onto Aerosmith

by Elizabeth Salam
Staff Writer

Are you one the who was unfortunate enough to miss Aerosmith's live performance at the Providence Civic Center, Monday, Sept. 13, with 4 Non Blons Des - 4 Non Blons Des?

Didn't you know that the whole state of Rhode Island would be there? Didn't you know that they are recognized as one of the best, if not the best, live performers existing today? Was it you? Was it you?

By the size of the crowd, one might guess that most of the state was in attendance for this performance. If you were one of the few who missed Aerosmith, you missed one of the most outrageous live musical entertainers known.

If you have been lucky enough to attend any Aerosmith concert, you know that they just don't do anything but take the stage and begin to recite music to the audience. Aerosmith sets the stage with extreme creativity. With just a simple black and white sheet circling around them, a light casting their shadows around it, and Joey Kramer's driving African/ Tribal drum rhythms, they created an atmosphere of total chaos. The sheet fell, and the show began.

Steven Tyler (lead vocalist) appeared in his customary silk tails and a befitting "mad hatter" hat.

They performed a mix of music (including some of their earlier material such as "Dream On" and "Back in the Saddle") to their most current hits like "Eat the Rich" and "Livin' on the Edge." They also performed a rendition of Peter Gunn that shook everyone within hearing distance. Incarceration. Between all of this were breaks with solos by Joe Kramer (percussionist), Joe Perry (lead guitarist), and special guest Thom Gimbel (saxophonist). Their solos acted as leads into their musical performance, which was an innovative way of catching the attention of the crowd.

The crowd was never completely sure which song Aerosmith was introducing next, and this helped to ensure the audience's high energy level. When Joe Perry began to perform "Stop Messin' Around," the audience took a step back to remember a time that seriously questioned Aerosmith's future.

During the early '80s, Aerosmith reached a critical point in their musical career. Thinking they had written the final chapter in the history of Aerosmith because of serious drug related problems, they split up. Joe Perry went off on his own and created the Joe Perry Project, which played here in Providence at the former club, "The Living Room." "Stop Messin' Around" served as a reminder to the audience of times that change and that nothing is forever.

Wild as ever, Steven Tyler kept the stage presence moving at the speed of light. Running from one end of the stage to the other, he would rally up the crowd with well-known body gestures (especially during "Love in an Elevator") and comments like, "this isn't your MTV." And of course...there is that voice.

Words will never truly describe his voice's harmonic ability. Just as an example of the capabilities he possesses, he would play a note on the harmonica and then match it with a vocal, then speed up the tempo. He was doing the changes so quickly, no one could separate the two sounds.

He was beautiful and left everyone in silence for noticeable intervals of time.

Music, in general, has a great amount of influence in any person's life. Imagine the influence Aerosmith has had upon three generations of listeners. Aerosmith didn't become successful because of advertising layouts or a predetermined, directed image. Aerosmith appeals to people because they are who they are all the time. Aerosmith, like good wine, gets better and better with time.

The four bands gave a gusty performance Monday night, one that you would not expect from too many bands when the attendance is relatively low. These guys were interested in their performance, not attendance, and that pays a lot about the performer. If it's one or one thousand people present, you will get as much out of the performance as if it was the last time they were playing together. It says that the band is truly concerned for their fans not the money. "If you get the chance, check out Mind Bomb and pick up their latest CD, "Do You Need Some."" Don't forget the other bands; they are well worth seeing, too, but Mind Bomb is sending shock waves everywhere they go.

Take shelter- it's a Mind Bomb

by Jeory L. Wood
Staff Writer

On Sept. 13 at Club Babhead, four heavy metal bands took to the stage and delivered an all-out performance until the wee hours of the morning. Smudge, 2nd Skin, Dandellion, and the main attraction, Mind Bomb, blew us away with their four-hour metal extravaganza.

The first band to warm up the crowd was Smudge. These five metal monsters pounded through their 30-minute set with finesse and ease. As far as warming up the crowd, they were more of a shocker. Backed by the thunderous beats of the drums and the driving bass, endless hardrock music ripped through the mosh pit going throughout the set. This was a great way to set the tone for the rest of the bands. It was also a hard act to follow.

Next up was 2nd Skin. I had the opportunity to check these guys out at the Overkill show back in April. It was a good opener then, and I was expecting the same at best. Little did I know that they had a different plan for us. They came out and blew us out the door with their raw metal power. Along with the rest of the people at Babhead, I was definitely impressed.

They were, most definitely, a mosh pit favorite.

Third up was Dandellion. After getting a heavy dose of metal for about two hours, it was quite interesting watching these guys. They were what you would call hard core Black Crowes. Well, actually they were like the Four Horseman with a sprinkle of Metallica. They proceeded to rock the house down, and they did it with such skill. I wish they had more than ten or fifteen people watching. They were very impressive, despite the lack of attendance.

After a rather lengthy wait, the main course, Mind Bomb, took to the stage. Equipment problems almost forced them to cancel, but they went on. Coming straight from the tour bus through the front door, they were wearing unusual, but unique, stage dress, which was cool in my book. Some were wearing just towels; others just wore underwear. This made me wonder if this was worth the wait, until they cranked into their first song "Prepare Yourself"; then I was impressed.

These fellows know how to rock. Their unique sort of alternative metal reminded me of Rage Against the Machine. Both guitarists were absolutely amazing, the drums were kickin', and the keyboard held up its end of the unique Mind Bomb sound. The bass was absolutely killer; it made Geddy Lee of Rush sound OK, and he's phenomenal when it comes to the bass. The whole band knew how to put on a show and was very concerned with sounding their best, even though there were only twenty people watching.

GREAT JOB..... AT THE PASTA BOWL
JWU's soccer teams win their first games

by Jason Bach
Staff Writer

The Johnson & Wales Griffin women's and men's soccer teams both got off to a good start in their season openers against Massachusetts College of Pharmaceutical with the women winning 4-0 and the men 11-0.

The women Griffins took the lead with freshman Anya Frozzo's goal two minutes into the game and were reinforced with two goals from junior, Kristen Lowd, and one from vice-captain Marcie Hawley. The women, who were 4-5 last season, outshot MCP 40-15 with a key shutout performance from goalie Theresa Klitz.

The men followed with a huge blowout of MCP, scoring nine goals in the first half and, eventually, winning 11-0. Irishman Johan Baldurs, led the team with four goals; team captain Peter Karatzas and freshman, Adam Ritter, scored a pair of goals each. The men beat MCP 10-0 last year on their way to a 4-7-1 record.

"Both teams have potential," said head coach Gregg Miller. "The men have more strength and depth than last year. The women have stronger players, but many of them aren't able to make a lot of the games because of class schedules."

Coach Miller, a native of Birmingham, England, is in his second year as head coach of the women's team and in his first as men's head coach, after being an assistant for two years.
