JWU students take stand on gay rights
by Jason Bach
News Editor

The rejection of the Sexual Orientation Bill by the Rhode Island House of Representatives Judiciary Committee (JJC) and then by the entire Rhode Island House of Representatives, prompted about 100 gay, lesbian and bisexual rights activists to take march on the State House last Wed. March 23.

The bill was originally defeated on March 17 by the JJC 9-8, but was then brought to the House floor on March 22 by the bill’s original sponsor, Rep. Frank Gaschen, D-Cumberland and was defeated by a 56-43 vote. This is the 10th consecutive year that the bill has failed in Rhode Island. Last years bill past the Rhode Island Senate, but then failed in the HJC.

The protest, sponsored by the Rhode Island Network of Gay, Lesbians and Bisexual Students (RINGS), organized in the late afternoon, outside of the State House for a rally to show support for the rights of gay, lesbian and bisexuals. Two Johnson & Wales University students continued on page 5

JWU receives accreditation by David Bryan Reith hard Editor In Chief

Recently, the University community was notified, by voice mail message, of approval on its application for regional accreditation to the Commission on Institution of Higher Education of New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

According to Dr. Howard Koch, Vice President of Academic Affairs, the University has completed most of its projects to prepare for its regional accreditation status. He explained that things done to improve the University, in preparation of regional accreditation were; the University Library project, more terminally qualified faculty, increased funding for faculty development (monies for advanced degrees), more input from faculty in the form of the Faculty Advisory Committee and expansion of the board of trustees (to include national representation and more overall diversity).

At this time, the visiting team’s report has been released to University Administrators involved in the accreditation project, according to Koch. However, the report is not available in the same manner that the University’s self study was. Currently, the visiting team’s report is to remain confidential, he explained.

At this point, Koch feels that there will not be much difference in enrollment numbers. Although there might be some students transferring out of our University, he feels that the gain from a new market will continue on page 10

No visitors allowed in two halls
by Jason Bach
News Editor

Following break-ins at Stephens Residence Hall and Bell Residence Hall, both have placed visitor restrictions for one week.

Room break-ins and burglaries at Stephens were brought to the attention of the students at a hall meeting on March 16. At the meeting, it was brought to the attention of the hall residents of these break-ins to students’ individual rooms at Stephens. Residence were also informed that if anymore break-ins were to occur, that no visitors would be allowed into the hall. Following a break-in later in the week, all visitors were banned from Stephens Hall on March 23.

New McNulty, coming soon
by Jason Bach
News Editor

Johnson & Wales University will add another residence hall in September, with the grand opening of the new McNulty Hall on Weybosset Street.

The new seven story complex, presently under construction, will be an “E” shaped building adjacent to the University green with its entrance located on the Weybosset Street side. The middle portion of the “E” will contain the lobby on the first floor, a quiet study room, meeting room, video arcade, convenient store, TV room and lounge, on other floors.

The hall will house 500 students, consisting of 80 percent incoming freshman, that will be chosen on a first come, first serve basis. The 100 returning students who apply to live in McNulty will be chosen according to guidelines yet to be laid down by residential life. All students who will continue on page 12

On Sun., Mar. 27, an oil tanker traveling on Interstate 65 exploded near the Pine Street overpass, causing the evacuation of Xavier Residence Hall.

Students from Xavier were evacuated at 7:30 a.m. and then bused to different locations, including Bell Hall and the Harborside Campus. At Bell Hall, students slept in the lobby and at Harboride, students were housed at the Culinary Gym and in the lobbies and community rooms of the residence halls.

Students from Xavier were evacuated in concerns that the sewer system may of been contaminated by the near by explosion. Students were then allowed back into their rooms at approximately 10:30 a.m.

Accomplished accreditation

Changes the University have made in recent times, has helped lead to regional accreditation of JWU after many hours of struggle. The commitment of the administration to move and vastly expand the library, and the upcoming Winter Park project, along with other construction projects, played a major role in accreditation. The faculty and staff deserve credit for their dedication to take the academic standards of the University to a new level in new curriculum and syllabus standards.

Individual colleges and schools at JWU have seen their structure changed for the better and curriculum expansion.

The University has shown that it is willing to listen, by the establishment of student representation on the Committee on Attendance and Retention Efforts (CARE), establishment of the Faculty Advisory Committee and their willingness to work with JWU’s ACLU, USA, The Campus Herald and other student organizations.

This University has worked very hard to achieve this accomplishment, it is now up to them to keep the ball in their court and not to become stagnant.

Quote of the Week

There is so much to be said in favor of modern journalism. By giving us the opinions of the uneducated it keeps us in touch with ignorance of the community.

-Oscar Wilde

No civil rights in RI

Another victory for the "homosexuals" in Rhode Island. It was very disheartening to see that the sexual orientation civil rights bill was shot down for the tenth year in a row. This bill only proposed to extend civil rights to homosexuals in credit, housing, public accommodations and public employment. Perhaps Rhode Island needs to borrow from its neighboring sister states of Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Several weeks ago I was fortunate enough to sit at the House Judiciary Committee that heard the bill. This was not a simple hearing to get through. There were well over fifty supporters of the bill telling horror stories, explaining how crucial the bill is needed for passage, and well over 150 other supporters. However, one opponent of the bill claims that most homosexuals are well above the middle class, have the best jobs and are better educated that most. This opponent also claims many gays and lesbians are pulled into this life-style because it is "trendy". Consequently, there were many stories that followed explaining just how trendy it is to get your face punched in, or get verbally abused daily in school, or to be told "we don't have a job for you anymore" simply because of sexual orientation. That is that there is absolutely nothing that can be done because there are no civil rights based on orientation. Although, if you were female, Jewish, black, Asian, Islamic or Catholic you would have every right for recourse. Every civil right!

It is true. Many gay, lesbian and bisexual people have a good education and can be open about their identity. Still, many are afraid to go out and verbalize their identity in fear of loosing their homes, apartments, jobs, chance to continue education and way of life.

This year marked an incredible change in Rhode Island. Every university that has a gay and lesbian group on its campus has united into a network, Rhode Island Network of Gay and Lesbian Students. This network sponsored that protest at the State House showing the disapproval of the House vote. Demonstrators were angry and vowed to vote out those who voted no. One supporter at the demonstration pointed out that all those who voted yes were re-elected in the last month's election.

"We vote, we vote, we'll vote you out of office!"

Striving to be better journalists

What can we do to better ourselves? What steps can be taken, or improved upon, to make us the best we can be? I'm sure this question is asked by all of us. At one time or another we have at least all thought of it. Are we not dedicated toward bettering ourselves?

The Campus Herald, and its staff are of no exception. For those of you who did not notice, there was no publication last week. It was because some of the editors and staff were out of town, learning how to make the paper better. A fortunate few, (myself included) where able to go to the 16th Annual College Media Convention, in New York City. There we attended a series of seminars led by top professionals and journalism professors from schools around the country. These seminars were concerned with all aspects of journalism and college publications. We learned about what makes a quality newspaper and how to provide a product that does the most for its readers. We also learned how to search out topics concerning the University and bring them to you in an informative, but factual way.

Other classes were offered as well, some 150 over a four-day period. The program itself was organized by CMA, College Media Advisers and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Previous members of The Campus Herald have gone to this convention in years past. But, it was the first time we as a new team, for the end of this year and for next, attended together.

Now we are back with new insight, that I know will help us all. I feel that this paper or any other are valuable resources to the people they serve. After all, journalism is a service oriented business. I consider my job to help inform and educate the people that pick-up a copy of our publication. With the excitement of the new accreditation and the visible changes around the University, my point of view will become even more evident as time goes on.

I look forward to my term as Managing Editor and working with the rest of the staff to integrate the new lessons we have learned in NYC. To share it not only with other staff who were unable to attend, but make it obvious to the reader, in our final product.
Support the attendance policy

Dear Editor:
Most of us are aware of the attendance policy at Johnson & Wales University, some of us accept it, and some of us don’t. I chose Johnson & Wales for it’s outstanding reputation as a leader in training students for successful careers in the hospitality industry. The university has developed a curriculum that is designed to prepare students to succeed in a very tight job market.
Today’s employers are looking for employees who are educated, motivated, and capable of assuming responsibilities. Johnson & Wales can educate us, but we, as students, need to demonstrate motivation and commitment. Johnson & Wales has laid the foundation for us to build upon by providing us with an environment that is structured and has rules, rules that we may not find acceptable. Taken out of the educational environment, these rules are interpreted as policies. Yes, in the world outside there will also be attendance policies.

Most of the complaints surrounding the 3-cut policy are from students who feel they are not being treated as mature, responsible adults. They believe that they should be given the opportunity to attend classes for whether or not to attend classes. Another argument that is heard is that students feel that because they are guest workers, they should not be mandated to attend classes. Well, I am also paying for my education, and when I calculate the cost, I discovered that for every class period that I decide to cut it will cost me $23. As a responsible, mature adult in the work place, if I chose to miss one day of work, this one day could cost me in excess of $150, for lost wages and for higher level management positions.
Oh, sure, we could just ask our friends to take notes for us and keep us up to date on the material, but don’t we miss more than a lecture? If there wasn’t more to gain from the classroom experience, universities would go out of business. We could just go to a bookstore and purchase any needed textbooks, read them and consider ourselves educated. This would put an end to the high cost of education. It would also put an end to the exposure to interesting people, new cultures, new ideas that universities wouldn’t benefit from the experience of being college students.
The students who agree with the policy seem to believe that the professors thrive on enforcing it. I have discovered just the opposite to be true. The professors I interviewed felt that the policy places an extra task on them; they need to monitor students’ attendance and report any student who may present a risk for problems due to excessive absenteeism.
According to administration, this policy also creates extra work for them. They have to spend the time to intimidate, to paper work that is created, and the uncountable number of hours spent in following up on these students. Clearly, the administration places responsibility to the policy doesn’t end with the act of enforcement. They, as administrators, need to emphasize the importance of the policy and its benefits to the students’ success. All of these tasks must undoubtedly generate some sort of financial cost to the university. The policy was not implemented with the intention of generating animosity within the student body, but to actually prepare us for the exceptions of future employers.

This policy is only a small piece of a much larger puzzle, so to speak. The entire university experience should be conduite to that of the structure in the work place we will be expected to meet deadlines, complete assignments and strive to do our very best. We will also be expected to demonstrate a strong sense of commitment through our attitudes towards attendance. Johnson & Wales is providing us with the opportunity to develop these necessary skills by including the additional structure to our academic pursuits. It appears that some of us need this extra structure in our academic lives and some of us don’t. Unfortunately, those tend to be the students with the most complaints.

Get more respect

Dear Editor:
Another life lesson that I witnessed while traveling was the cleanliness of this area within our country. While cities and towns braggle over money appropriation, the trash piles up in the City of Providence. Graffiti, another human expression of ignorance, is nonexistent within Charlotte, North Carolina. When I returned to my residence of Bell Hall, somebody had written in hot pink marker on the white windows of the Little House Grille. What message does this send, the inability of someone to express there feelings on the proper artist canvas. Once again, I am calling you on as people of society and Johnson & Wales University to clean up after yourself, and stop the vandalism and trashing of Providence. I am not placing blame on any one student, but as students we are the future of society and this institution, and until we let people know about their acts of ignorance, the human race will continue to suffer.

Speaker on campus hate

By David Paleminno
Staff Writer

On Mon., Mar. 21, Dr. Jack Levin of Northeastern University spoke in the Xavier Auditorium regarding bigotry and hate on campus.

Levin is an expert in the field of criminology and sociology. He has studied hate crimes around the United States and Canada ranging from Charles Manson to Jeffrey Dahmer. He has been on The Today Show as Donald Groves with Williams and Oprah Winfrey, to name a few. He has written books on crimes of hatred and vengeance in addition to articles in The New York Times and U.S.A. Today. Dr. Levin was also named Massachusetts "Professor of the Year."

There were over 70 people in attendance, with more than half of them being student leaders on campus. A slide show began the night, and the first slide shown was of Jeffrey Dahmer.

Levin started off by saying, "Most of us walk around with a distorted view of society, and most of us don't test our beliefs and prejudices of society." He went on to ask the audience what percentage of the country was Jewish. The majority of the audience thought that 40% was Jewish. In reality, according to 2 Prozent Deutung, the Jewish population is only 2%. He then asked what percentage of the country we thought was Black. The audience guessed 20%, in actuality it's 12%. Finally, he wanted opinions on the percent of the country we thought was Roman Catholic. The audience responded by saying 30%. Well, according to The Catholic Almanac, it's 17%. The percent of the country that's Roman Catholics 17 percent.

Levin stated that today's culture is a "culture of hate," and this hate may be observed in our popular music and television programs. He used Ice Cube's "Niggaz4Life" by Dr. Dre and Eazy-E as examples of how we throw "vicious barbs at the most vulnerable people in society."

He backed up his statement by saying only 20% of all college-aged American college students are involved in violent music or television programs. This introduction comfortably eased the audience into the main topic of discussion with an open mind on hate crimes on college campus.

Levin said that hate crimes are aimed at certain types of people because they are different. The types of people whom commit these crimes are usually, "a group of young men looking to be the best group of people to feel superior." The crimes are not committed by Skin Heads or any other specific group perceived by society to be made up of hate. The crimes are committed by everyday, ordinary people. The two most victimized groups are Latinos and Asians while the most persecuted group on campus' are homosexuals. "Not only those who are gay but also those who are seen as gay," said Levin.

He went on to state, "Eighty percent of all hate crimes on college campus are committed by fellow students. This statistic shows college populations do not get along for the most part. In the year 2000 half of all the males in the United States will be males of color."

Levin was asked, how students fight against hate crimes, bigotry and prejudices on JWU's campus. He responded immediately with possible solutions, not an elisor of course.

"We must not tell racial jokes and ethnic jokes because when people say it is a joke it makes it that much more dangerous," Levin said. "It's the soft sell that manipulates us. We must always be proactive on campus and the leaders of our campus must step up to the challenge. All leaders, whites must fight for black rights, latinos must fight for gay rights so on and so forth. Each target population must battle for their group rights and the rights of other groups as well."

This means the next time we hear a fellow student whispering the joke regarding the black, Puerto Rican and Jew... speak up! We have to stop all types of bigotry, not only the ones that apply to our backgrounds. Remember, when offensive statements are made, be it related to a joke or not, by you not speaking up makes you just as wrong as the party stating it. Set the tone, not so great a tone, speak up.

Gay civil rights bill continues

(JWU) organizations took part in the rally for the failed bill, the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Alliance (GLBA) and the JWU Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

The bill is "important because people have to live in fear of losing their basic necessities such as housing, jobs, credit and freedom of expression," said Jeff Huffman, President of GLBA.

The bill was pushed to pass with signatures on the second floor rotunda for Chamber. It is "We Vote. We Vote. We'll vote you out of office." Several members of the Rhode Island organizations spoke at the rally including organizations from Brown University, Rhode Island School of Design, University of Rhode Island and JWU student David Bryan Reinhold spoke on the need of support from local universities' faculty and administrators. The state's only gay legislator, Sen. William P. Frazier and D-Cranston, encouraged supporters by pointing out that it took 17 years to adopt a law in Wisconsin and 12 years in Connecticut. The purpose of the rally was to raise support and motivation that will carry over until next year, when the bill (if expected to be introduced for the 11th year. Rally speakers also urged voters to vote out those who did not support the bill. All 150 seats in the legislature are up for election in November.

Huffman felt that it was important for JWU students to get involved.

"We want to show the administration that a majority of the gay population at JWU is living in fear because there is no policy and they have to watch out for discrimination," said Huffman. "It's the bill a major stepping stone in getting a sexual orientation in the Nondiscrimination Notice here at JWU."

The JWU Chapter of the ACLU proposed to the administration on Feb. 7 that sexual orientation be included in the Nondiscrimination Notice at JWU, as one section of a five part proposal. The JWU Chapter of the ACLU is currently planning to meet with members of the administration on March 31, regarding the proposal, which has been publicly supported by the GLBA.

Question of the Week

What does the accreditation mean to you and how does it affect your opinion of JWU as an university?

Bill Bernerdo. Advertising, freshman- "It gives me more confidence in the curriculum. With my A.S., hopefully it will be easier to transfer my credits to another college."

Jill Justine. Hospitality/Restaurant Institutional Management, senior- "Well, I think it's good that they have accreditation. It raises the respect of the University. In the long run it helps me in the profession I'm in, and getting a job in the industry."

Wendy Fitzgerald. Travel/Tourism, freshman- "I'm planning on staying for four years anyway, so I wasn't planning on transferring."

Sarah Thornton. Travel/Tourism, sophomore- "I like the school...so the accreditation is a bonus!"

Patricia Cusack. Travel/Tourism, freshman- "I think it helps me more because it will bring more students here. We're going to become known throughout the United States. More people will know who we are."

Small Business Matters

by Jenn Chase
Staff Writer

Johnson and Wales University office of Public Relations has been producing a monthly column "Small Business Matters," in four Massachusetts and eight Providence newspapers.

The author of the column is Joanne Legg, who is a staff writer and publicist for the College of Business and The Hospitality College. "We want to highlight the faculty in the College of Business and The Hospitality College," said Legg.

Each article is written on the basis of topical interest among small business owners and even home business owners. One of the more recent articles is about what to consider when buying a home computer or computer system for a small business. Insights and pointers were given by Alfred Benoit, a computer science professor at Johnson and Wales.

Benoit points out that you need to know more than, "I need a computer," and that going into a computer store is as dangerous as going into a car dealership.

Therefore, research is the first job to be done. Ask yourself what purpose you have for buying a computer.

Do I shop for hardware or software first? Can I just walk into a discount department store and buy a computer? Where do I find a reputable dealer? What else do I need to know about where I buy the computer from? Once I've determined the task I want to perform, how do I choose the software? What will allow me to work at home? How much can I expect to find? What about a printer? Laser printer or ink jet? These are some of the questions that many seek answers to, and now they can be answered in an easy fashion.

You can have many of your business related questions answered.

Have you got that summer job that you wanted yet? Not quite sure what your plans are? You're probably saying to yourself, "Summer Who's thinking about summer? I have midterms coming up in a few weeks!"

Well, if you haven't come up with anything exciting yet, then here is your chance.

The Kemwel Group, Inc. is offering a unique car rental plan for students 18 and older who would like to drive across Europe. "Peugeot New Car Student Plan" puts a brand new set of wheels in your hands, straight from the factory. The program is available for deliveries made now through Dec. 31, 1994. Vacations are available in Belgium, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Luxembourg, Portugal, Spain and the United Kingdom, for periods of two weeks or more.

It is through an arrangement with Peugeot that they are able to provide cars to 18-year-olds with valid driver's licenses. The all inclusive two-week rates for a Peugeot 106 four-door hatchback begin at $429 (tax and insurance included). Extra days are available for $12 a day. Compact and larger cars are also offered. Rates include: free unlimited mileage, full-non-deductible collision insurance and a complete car warranty. Twenty-four hour roadside service is also provided free of charge.

This plan saves students money because it is cheaper than European rail services and lets them visit sites that are inaccessible without a car. According to Milena Dennis, the plan is better than renting because it's considered more like a leasing arrangement. After the time is up you return the car with no further obligation.

The Kemwel Group, Inc. is based in Harrison New York and is a travel service company featuring all types of travel arrangements. Try/Drive programs are also available. Students with questions, or who would like to book reservations should contact a local travel agent or call Kemwel at (800) 678-0678 and ask for the Peugeot New Car Student Plan.

Chef Louis Szathmáry honored

by Elizabeth C. Drew
Staff Writer

Sixty-seven years ago, in Hungary at a children's masquerade party, a boy was dressed as a "Chef Apprentice" (an easy costume to make) just a white hat, apron and a wooden spoon.

That boy of bygone days is three-quarters of a century young. He is Louis Szathmáry, Chef/Owner of the Internationally acclaimed "The Bakbery" Restaurant in Chicago (1963-1989), and Chef Laureate at Johnson & Wales University.

On April 10, at the Culinary Ar-will be honored at the Third Annual Culinary Archive Museum Fundraiser with a New England Gala Dinner. The seven course meal is to be prepared by chefs and students from J&W's Practicum Properties and the Student Culinary Team.

A reception will take place before the dinner beginning at 4 p.m. Dinner will be served at 5 p.m. The cost is $50 per person with all proceeds going to the Culinary Archives & Museum Acquisition Fund at J&W.

Copies of Louis Szathmáry's cook-

Sourdough breads, which begin with a fermented dough starter, are Chef Kalbe's specialty. Buddy is more than eight years old, while Earl was created in Sept. 1993, but these are mere babies compared to starters in San Francisco, the epicenter of sourdough. California sourdough starters are more than 100 years old, according to Kalbe, who likes to make everything from hot cakes to satay coffee cakes to muffins with a sourdough base.

Chef Kalbe uses Buddy and Earl in his bread-making classes at Johnson & Wales University, where culinary students are introduced to the scicence of baking. Kalbe is no stranger to baking. Before he became a teacher he operated the Narragansett Bay Baking Company, where he made mostly French breads for his upscale clientele in Newport, R.I.

"During the summer our ovens would be going 24 hours a day to keep up with the demand," Kalbe recalls.
"But then our business, like the rest of Newport, would die in the winter," Kalbe began baking at age 9 in his mother's kitchen and subsequently enrolled at J&W where he now teaches.
"I've always loved baking," he says.
"It's a precise science, yet it's lots of fun."

Sourdough bread has an enticing aroma, exceptional texture and delightful flavor, the result of the type of leavening used in the dough: not commercial yeast or baking powder, but handmade starter that has been set aside to "sour." Sourdough starters can be kept for years as long as each portion removed is replaced with equal amounts of flour and water.
Every time chef Kalbe takes a pint of starter from either Buddy or Earl, he replaces it with an exact amount of flour and water to keep the starter alive.

Many restaurants and households in the San Francisco area have small crocks of starter on their kitchen counters. If you are lucky enough to have a friend or relative in that area, you might ask for some of their starter, or you can create your own. Here are Chef Kalbe's recipes for sourdough starter and sourdough bread.

Sourdough Starter
2 cups flour
2 cups tepid water
2 to 4 tablespoons sugar
Mix ingredients into a fairly thick, rubbery consistency. Place in a bowl; cover with a cloth. Let stand in a warm place 2 to 3 days until fermented.

Thereafter, store in refrigerator, al-days leaving a one cup starter.

Sourdough Bread
1 pint sourdough starter
1 pint lukewarm water
1 tablespoon salt
3 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons sugar
6 cups flour
Mix ingredients in a large bowl.
Knead 12 to 15 minutes until smooth and satiny. Put in greased bowl; cover with cloth. Let rise until double in bulk, 1 and 1/2 to 2 hours. Push down, knead briefly, let rest 10 minutes, shape into 2 round loaves and put on greased baking sheet, allowing space for expansion. Or, shape into 2 oblong loaves and put in greased loaf pans. Let rise until doubled in bulk.
Bake at 275 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes, until brown and loaves sound hollow when tapped.

Thanks to TAU KAPPA EPSILON.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Spring is in the air and we hope it will be a safe one. With the spring, people have a tendency to let go and have lots of fun in the warm weather. It does not take much time to plan ahead for a good time with a safe ride home. Most of us have friends to go to and the beaches will be in full operation once again. All of these activities have a lot of meaning and fun. Let's make it a pact that everyone will get home safe. We will have a better time knowing that you got home safely.

Alpha Tau Omega

We hope everybody had a Happy Passover, and have a great Easter weekend! Good luck to all softball teams. Zeta's keep your heads high, you have long ways to go! Happy B-day Chick, Garley, Fulton, and Keller.

Theta Phi Alpha

The sisters of Theta Phi Alpha would like to thank ZBT for a great social. Look for upcoming bake sales in Xavier Lobby. To the brothers of TKE: keep your heads up—we love you all. If you need anything we are here for you. Keep up the faith.

Zeta Beta Tau

Good luck to our softball team! The Annual Jello Mania Party will be tonight at Lupo's. We would like to thank the sisters of THETA PHI ALPHA for a great social. Congratulations to our new executive board and welcome back Brother Alex Bruno!

Student Alumni Association

The 10th annual BATTLE OF THE DORMS planning committee will have their grand final tonight! Free tongue-tickling ball begins at 5 p.m. at Plantations Hall in the Alumni Relations Conference Room. If you have any questions, please contact S.A.A. at 456-1072.

Delta Book Drive

by Jenn Chase

Staff Writer

As a part of their service to Johnathan & Walker's Day Concert (JWU) and to Rhode Island, the Delta Sigma Theta sorority is sponsoring their annual Delta Book Drive through the month of March. The Delta Sigma Theta sisters strive for both cultural awareness and educational development in the community. The purpose of the book drive is to collect new and used books on diverse subjects that will appeal to people of all ages and to donate them to certain institutions. This year the donations will be made to: Women & Infants Hospital of Rhode Island, Elmwood Community Center, JWU's Multicultural center and Brown University-BU's Harambee House. A bookcase with books on various subjects that pertain to students were donated to the JWU Multicultural center and the BU Harambee house, on Mar. 25.

The Delta Sigma Theta sisters wrote letters to senators, governors and various bookstores throughout the state for both support and various donations to help their cause. So far, they have received over 200 books from various sources and according to one of the sisters, Josephine Ventorah, the response has been positive and hopefully will continue throughout the remainder of the month. Both books and monetary donations are being accepted and can be dropped off at either the JWU multicultural center or at the BU Third World center, located at the corner of Waterman and Brown Street on the East side of Providence. The sisters feel that the books are the key to enhancing education, opening the mind to freedom of creativity and developing individuality to strengthen and broaden the community.

WBRIU April Fools Day Bash

This is no joke! The place is Lupo's Heartbreak hotel on Apr. 1. They will be holding the second annual April Fool's Day Concert Bash! Five highly talented acts will be taking the stage to perform for charity. The acts are: Crash Test Dummies, Possum Dixon, The Unbearable Bore Saxe Machine, Lucy's Fur Coat and Maze Moore.

Tickets went on sale for $7.95 on Mar. 14. The proceeds for this concert are going to A Wish Come True, an organization that aids in helping grant the wishes of children with life-threatening illness or disease.

Come out and support these acts and do it for a worthy cause.

On Thurs. Mar. 24, Club Council sponsored two ninety minute workshop shops by the Campus Outreach Opportunity League (COOL). These two workshops on Diversity & Service, and Student Recruitment were led by Dana Nelson and Ayeda Turner. Present at these workshops were representatives from the International Club, CUBA, SOAR, and many other organizations on campus.

At the three o'clock session on Diversity & Service, students discussed diversity and how to interact and work with other groups on campus. They were encouraged to look beyond labels to see individuals. Students were then encouraged to take what they had learned and use it to help their different organizations.

The tenth annual National Conference on Student Community Service will be held at UMass on Apr. 14-17. For more information, call Bob Hosk at X1396.

How is STUDENT SERVICES DIFFERENT from a Financial Aid Office?

STUDENT SERVICES, Inc. specializes in private sector funding from corporations, memorials, trusts, foundations, religious groups, and many other sources to support college education. As state and federal funding continues to face serious cutsbacks, private sector funding is expected to grow even more important in the future.

STUDENT SERVICES, Inc. has current, up-to-date information on any funding opportunities for students. A computerized database provides an intelligent alternative to traditional state and federal funding sources; at the very least, they should be considered an important supplement to government funding.

Blood, sweat, and tears part II - Stone age or what?

In a previous article, I said that moshing is artistic and ballet-like. For the most part, it is. It's our generation's way of letting out aggression when captivated by music. This is an interesting aggression though it is not directed toward anyone. It's not a seek and destroy mission but a bonding type of mission, (not just for males). One example is when a person falls on the floor. All action stops. The closest person to the fallen moshet helps them up, puts them on the back and thrashes them back into action. What has happened? People are taking advantage of the situation and trampling these fallen connies. Along with this I noticed that there is a disregard for security (who isn't always right in their jobs, but are there to keep us safe).

The Mosh Pit

There are two things I noticed at my last outing (Sepultura). Two males, one in a headlock - getting punched not once, but twice, at which point the poor fellow's nose started to bleed. Then I witnessed a security guard get his head handed to him on a platter (silver even) because he was keeping a crowd surfer from breaking his neck on the barricade. At which time the band had to stop playing to see what was going on and lend a hand to the poor guy. Two of the bands that opened up for Sepultura were forced to stop in the middle of their set because of this nonsense. This isn't moshing, this is insanity!

This isn't the only time I've seen such immaturity. At Blind Melon the crowd broke the barricade. This was caused by this overwhelming urge to touch or be seen by the lead singer, Shannon Hoon, by every person who wasn't up front. This caused about a twenty minute delay and brought about a sense of panic among the people in the front because the crowd kept pushing forward, crushing the people up front even more. At Living Colour the band was forced to stop in a few instances where there were problems with the crowd. I can understand the excitement of seeing your favorite band, but gee whiz, do we have to completely forget that we're living in an advanced soci-ty? Do we really have to act as though we're idiots and tear things or each other up to the extent that the bands are disgusted and just walk off, even if it's not the end of the set? This is supposed to be fun, not a survival of the fittest. Ugh, us males should have no need to beNeedendarthy!

I'm not saying all of you do it. I'm saying those of you who have dediced or are deciding to mosh for the intent of hurting another human, the pit is NO place for you or your bud-dles.

They're only human

by Elizabeth C. Drew
Staff Writer

I've had the privilege of going along on several interviews recently, first as an observer, then as a photographer, and finally as the interviewer. As my first, I was scared to death. I mean, I was shaking and with The Gin Blossoms and the Meat Puppets and other equally impressive people. This was a big thing.

Then there was last week, and the big Sepultura concert. No, I didn't meet Sepultura (I wish), but I did have the opportunity to speak with a band called Clutch. While we were outside frantically searching for their tour manager, we ran into the drummer, Jean Paul Gaster, and he invited us onto their tour bus for an interview.

I pretty much sat through that interview in silence; afraid to ask a stupid question and have them laugh at me. Finally, with a bit of encouragement, I spoke up and asked the lead singer, Neil Fallon, a few questions. Guess what? It didn't hurt a bit.

Having come to the realization that these people are, in fact, human, I was ready to go out on my own (but not quite, I still took Mr. Features Editor along with me for moral support). Last Sunday night, in a place called the Last Call Saloon, a band called 'Th' Faith Healers played. This is a truly unique band with a unique sound that reminds me of a cross between the Pixies and the Sex Pistols. Driven by Tom Cullinan's gui-itar, Th' Faith Healers deliver a powerful performance on their latest CD, Imaginary Friend. Joe's drums, Rosanne's vocals and Ben's bass round out the sound of this London based quartet. Although they admit that they are not as polished as other more well known bands, they say that they just want to have fun, and that is what they are doing.

Racism workshop held

By Darius Broadnax
Production Editor

Dr. Michael L. Fischer conducted a workshop on reducing racism and bigotry. The workshop was held at the Multicultural Center (MCC) on Thursday, March 17th. Fischer's workshop included a lot of discussion and interaction from the audience. The workshop helped get to the underlying feeling which was hurt because anger is a secondary emotion which Fischer expressed. Another topic was for people to listen instead of trying to defend themselves or their race. Fischer expressed that it was a learning experience for him because the students were very open.

There was tension, in the room, especially when sensitive topics were discussed but Fischer would interject to calm the situation. The student's received packets which contained articles by Dr. Michael L. Fischer, multicultural tests, and solutions for individuals. In attendance were students mainly in particular positions within the University such as Student Assistants, Office Assistants, Teaching Assistants, and Lab Assistants. Fischer expressed that the students that belong at the workshop probably were not in the audience. Due to time constraints and the openness of the group their wasn't chance to get to the solutions. Racism and bigotry was pointed to fellow students, faculty, staff, and administration. Rhonda Simmons, office manager of the MCC, when questioned about the workshop stated, "I think it focused more on the problems than on solutions but posed an excellent arena for students to vent frustrations about their problems."

Food drive needs help

by David Palermino
Staff Writer

Phi Kappa Sigma in collaboration with the Rhode Island Dietetic Association are supporting. National Nutrition Month, here at Johnson & Wales University by sponsoring a university wide food drive.

Food may be dropped off at all of the resident halls or given to a Phi Kappa Sigma brother. All the food collected will be donated to the City Meal Site and the St. Paul Ministry. Low-income families, homeless and the elderly are the general recipients of the donated food. They receive the food through food drives, emergency food pantries and shelters.

National companies such as Quaker Oats, Kelloggs, Pillsbury, General Mills and General Foods donate mislabeled packages, test market samples and overruns to this worthy cause.

The Rhode Island Food Bank is a nonprofit organization with a tax-exempt status. For every dollar donated to the food bank, $15 worth of food is donated to them.

Susan Connery, the Director of Community Service at JWU has been working closely with Chad Patek, Community Service Chairperson of Phi Kappa Sigma regarding the fraternities involvement with soup kitchen volunteers.

"The brotherhood of Phi Kappa Sigma has helped tremendously," responded Susan when asked how she felt about the groups involvement here on campus. She went on to say, "The soup kitchens went so well, I continue on page 12"

While traveling abroad: Leave home without them

by David Morra
Managing Editor

For those students who are planning to travel abroad whether for education or vacation, there is a new report just released from The Department of State Bureau of Consular Affairs.

This report is about the dangers of carrying drugs abroad. It seems many Americans are smuggling drugs across borders trying to make some quick cash, but what they are finding is that it means a quick trip to a local jail.

People tend to think that they cannot get in trouble if they are American citizens. This is not true! Once you leave this country you are no longer protected by American laws.

They cannot demand your release or get you out of jail, represent you at a trial, give legal counsel, or pay legal fees and/or fines with U.S. Government funds. Do not be fooled into thinking that even a "small" amount or drugs is easy to get away with. The report states that Americans have been arrested and possessing as little as a third of an ounce of marijuana. Even if you are caught smuggling without knowing you are smuggling, ignorance of the law is not an excuse. You can still stand trial. If you get caught you can also face: interrogation and delays before trial, lengthy trials, years in prison and in extreme cases, death!

You might be asking what is the best way to avoid any of these mishaps? Most importantly, do not possess any drugs. If, for medical reasons you must take medication prescribed by a doctor containing narcotics, carry a doctor’s certificate attesting to the fact that you need this medicine and keep all medicines in original and labeled containers. Also do not carry packages or drive a car across a border for anybody you do not know. Once you’re in the possession of something, whether it’s yours or not, it becomes yours.

Lastly, if you are planning on going abroad, please keep in mind that as long as you’re wary of these types of situations, traveling abroad can be an exciting and unforgettable time. If you would like further information contact: The Bureau of Consular Affairs, Dept. of State. Public Affairs Staff at (202) 647-1488. In the event of an emergency, you can contact: The Citizens Emergency Center of the Bureau of Consular Affairs, Department of State at (202) 647-5525. Mon.-Fri., 8:15 a.m. to 10 p.m. For after hours, weekends, or holidays, ask for the Citizen Emergency Center duty officer at (202) 647-1512.

.. no visitors continues

because a ring that was stolen, was later found down the hall from where it was stolen from, it must be an "inside job." This theory is also shared by JWU Safety & Security and the Providence Police Department according to Bennett.

After the posting of the visitor restrictions, it was pointed out to Bennett that the policy may conflict with the Student Life & Academic Handbook, in which it states on page 50 that visitors may only be barred on an individual basis, as opposed to the no visitor policy being implemented. Following the questioning, a resident at Bell Hall asked a Resident Assistant (RA) regarding the length of visitor restrictions, in which the RA responded, "Until next Sunday." Then Bennett responded, "Or until Jason Bach calls my boss and bitches and moans, or until David Reinhold gets a hold of Paula Keogh."

Security officers shut the door to enforcers as Providence Police arrive.

In response to his statement, Bennett said, "That was said in jest, with no harm meant to any individuals." Sunday afternoon, two individuals were apprehended by JWU Safety & Security walking on the fire escape between Bell Hall and the building that houses WALR Radio. The two individuals were questioned by JWU Safety & Security and Providence Police, then released. The individuals were notified that their presence on any JWU property in the future, will result in their arrest.

Congratulations to all the women who made the 1993-94 Johnson & Wales University softball team. This season’s players are co-captains Ann Reno and Kerry Long, Jenn Chase, Beth Ann Tiffany, Kelly Beneit, Andrea Cataldo, Ruth Ann Ruocco, Anny Prozzo, Tracy Minto, Janinne Lang, Torrey Demand, Tiffany Borto, Laura Schwemel (not pictured) and Meredith Ehrich. Ehrich, who was injured during practice last week, will not be able to play until April 2nd. The first game of the season on Mar. 27 was cancelled due to rain.

The coach for the team is Ron Bachman, Associate Director of Athletics.

The 1993-94 softball team is ready to photo by Thatsany Somsamuth strike out of the field its opponents. The players are currently preparing themselves for the season.

Basketball finishes, second place

As the basketball season comes to a close, for the second time this 1993-94 season, the Johnson & Wales University men’s and women’s basketball teams finished the year in the Southern New England Athletic Conference as runners-up.

Both teams finished second place in championship games hosted at the Culinary gym. The final games of the season were played against Newberry College. The JWU men’s team finished with a record of 8-8 and the women’s team finished with the outstanding record of 17-4. With these season records and the assistance of coaches Dave Morris for the men’s team, and Carey Sheehan and Jane Bowers for the women’s team, the teams achieved second place with JWU participating at the intercollegiate level only in its second year.

Four of the Griffins players were selected to the All-Tournament Team, a recognition given by the conference to the best players of each team in the conference. They were Billy Barnett and Eric Liggini for the men, and Dowshia Thompson and Melissa Heyboer for the women.

Tennis ready to match-up

by Lilliana Cortez
Sports Editor

The Johnson & Wales University tennis team is getting ready to play a full set of matches on the court this 1993-94 season. The women’s tennis team is composed of 11 players, including coach Sean McCaffrey. This is McCaffrey’s first year as coach and he has the title of Junior College National Doubles Championship Runner-Up.

The team consists of five freshmen, two sophomores, a junior, McCaffrey, and team captain Mark Neri. Tennis team advisor Dr. Allan Freedman and Athletic Director Ron Bachman look forward to an outstanding season.

The Griffins will be starting its season on Tue., Mar. 29 at 4 p.m. at CCRI. The team will be playing a total of 12 games for the season, including matches against Mitchell College and Roger Williams University. Dr. Freedman says he has hopes for the team to become Division III of the Southern New England Athletic Conference this year.

For a complete schedule of the men’s and women’s tennis games, contact Evelyn Colon in the Athletic Department at 456-1724.

Wellness Fair coming soon

The Fitness Center is sponsoring the Wellness Fair on Wed., Mar. 30, from 11a.m. to 3p.m. in the Harborside Academic Center. Outside organizations as well as University departments will have booths at the fair. Some participating organizations are LensCrafters, RI Project AIDS and RI Blood Center.

Booths will range from podiatry to spiritual wellness, substance abuse treatment, massage therapy and nutritional education. This will give students, staff and faculty the opportunity to fill out personal evaluations and obtain valuable information about health and wellness.

Included in the program are three workshops. Beginning at 11a.m. to 11:30a.m. and again from 11:30 to noon, David Procure will be conducting a program "Relaxing Your Way to Success." Then from 12:30p.m. to 1p.m., Dorothy DeLesso will give instructions in Nutrition. Then at 1:15p.m. to 1:45p.m., Joanne Legg will lead a session in "Cozy Aerobics." During each workshop you can win an official Wellness Fair T-shirt and other souvenirs. All workshops and evaluations are free, and refreshments will be served.

For more information, or if you're interested in attending the workshops only, contact Sandy or Kristen at 456-1462, and leave your name, number and the workshops you are planning to attend.
