Hugged your SLA lately?

by Jamie Whicker
Contributor

What becomes an Senior Lab Assistant (SLA) most?

Well if this SLA had to narrow it down into one sentence it's this: I live for nothing more than helping my fellow students better themselves through the active pursuit of academic excellence by way of the technological advance of this, the information age. Ok somebody get a running start and SLAP ME REALLY HARD!!!

Let's take a really deep breath, relax and take a brief look at exactly what it is that we, the Senior Lab Assistants of the Academic Computer Services, have to go through on a daily basis.

Most people think that working in a computer lab is akin to taking a short trip to the tropical climes of the Virgin Islands. Except for the Olympic-sized pool in the back of the coordinator's office, the chaise lounges, and the odor of coconut wafting through the air, I really don't understand how anyone could get that impression.

No, unfortunately, the tasks set before the Senior Lab Assistant are tantamount to troubleshooting at a trampoline testing facility; for the most part, it's a lot of fun, unless one of the springs snaps.

The departments are headed by coordinators who, in my opinion, are the greatest bosses with whom I've had the honor of working, (gratuitous brown-nosing). Actually, to insure that our days are filled with much activity, they keep us busy with such tasks as; sitting, gazing at the monitor, and the occasional cocking of the eyebrow which communicates to the student that we are involved in something intriguing.

When we are not engaged in these very critical duties, you can find us typing (oh, excuse me, the correct phrase is word-processing) reports, scheduling classes for instructors that reserve the labs to familiarize their classes with the intricacies of accessing and storing data crucial to the completion of their various

As one chapter closes, a new one begins for USA

by Robert J. Hosier
1994-95 President of USA

As my four year tenure at the University comes to an end, there are many people I need to say thank you to.

The list is enormous, so I will just say thank you to every one who has assisted my team in creating a new student government that the university community can be proud of.

There is one person who is always there for me who I must give a special thank you to. I have known my roommate for four years. He has acted as my assistant, my sounding board, a great volunteer for student government and most importantly, my best friend. Thank you Jason Marquez, I will never forget anything you have done for me and for USA.

It's time for the 1994-95 team to step aside and let the new team take over.

To my team; I know I was tough with you, but I hope you know it was because I wanted all of you to experience success. I truly love all of you and I will miss you.

To the Class of 1995, let me leave you with a quote from President Roosevelt, "Let me assert my firm belief we have nothing to fear but fear itself."

by Diana Brewer
95-96 President USA

With the coming of spring and graduation, we are all looking forward to who will lead the leaders of tomorrow today. I am excited that you, the student body have elected a highly qualified group of individuals to continue to lead student government into the new school year.

We have already begun working with the old members of student government so that we will be able to "hit the ground running" to get the concerns of the student body heard.

Some of the issues that we will work on are: getting the students more involved in community activities, providing more information about the USA appropriations committee, and having a monthly meeting with: the President's of USA, Clubs Council, and Greek Letter Council.

We hope to orchestrate a well-voiced roundtable that will enable students to discuss problems and issues, creating a forum for governing bodies working together for a common goal — improving JWU.

This is a sample of what you have to look forward in September. Remember, it's not enough to find problems. You must voice these problems and work along side USA to get the desired results. After all, it is the students that make the university what it is today.

Return to the Islands

by Doris Sock
Co-editor

Recently students celebrated the Caribbean Fest introducing people from the Mainland to happenings in the islands. The theme of the celebration was "Bachannel in the Islands." so people from the islands can get together, cook, decorate tables, and dance to island music.

Island representatives attended from: the U.S. Virgin Islands, the British Virgin Islands, Barbados, Jamaica, Trinidad, Tabago, St. Martin, Haiti, Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, Cuba, Bahamas, and Cape Verde.

Kahlil Donovan, who coordinated the event says thank you to all of those people who helped to make the Caribbean Fest possible. "I was under a lot of pressure and stress but I tried to stay calm and focused."

Booths were set up from each island with food and information about each island. Food ranged from Mutton and Curry Chicken to Pollo Frito. "It was a cultural experience," said Mirtha Peralta.

Each group danced traditional dances including merengue, salsa.

Many students from different islands attend Johnson & Wales but mainly the U.S. Virgin Islands, Jamaica, and St. Martin. This festival was to let students from the mainland enter into the magical world of the islands and have a great time in the process.

Other clubs contributed to the event's success. SOAR sold flags from the different islands and the International Club provided the drink specialties from different islands.

The intercollegiate Horse Show Association (IHSA) Equestrian Team a very successful show season.

Through the guidance of coach Luis Denizard, the twenty-six equine team members achieved fourth place among fifteen regional colleges.

Members who scored thirty-five points qualified for regional competition at Stonehill College. Riders who qualified are: Robin Vogel, Christine Phillips, Sandra Fowler, Nancy Hartlen, Lauren Ash, Carolyn Shaw, Jana Wagner.

At regional competition, the riders who placed 1st through 3rd were qualified to compete at a higher level including: Sandra Fowler, Nancy Hartlen, and Jana Wagner.

The final level is the National Competition at Colorado State University in May. Both Sandra Fowler and Jana Wagner will be going to the nationals. The team said they thank Luis Denizard for his continued patience and coaching, which helped them reach this level of success.

Members of the 1994-'95 equestrian team are: Sandra Fowler, Russell Morgan, Carolyn Shaw, Robin Vogel, Cassie Aslte, Kristi Norris, Lauren Ash, Taryn Briskin, Erin Longworth, Christine Phillips, Kristine Thompson, and Jana Wagner.

Walk-trot-canter: Amy Daum, Christine Drayton, Stacy Flynn, Nancy Hartlen, Anna Jacques, Nadine Johnson, Sheryl Miller, Respah Mitchell, Kenda Tuttle, Rebecca Willis, and Genny Wilson.

Walk-trot: Jackie Gangone, Jackie Croteau, and Robin Bolen.

Some of the problems that students may encounter in the lab involve (those) who, for one reason or another, are intimidated by the mere presence of technology. Bear in mind that these are the very same students who can easily manipulate an automatic teller machine to access vast amounts of cash, or can waste their friends or roommates in a friendly game of Mortal Combat, but, when it comes to computers they approach them with the apprehension of the typical garbage collector who has been called to the hospital to conduct emergency brain surgery.

I recall one student who came into the lab carrying a vile of Holy Water, Wolfbane, and garlic and referred to the computers as "Spawns of the Pit." Actually that's not entirely true, we don't allow food items into the lab.

For the most part, the questions asked of us are relatively simple and most of the time, once answered, we usually don't hear them again from the same person for about a good 30 to 40 seconds. Some of the more popular questions include:

- How do you turn this thing on?
- Why did the twenty pages I just typed disappear?
- Do you realize how emotionally scarring it is to miss Melrose Place because I have to type this report?
- How do I save my file?
- Do you think Marcia Brady's hair was bleached?
- What's the number for 911?
- Does the lab close at 10:45 or quarter to eleven?
- Do you think Joe Montana will finally retire after this season?

JWU helps neighbors in need

Dear Editor:

On behalf of Phi Kappa Sigma and the Community Service Office at Johnson & Wales University, we wish to thank everyone who contributed so generously to the National Nutrition Month Food Drive. This was a large scale effort which we coordinated with the Rhode Island Dietetic Association's Hunger Committee.

After working at St. Charles Soup

Kitchen and at the City Meal Site for the past year, we have seen that donated foods are needed throughout the year and not just on major holidays. This food will help us prepare nutritional meals for our neighbors in need. Again, thank you for your efforts.

It's not really so funny

Dear Editor:

I've just read the article entitled "What's so funny" and I'm sick to my stomach about what I've just read. I've never read anything like this in my life. I attended the Alpha Phi Alpha cabaret which I enjoyed. There are always two sides to a story and Alex's was bias and full of bologna. I understand freedom of speech and I don't think it means telling lies or half truths for sympathy. If Alex wouldn't have given the comedian the "bird" than he wouldn't have reacted in that manner. Alex's giving him the bird was unjustified! First of all she wasn't the only server there at the time and if she felt like she didn't want to be there then she should have stayed home. Secondly - she sounded so dramatic I felt like I've just read a script from a soap-opera.

Alex's story was full of half truths, if Alex wanted sympathy and compassion she should have told her story to Ricki Lake!!!

Students stumble upon important information

Dear Editor:

Although there are many exciting opportunities and events at Johnson & Wales, students miss many of them due to lack of communication between the faculty and the student population. Needless frustration is a regular event when trying to gain information regarding programs such as Co-op, practicum, financial aid, financial planning, scholarship and grant deadlines as well as any upcoming events or guest speakers. Students need one easily accessible place to go to get information and answers to their many questions. Why are Financial Aid and Financial Planning different departments? What exactly does the Student Success department do? Is Elvis still alive? While all this information is undoubtedly available somewhere, the average J&W student does not know where to find it.

This confusion is often further compounded because although many offices are aware of their responsibilities they are not as well versed with other with other department's functions. They don't know who does what, they just know it's not them. Seemingly, the only current and reliable source of information is other students who either stumbled upon some information or navigated the complex route to an answer themselves. An information network should not be this muddled. Several simple steps could be taken to help alleviate many problems.

1) The creation of a central information center in the Commons with hanging wall files containing information indexed by subject and department. Material from any program remotely concerned with academics and student life should be represented.

2) A bulletin board in the Information Center, Freedman building, and Hospitality Center detailing any upcoming deadlines or events. These boards should be maintained and updated by the school, rather than free for all repositories of expired information that currently exist.

3) The creation of a general information hotline and a program for interdepartmental education about other offices. Any such education should include the front office and reception personnel who are the liaisons to the student body and bear the unfair burden of student aggravation. A hotline could easily be incorporated into the existing switchboard.

4) Mailings targeted toward individuals eligible for scholarships, Co-op, advanced standing or any special programs applicable.

While all this data is out there, we just cannot find it quickly or conveniently. It's often like pulling teeth to find an answer and since there is no one location to go to, the teeth come from different mouths.

Short Takes

Rock around the clock!

The Johnson & Wales Rock n' Roll band comprised of Faculty Administration, and staff is looking for two people: A guitarist and a person to play keyboards (piano, organ). If you are interested in getting together to play music from the 50's, 60's, and 70's with existing band members, call Kevin Bittle (X1896) or Chris DeSessa (4639).

Volunteer to Share

You can provide the extra hands needed to assist with child care work, clerical work, computer/data share, and special projects/mailings.

You should help because you'll be able to share your life experiences and skills, learn something new, and feel good about helping your community.

For more information, call Cheryl Hopkins, Volunteer Coordinator of Family Resources, Inc., at 766-0900.

Join the battle!

Are you interested in hosting the Boston Alumni Reception, Battle of the Dorms, networking or attending a convention in Cincinnati, Ohio on May 26, 27, & 28, 1995. If you are come to the next Student Alumni Association meeting. We meet every Wednesday at 4:30 p.m., second floor of Plantations Hall. Come join the excitement.

Building futures

Spring Fever Hits

Johnson & Wales celebrates Earth Day

The live entertainment during Earth Day drew many students to the street between classes.

This past Thursday, April 20th was Providence's celebration of Earth Day. The event featured several booths such as Keeping Providence beautiful and many other environmental exhibits. Water Action, The Energy Conservation Exhibit, Celebrating a clean RI, and more. An attraction of the event was a stage set up right in front of Xavier where many students gathered for classes. Thursday was a beautiful day and many students elected not to go to class in order to enjoy the atmosphere to spend a few minutes basking in the sun and listening to good music.

Others celebrated the day, by sitting on the grass in front of McNulty Hall. Lynn Miller felt that "these are some of the last days that we have left. It couldn't have been better to spend with some friends."

April is almost over and many students will be graduating and moving on. They will spend as much time as possible with their friends as soak up as much sun as they can. Even when we sit in class, our attention is on what's going on outside, not in.

This page is dedicated to the coming summer and to all of those students who will miss the school. Thank everyone who was involved this year in the Herald to help put the paper out.

We hope that everyone has a great summer and good luck to all the students who will be back in the fall.

I love you Lynn, Oh yes, I do!
When you are not with me, I am so blue!
Love, Dr. Shell

Jon and Kevin, I'm still mad at you for leaving me! But I'll get over it. New Jersey and New Orleans are not at the end of the earth. I'll come visit, I promise. I just hope that you know that you'll be missed. I'm going to stop now because I'm going to cry. Jon-when Jill and I move out the couch is yours-if you can get it out the door! Love Berta

Bye Jennie Creig, The past few years have been great. Keep in touch next year and good luck always. Lylas Stephanie G.

"Junior"- Thanks for all the things that you thought I didn't notice- from entertaining my house guests to being around when I needed you most. I love you as a "sister", and a best friend, Wendy. (P.S. Don't worry if you don't find a job- there is always the monestary)

"Evil K"- from that first "jump" to our "final walk"- it was the up's and downs that "built to our walls." Our friendship can withstand it all, and the memories will remain with me always! Love, Wendy

Phi Sig's: It's not the end- but a new beginning. We've walked as "one"- and forever in our hearts "We will stand." Good Luck!! Wendy Good Luck to all graduating Phi Sigma Sigma's. We'll miss you! Love your sisters!

To the Anzahla Spring 95 line of Delta Sigma Theta: Because we're so PHAT, I know we will be seeing each other over the summer, to all the rest of my fly sorors, what more can I say but ooohoop! Love Monique(DSQ)

To my Soror Joelle: congratulations on your acceptance to Harvard University. You go girl! I know you will get up there and blow up. Thanks for everything you've done. I will always look to you for guidance. Love Monique(DSQ)

To Sonji, So your outta here right? Congratulations on bringing one of the flyest lines into Delta Sigma Theta. You go prophyte! I will truly miss your funny jokes. Love Monique.(DSQ)

To Michele, Congratulations on graduating, but too bad you won't be going nowhere. Ha! Ha! That's o.k. because spring 95 needs you around. I would wish you good luck in medical school, but I know you don't need it. You will always be my North Star. Love your Soror Monique(DSQ)

Jason Marquez my roommate for life, I will miss you! Have a great life because I know you will never call me again. You were my one true friend at JWU! Love Bob "Shell Man" Hosier

To Amy Padden: I am very upset that our college years have come to an end and you have never given an opportunity to express my internal love for you. I hope our paths will cross later in life. I will always be waiting for you. Love President Hosier.

Hey USA! Don't mess up next year, please! I miss you pals, Bob President Brewer, Be tough!. President Hosier

To my fellow Greeks: As this is our last issue before summer break, I just wanted to thank all of you for taking your time to send in articles. Without your help, there wouldn't be a section for Greeks. For those of you who haven't taken full advantage of this service, next year is a new beginning. With everyone working together, we as Greeks can represent ourselves to our fullest extent possible. See you in the fall, David E. Crane (TKE) Greek Correspondent.

I would like first of all to thank everyone here at the Campus Herald for making the year an interesting one. Lindsey, thanks for listening to all my ramblings about my family. Brandi, thanks for putting up with my creative side. We're going to have a ball next year. Lynn, thanks for typing all year, we're going to miss you next year, Good luck in Buffalo. Chris, don't kill us in your car next year. Jeff, do you like a June wedding? Bob, thanks for the great party and Bryan thanks for the Jewish passover lessons.

I would also like to thank Sara for helping me to make it through the year. Don't forget Chef Ho's and Fort Adams. FHA was great this year. See you next year. Have fun in Alaska Thanks also to my other roommates for keeping the year interesting. Thanks also to Rica and Chris, I love you guys with all my heart. Love, Doris Friends forever, we'll just have to see-but the girls of 520 we'll always be! (How will things ever be the same?) I'll miss you-Love, Brandi

Lindsey, thanks for this great opportunity! I've learned so much from you already, and this is just the beginning! Doris, the best is yet to come! Thank you for bearing with my 'peculiarities'—just think, you have all of next year with me! Lynn, I'd need bi-focals without you! Thank you so much for help-I'll never forget you! Bryan, here's to a great summer! And to all 7 of our readers, thanks!

It's that time of year again: Time to be moving on, packing up, moving out. Time to hunt down that summer job. Time to cram for those last finals. Time to say goodbye. Time to realize that there just ain't no more time. Time for this, the year's last issue of the Campus Herald. And certainly high time to cut to the chase and get to the point of this desultory stream of consciousness.

That is to say, from all of us at the Campus Herald staff, a heartfelt good bye to each and everyone of you loyal readers. Keeping you posted with University events and news has not always been easy this year, but attempting this task has been our pleasure. We hope you've gleaned articles of useful information from our efforts. Here's to a great summer for everyone. Enjoy the sun, drink smart, take care, and come back in the Fall. We'll talk to you then. But for now, the show's winding down. The action's nearly over. And out. And this chase could sure use a cut. Cut.

American dream unveiled

Drawn by: Tony Demings- JWU security
 "The J&W University Hall Library and Executive offices building is of unique design. It's exterior granite surface shows its strength and support of the student community. For many students and staff, the library also has a soft relaxing atmosphere to study in. Remember, the library supports the students and the students support the library."

Trinity Repertory Company, under the artistic direction of Oskar Eustis, presents what Eustis terms "the centerpiece of the season," the world premiere production of God's Heart, written by Craig Lucas and directed by Lucas's long-time creative partner Norman Rene.

The finale in the 1994-95 season, God's Heart is an imaginative and provocative chronicle of both sides of the American dream. Part science fiction, part social satire, part sweeping epic, the play integrates a number of story lines and state-of-the-art video technology to explore some of the most important racial and moral issues of our time, including drug abuse, the unchecked media, the increasing division of America into the haves and the have-nots, and even immortality. Eustis cites the work as a prime example of Trinity Rep's renewed commitment to new plays and says, "I'm incredibly proud and excited about God's Heart, not only because it begins Trinity's association with a great play, but because of the aesthetic leap it represents for Craig Lucas. I've always loved his work, and this play places him firmly in the ranks of America's greatest and most important playwrights."

Performances of God's Heart are in Upstairs Theatre at Trinity Repertory Company's downtown Providence location. Curtain times are 8PM Wednesday through Saturdays, 7PM Tuesdays and Sundays, 2PM on selected dates. Individual ticket prices range from $24 to $30, with student, senior citizen, disabled, military and group rates available. A limited number of half-price tickets are available the day of performance for walk-up patrons. Student rush tickets, priced at $10, are available for students who come to box office with a valid ID two hours before performances. For ticket information and the exact schedule, please call the box office at (401)351-4242. Visa, MasterCard and American Express holders may also reserve by phone.
