Student Activities thief
asked to come forward

by Chris Vell
Staff Writer

During the weekend, $60 was stolen from the office of Orrville M. Forbes, assistant director of Student Activities, in the Friendship Building. The building is locked Saturdays and Sundays, but security did let in several people. Since the exterior doors were not tampered with, the thief either had a key or was inadvertently let in by security, or by someone already inside. All clues point to an inside job. Mr. Forbes came to work Monday morning and found his office door lock jammed, as though forced open with a screwdriver. No signs of vandalism were found in the office itself. The petty cash box containing the money was locked inside a filing cabinet, which was broken into. There is no doubt in Mr. Forbes’ mind that the thief knew exactly where the money was, since no other offices were touched.

Cail A. Zabatta, director of Student Activities, shares the same feeling, as does Claire Gendron, assistant director of Student Publications. Ms. Gendron says, “It’s got to be an inside job; it just seems too accidental.”

Security officials questioned the students who had been let into the building, but no one was accused and nothing conclusive has yet developed. Security could not be reached for further comment.

Mr. Forbes says he would consider the incident over if the money was anonymously returned. If not, action will continue to reveal the thief.

It seems oddly ironic that this money was stolen from Student Activities, a department that tries to better the situation of the student body of JWU. The lesson to be learned is that, in this day and age, trust is a precious commodity. Obviously someone is guilty of this crime, yet the indictment is on everyone.

Lack of Leadership + Irresponsibility = No Yearbook

by Brandi Baran
Staff Writer

Graduating Seniors, are you sitting down? Perhaps you’d better. Our yearbook, the Johnsonian, will not be out this spring due to a lack of responsibility of the staff. The editor and most of the staff have been relieved of their duties from the Johnsonian because, “They were simply not doing what was expected,” stated Claire Gendron, advisor of the Johnsonian.

The staff has missed their past two deadlines, so production days at the plant were missed. The publishing company that Johnson & Wales works through, Walsworth Publishing, has contracts with many other schools to fulfill, and it would be unfeasible for them to set back each one of their clients’ deadlines to due the staff’s irresponsibility.

When asked of the advisor’s role in the yearbook, Ms. Gendron commented that “Whenever I asked how things were going, they reported that everything was ‘O.K.’ I gave the editor the deadlines at the beginning of the year so he would be able to let his staff know in advance. But if things really were O.K., the deadlines would have been met and we’d have our yearbook in May.”

For the past five years the yearbook has been out on time, and “the staffs have been wonderful,” commented Gendron. The yearbook has received the Associated Collegiate Press award for three of those five years. Last year the Johnsonian was honored as the National Marketing Sample for Walsworth Publishing Company in the New England region. This year ended that tradition.

Rest assured though, the Johnsonian will make it to final production, eventually. Regrettably, not in time for graduation. So, seniors who were planning their yearbook signing parties, you’d better get a scrapbook party because yearbooks won’t be distributed until this coming fall (no, you won’t have to come here to get them). Student Publications will mail them to your home address. This means however, that you should have filled out the yearbook registration cards that were mailed to you. If you missed that deadline, the good news of this whole fiasco is that you now have a second chance. Cards will be available at Student Publications, located on the second floor of the Friendship Building.

To the new director of Student Publications, Lindsey Levesque, this “has come as quite a shock because people who had been entrusted with such responsibility completely dropped the ball. This is not just a disappointment to the department, but to the entire University as well.”

The Johnsonian staff is now being restructured and restrained. Anyone interested is invited to join, whether it be as a writer, photographer, and/or graphic layout designer. If you’d like to be on staff but can’t spare the time during the school day, the office is open until 7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays.

For all of you who will be graduating that following spring, the ‘95-96 Johnsonian is projected to be out on time.

Clubs and organizations
recruit at Spirit Nights

by Katchena Ellis
Staff Writer

Various clubs, organizations, sororities and fraternities could all be found Tuesday in Xaver Gym and Thursday in Culinary Gym to participate in “Spirit Night.”

Their purpose was to advertise, perform, inform and hopefully draw newcomers from interested students who attended.

About 200 students filled the gym moving from table to table collecting pamphlets, signing their names on interest lists, asking questions, talking, laughing and learning what each club had to offer.

“It’s a great way of knowing what options you have when you want to join a club,” said Jill Guindon, sophomore class president.

Among some of the performances were stepping by the Fit Squad and Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., singing by the United Ensemble Gospel Choir, and modeling by the Johnson & Wales Fashion Club.
Have you been disappointed with the University's newspaper?

If so, read on.

(Happy New Year) Because the winds of change (New Director) are shaking things up (regrouping with the student editor desks) in the Student Publications Department (Campus Herald, Johnsonian, and more). We need more people!

In fact, this is a call for submissions (articles, events coverage, events summaries, human interest stories, profile articles, essays, reports, news mentions, arts & entertainment previews or critiques, letters, editorials, calendar items, and just about anything interesting that is written intelligently, plus photos) from either you (friendly, witty, articulate) your department spokesperson (clerk, or office assistant has the 'in' on just about everything), and students (grad and undergrad) to tell us (write or call) what's happening (good news/bad news), when (coming up or an anniversary event), where (dorms, classrooms, lecture hall, laboratories, kitchen, workshop, outdoors/indoors, offices, anywhere of interest to the JWU community), and why (any good reason will do).

Get involved (write something, call us, or send your best students' names, perhaps assign a project incorporating writing an article, refer us to a talented friend). Help the JWU newspaper better reflect the University community it serves YOU!

You know best what's going on in your neck of the woods, so let us in on it.

We'll thank you for it.

Phi Sigma Kappa efforts recognized by Mayor

A letter from Mayor Vincent Cianci thanking Phi Sigma Kappa for their assistance at City Hall’s tree lighting ceremony in December.

Dear David:

Once again, the efforts of Phi Sigma Kappa made for a festive and joyous tree lighting ceremony on the steps of City Hall. I don’t think that the original St. Nicholas was a Greek, but your fraternity has definitely given Providence’s holiday season kick-off an added flair. As the heart of this thriving city, it is wonderful that City Hall can add some seasonal cheer to the hearts of everyone who travels through its doors.

When I attended the dedication of Johnson & Wales’ new Weybosset Street campus a few months ago, I couldn’t help but think how much this institution and its students have given to the character of Providence. your efforts in helping our city with the tree lighting ceremony are typical of these contributions; how fitting that they served to welcome in the season of giving.

I hope that you enjoy the enclosed photograph, and that it finds a place in your collection. With the holidays upon us, I send you the warmest of season’s greetings and as always, my best wishes and regards.

Sincerely,

Vincent A. Cianci, Jr.
Mayor of Providence

RK Consulting offers financial aide options for college students

In addition to the high cost of tuition, students are often frustrated by uncomplicated forms, long processing delays and the many restrictions involved in financing their education.

According to Rosemary Kastner, president of RK Consulting in San Clemente, California, which offers rapid access to available scholarship information. “Private companies have scholarships available to college and vocational school students which re not dependent on Grade Point Average nor demonstrated financial need because students do not have access to these private sources of funding, millions of dollars go unclaimed each year,” she states. Companies receive tax benefits for supporting education and what to distribute these funds rapidly to student meeting basic requirements.

“Over $100 million dollars in scholarships were unclaimed during the 1990-1991 academic year. There are literally millions of dollars available to students and thousands of private companies which have funds available,” states Kastner. because the database is constantly updated, the scholarship information and availability is current. “If you received this information in a book format, the information could quite possibly be out dated before you even apply for funding,” Kastner states. “Many funding sources are also renewable for up to four years,” she adds.

A typical financial aid application can take hours to complete, involve complicated formulas and detailed background information. “Our application is brief and can be completed in 15 minutes or less,” says Kastner. She says, “Private companies want to make it easy for the student to apply for and receive this assistance. Because they are private companies, they are not bound by many of the regulations which impact government funding sources, and so do not need such in depth information.”

The applications process is also non-restrictive, as the program applies to an accredited academic program (university, private college, junior college, trade school or vocational program) located within the U.S.

Because the application procedure is more brief, there is less time required to process the results. Applications can be processed as quickly as one week. “We make every attempt to make the process streamlined,” states Kastner.

If furthering your education is important, shouldn’t you be exploring every available option. Students should apply as soon as possible to ensure receiving aid for the 1995-1996 school year.

Renovation of Providence homes underway with Christmas in April

In 1973, volunteers in Midland, Texas decided to devote on day in April to repairing the dilapidated homes of low-income, physically challenged or elderly neighbors in their community. “Why, this is like Christmas in April,” they were told.

Christmas in April USA was born. This year volunteers from Brown University, Rhode Island School of Design, Providence College, Johnson & Wales University and the HELP coalition (10 independent colleges and hospitals in Providence) helping the City of Providence and its people) will renovate the homes of elderly Providence residents and people in need.

On Saturday, April 29 from 8:30 am – 4:30 pm, Johnson & Wales volunteers will rehabilitation 1-2 homes in the Providence area. During the day we will be plastering, painting, landscaping and doing carpentry work.

Home Depot will offer February of March construction skills training for volunteers rehabilitation the homes. 100 volunteers are needed for the Johnson & Wales University Christmas in April Providence project. Call Susan Connery to sign up (596-2989).

Attention all clubs!
All Sororities!
All Fraternities!

Maybe you feel constantly slighted because your group never gets any good press!
Maybe you've submitted something once or twice or ten times and it didn't get printed once or twice or ten times.
and you're mad as hell (can we print that?) and not going to take it anymore!
Maybe your group's news was printed and printed wrong! wreaking absolute havoc for everyone!

Well, if so, we're sorry.
But we want to start over.
Here's how you, too can get good press:
1. Target someone who is literate in your Fraternity, Sorority or club.
2. Persuade this person that they have been selected because they are special and
3. They can write about your group's events for publication in the new and improved Campus Herald.
4. Tell the person they will be rewarded greatly if they report, write and submit to the Campus Herald.
   (Omit the part about the rewards not necessarily being monetary & stress the learning experience.)
5. After all you're special and everyone wants to know your news!
6. Act now!

Invitation extended to fraternity
by Liliana Cortez
Staff Writer
On Sat, Feb. 4, Sigma Lambda Mu Fraternity will be attending the annual National Latino Convention to be held at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey. Various national Latino fraternities and sororities such as Sigma Lambda Beta, Lambda Upsilon Lambda and Sigma Lambda Gamma will be attending the convention, of which Sigma Lambda Mu was invited to attend.

The convention is being held to bring together Latinos from across the nation to discuss various issues affecting Latinos on university campuses and how to help the Latino community at each respective university. The purpose of the convention is to also seek ways to help Latinos work together to improve solutions to problems affecting them on campus.

Keith Rodriguez, secretary of Sigma Lambda Mu Fraternity, expressed that this convention is an opportunity for those attending because it's a way of finding out what is happening at other college campuses, and together find solutions to problems affecting Latino students.

Fill your insides with warm sensations

by Linda Beaulieu

Johnson and Wales University

Sean O'Hara is an expert when it comes to hot winter drinks and interesting old cocktails. What does he recommend after an afternoon of skiing? Sip on his Hot Buttered Cow. What can warm your bones after digging out from the latest winter storm? Try his Hot Peppermint Patty. A Hot Buttered Cow is made with hot milk, rum and spices. A Hot Peppermint Patty combines peppermint schnapps with hot chocolate and creme de menthe.

As an instructor at Johnson & Wales University in Providence, R.I., O'Hara teaches the principles of beverage service, and that includes learning how to make Café Josephine, a classic hot coffee drink which consists of Napoleon brandy, black coffee and the essence of oranges. O'Hara also teaches his students how to make Glogg, a mulled wine popular in Sweden, and he shares the recipe for one of his original creations, the French-Italian Connection, which combines Chambord and Frangelico liqueurs.

When O'Hara entertains at home, he dazzles his guests with the dramatic presentation of Café Diablo, the ingredients for which include cognac, Grand Marnier and espresso coffee. Café Diablo is a very sophisticated coffee drink, often prepared tableside in fine dining establishments. The cognac and Grand Marnier are ignited, and the flaming liquid is poured down a "horse's neck" into coffee cups.

A "horse's neck" is a strip of lemon or orange peel cut from the fruit in a continuous spiral and usually served as a garnish in a cocktail. In the recipe for Café Diablo, the rind is stubbed with cloves approximately one inch apart. As the flaming liquid cascades down the "horse's neck," the cloves begin to glow — like the eyes of the devil. Hence, the name: Café Diablo.

Not all hot winter drinks require alcohol, O'Hara notes. A Hot Peppermint Patty, for example, can be made with peppermint extract, instead of wine. Apple cider can be mulled for a steaming warmer-upper. A number of extracts and flavoring oils are now available for the hot toddy of your dreams.

Hot winter drinks such as these can be served in coffee cups or in wine glasses.

A bit of advice from O'Hara: Whenever you plan to pour a hot beverage into a wine glass, try to warm the glass ahead of time. Also, it's wise to pour any hot beverage down the metal spout in the glass which absorbs the heat and prevents the glass from cracking.

O'Hara suggests that you try some of his recipes and then experiment with your favorite flavors, such as hot coffee drizzled with chocolate truffle liqueur and a splash of triple sec for a hint of orange flavor.

Cafe Diablo

2 teaspoons sugar
1 and 1/2 ounces cognac
2 cinnamon sticks
1 horse's neck
6 ounces espresso

Combine sugar, cognac, Grand Marnier and cinnamon sticks in a pan and place on low heat. Add the horse's neck. When the liquid starts to steam, place the horse's neck with the point of a long-handled fork. With your other hand, use a ladle and remove a small portion of the liquid and expose to flame until it ignites. Carefully raise the horse's neck and pour the liquid down the rind. The liquid in the pan will ignite. Continue to pour the flaming liquid down the horse's neck until the cloves glow bright red. Extinguish the flame with the espresso and simmer for a few minutes for the flavors to develop. Remove the horse's neck and serve.

If you prefer to avoid flaming drinks, you can make Café Diablo by combining all ingredients, except for the espresso, in a pan. Simmer over low heat for 5 minutes. Add the espresso and simmer an additional 3 minutes. Remove the horse's neck and serve.

Hot Buttered Cow

2 1/4 teaspoons allspice
Pinch of salt

Beat sugar and butter together until thoroughly creamed and fluffy. Beat in vanilla and spices. Chill.

For each cup to be served, place 1 and 1/2 teaspoons butter in a preheated mug along with 1 and 1/2 ounces dark rum and 1/2 ounce gold or white rum. Stir well. Fill with hot milk and serve.

Hot Peppermint Patty

(Serves 1)

1 ounce peppermint schnapps

Pour schnapps into a preheated mug of large wine glass. Add the hot chocolate. Garnish with whipped cream and drizzle with creme de menthe.

Café Josephine

1 and 1/2 ounces brandy
6 ounces black coffee

Place the liqueurs in a preheated mug or large wine glass. Add the coffee and top with whipped cream. Garnish with orange peel or candied orange and mint.

French-Italian Connection

(Serves 1)

3/4 ounce Chambord (raspberry liqueur)
1/4 ounce Frangelico (hazelnut liqueur)
6 ounces black coffee
1/4 teaspoon cloves

Combine liqueurs, coffee and spices. Add 6 ounces of chilled cream and garnish with orange peel or candied orange and mint.

Mulled Cider

(Serves 4)

6 cups apple cider
3 tablespoons light brown sugar
5 cinnamon sticks
6 cloves

Simmer the sugar and cinnamon sticks with 6 cups of apple cider. Add 6 cloves and allow the mixture to cool. Add whipped cream or vanilla ice cream. Stir and serve. Garnish with slices of orange.

I've just cleaned them all up and pitted them against each other as if there were no different styles of music. So hang on. Here we go, from swinging from the rafters to just plain chillin' yo!

None of these bands rankings are set in stone. These groups have rocked the planet into a new orbit. If you don't agree then send in your own Top 20. Just remember though, my list will be RULE!!

1. King's X - Not only is this my favorite band of all time, but their release, Dogman, was incredible. The package was so tight the dog on the front cover was holding his breath. This band has paved the way for bands like Pearl Jam, Alice in Chains and Galactic Cowboys.

2. Clutch - A great number of you may not know who this band is but these four lads from Maryland can rock the house down better than the big boys.

3. Sepultura - These fellows know how to work a riff. Their release, Chaos A.D., has thrash fans and even served it on a silver platter.

4. Pantera - When a bandsays that they're going to come out with an album harder than the last and then do it, all that can be done is step aside and bow down and kiss their feet when they walk by.

5. Danzig - This is no joke band, even with all of the hype and junk surrounding this band. The new album, Danzig 4, is potent enough to make any nonbeliever a believer that Danzig is worthy of the number five slot and if that's not enough, Glen will do the convincing.

6. Snoop Dog - So he got into a little trouble. He can still cut some serious lyrics and beats that hit like a Sonic boom.

7. Queensrche - Always delivers a electrifying guitar riffs with ethereal vocals that every album leaves you in state of awe.

8. Ice-T Bodycount - Monster riffs with the ever powerful chant of Ice-T makes this one of the few CD's that never leave the CD player.

9. Ice Cube - Between the acting and music his work never fades into the so-so category Cube busts it up on every release.

10. Biohazard - Killerband, killer riffs, killer dudes, killer everything!

11. Tom Petty - I know some of you are saying he whines to much and plays his guitar too acoustic like. Well he can whistle all he wants because the boy can play and he administers hit after hit after hit, guess, yup you guessed it, HIT!

12. Graveliggaz - Don't go out alone, they're comin' up behind you and... Oh well, they got you and it doesn't hurt so bad either. The members of Wu-Tang, Stetsasonic and the Producer of De La Soul and Tribe Called Quest get together to show you fellows how it's done. This first effort was done quite well. No pink anywhere.

13. Helmet - Pummeling waves of metal power with precise drumming that leaves you groping for the nearest pole or solid object because they will blow you away.

14. Soundgarden - Even with short hair, Chris Cornell and the gang are still the Sataman (with long hair) of the Seattle scene. A little less grunge but still a lot of punch.

15. Pro-Pain - Hey, you add a guitarist, change the vocals to a haunting shrill scream and it's time to mosh or just stand there and shake your head like you're into it because these guys are Cah - cool.

16. Dee-Lite - Let the rhythm move you and let it take control. Trippy, trippy dance music takes over the slot that Technotronic once had. Pumpin, pulsating beats that will make you want to dance. If not that then maybe jump up and down, like you're on a pogo stick.

17. George Clinton - Funk is back and it's time to Funk it up. The master of funk is tearing it up just as if he was a young spring chicken from the days of Funkadelic.

18. Anthrax - Finally, these fellows quit goofin around with songs like I'm The Man and delivered some that raw, precise metal fury that we've been long waiting for.

19. TLC - What can I say they're beautiful, sassy and just plain cool.

20. Megadeth - Last but not least. The new album is good but not the best they could do. I'm sure the concert will be up a couple ten or twelve notches above the album so hold on and enjoy.

They are it. The rockiness, rolliness, smashin, stompin, riffin, dudeman in, roughhousiness, chilliness, killeress and lampinsness bands around. If any of these bands are crustian through this area, stop all activities and check them out or I'll just tell you how cool it was to hang out with them. It's your choice. Until next time, Peace, love, music and King's XI!

On Fri, Jan. 20, the Johnson & Wales Athletic Department sponsored the third Midnight Madness Basketball Game. Five teams participated in this event: Ross, Red Dogs, Psychosomatics, Kool Whips and Smokin.

Each game was 20 minutes long, and the players of each game advanced to the next stage to finally reach the finals. The first game was between Red Dogs and Rossi. Rossi won the match with a score of 40-28. The next game was Psychosomatics versus Kool Whip, with Psychosomatics advancing to the next opponents. The third match was with Smokin and Rossi taking it to the court. Rossi walked away by defeating Smokin 29-17.

The next game was Red Dogs against Kool Whips. The Kool Whips were prepared to take on its opponent, as the players were ready to eliminate Red Dogs and advance to the semifinals. Jay Bryant from Kool Whips ran the ball to the net for a slam dunk and lead the game to a close 42-19. With a good defense, the Kool Whips defeated Red Dogs 69-19.

The following game was Rossi against Psychosomatics. During the first period, the two teams were out to keep each other scoreless. However, Rossi shot out Psychosomatics in the first period. But Psychosomatics went into the second period with a rebound to defeat Rossi with a final score of 3-29.

Next was the process of elimination as Smokin and Kool Whip faced each other. Kool Whips constantly rebounded the ball and unloaded an excellent offensive game. However, into the second period of this match, Smokin slowly began to retaliate, but not on time to beat the buzzer. Kool Whip defeated Smokin 32-24.

The next game was to determine who would face Psychosomatics for the final game. Rossi and Kool Whip went out to win the game...no matter what. The score went back and forth, as each team went for opportunity lay-ups and offensive and defensive rebounds. In the middle of the first period, tension began to build up, but Rossi proved itself by defeating Kool Whips in a close final score of 32-30.

The last and final game between Psychosomatics and Rossi was a match of skill and determination, as both teams were out to win and become Midnight Madness Champions. Psychosomatics were out to defend their championship title (the team was Imperial Dogs last year and won the Midnight Madness Championship title). Ozzy Beggrow started the action as he went for a three-point shot and put both teams on the edge. But Rossi began to pick up the pace, and in the middle of the first period and into the second, and they were defeating Psychosomatics. But due to time constraints, the game had to be postponed until the next day. The closing score Friday night was 32-23, with Rossi winning.

The game continued on Saturday afternoon and ended in a very close battle. Rossi defeated Psychosomatics with a final score of 30-28.
