Janelle Marchini: Editor-in-Chief of the Johnsonian.

As we grow into adulthood,
our marks yet to be made...
...Our lives we hold in our own hands,
we know where destiny lies,
like that sun on the horizon,
I will,
you will,
we all shall rise.

Yearbook, still in production.

By Jennifer Hawkins &
Doris Sock

*Are you a Johnson & Wales student?
If the answer is yes, than this should be of interest to you.*

You're creating history! The yearbook staff is revved with enthusiasm and dedication to produce a yearbook that truly represents the university.

Janelle Marchini, Editor-in-Chief, Robert Dearstine, Chief Photographer, and Staci Ingrassia, Student Publications Office Assistant spent many of their summer days within the walls of the Friendship building preparing to capture memories yet to be made. Since then, over 50 students have been actively participating in creating the Johnsonian.

"Help set a standard of excellence by contributing your ideas, photos, stories, poems, and/or time to this effort that will forever mark the university in which you received your education," said Marchini.

There are many committees that need chairpersons and team members.

Please call the office at 598-1486 to find out what might be for you.

Small Step for sorority, giant leap for kids

By Monique Robinson

On Sunday, September 24, the members of Lambda Iota chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. proudly watched their young pupils at Allen African Methodist Episcopal Church deliver an astonishing performance in front of the congregation during their Annual YPD Day.

Allen AME, located on the south side of Providence, has created YPD (youth development program) for the children and teenagers of the church to involve them in activities that keep them off the streets and raise them in an environment where they can learn skills and feel as though they are a part of a family (The Allen Family). At the same time they are learning about God and respect.

YPD Day is a day each year where the children put on a show for the church which consist of various performances.

For the last couple of months, DSQ has been voluntarily working with one of the groups of children between the ages of 8 and 12. Every Thursday evening DSQ spends time teaching the children how to "step," a form of entertainment which involves stomping feet and clapping the hands to a beat then adding words.

The group was named "The Allen Stars". DSQ tried to use techniques such as appointing the best stepper as the step-master to lead the other children and communicating with the children in such a way so that they did not look at the sorority members as teachers, but as friends.

"Teaching the children to step was much more difficult than I expected, we had to deal with children who constantly cried because they felt they would never get it right," said Sheronda Rochelle, president of the chapter.

When YPD Day actually came, the church was filled with members of Allen

AME as well as members who had come from other churches in RI, CT, and MA. But most frightening for the children, it was also filled with their parents and family.

When the announcers said that the Allen Stars were next, various members of DSQ said to themselves, "I just know they are going to mess up. Some will even give up and march out because they are so young and have done it so often in practice."

After hearing their cue, the children marched in together. In front of the church they delivered a performance so well they even surprised themselves. They received a standing ovation, and most importantly raised their self-esteem "We were all so proud of them, they look at us as their big sisters and we look at them as our babies," said Rhonica Galloway, member of DSQ.

After the entire show Sister Pringle, who directed the whole program, called various members of DSQ who worked with the youth, up to the front of the church and presented them with a little gift to show their appreciation for all their hard work.

Sister Pringle mentioned that she often wondered what sororities did, and now she knows. "With all the negative associations associated with sororities we were glad we had the chance to show the other side. The side often ignored. Perhaps the greatest things we obtained from this whole experience was the misconception that no matter what we do or how we present ourselves, we are looked at by the youth as role models even if we don't realize it. Because of this we have an automatic responsibility to them," said Monique Robinson, vice-president of DSQ. In the future, the chapter plans to continue serving as mentor to the children of the church.

Students support Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention Programs

by Theodore Hammett, Ph.D.

As new students arrive on campus this fall, alcohol and other drug (AOD) abuse- by other students as well as by themselves- can put them at physical risk. New students may not be aware that binge drinkers represent a minority of the student population and that there are things that they can do to mobilize the non-binge drinking majority, and the school's administration to support and adopt comprehensive programs to prevent AOD abuse.

If you doubt that the binge drinking problem is serious, consider these incidents. But a sampling of those occurring at the nation's college and universities during the past year:

Item: At the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth last May, five members of the hockey team were charged with sexually assaulting a female student. The hockey players and the female student had spent the afternoon drinking together.

Item: At an initiation picnic last spring sponsored by the Texas Cowboys, (a social booster group at the University of Texas) an underage pledge after a drinking game and other activities involving alcohol- drowned in the Colorado River.

Item: A student at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh collapsed at a fraternity party last December and died after reportedly drinking a fifth of Southern Comfort and some Jack Daniels; the coroner's report said he had a blood alcohol level of .54 percent- more than five times the amount needed for a drunk-driving conviction.

Item: At the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill last April, an 18-year old freshman celebrating the end of the Spring semester with a night of heavy drinking fell to her death as she tried to climb a maintenance ladder to the roof of a classroom building. If there was a lesson to be learned from the death, it didn't take: Five weeks later, a UNC-Ch senior celebrating her 25th birthday was found lying drunk and unconscious in an alley, her ankle broken in a fall from a fire escape. One week later, campus police found another unconscious student, who had fallen and hit his head against a door after excessive drinking.

Clearly, many people come to college to drink and get drunk. At the so-called "party schools," more than half the new freshman will binge drink their first week on campus. That's what a study by the Harvard School of Public Health of four-year colleges and universities found earlier this year, despite the fact that most freshman are too young to drink legally.

Yes, they want to get an education- if they last long enough- but they want to "have fun," too. For some, it's often hard to figure out in advance where having fun ends and where problem drinking begins. Figuring it out afterwards is easy.

Problem drinking is drinking that causes problems. For the binge drinker, the problems include hangovers and illnesses that may adversely affect studies and academic performance, as well as injuries and even death. Moreover, binge drinking has deleterious effects for other students, such as interrupted sleep and study, property damage; fights and accidents; and acquaintance rape and other sexual assaults.

Fortunately, these are problems with potential solutions. Research shows that only a minority of students at four-year colleges engage in binge drinking, defined as consuming more than four or five drinks at one sitting- the kind of drinking that leads to problems. At 44 percent, it's a large minority, but it's minority nonetheless.

That means non-binge drinkers, and people who don't drink at all, represent more than half the student body on most four-year campuses. Other data show that about one-third of all students would just as soon not have alcohol around at all.

These students have a right to speak up and not tolerate drinkers impairing the quality of their education and their campus life. They should be encouraged to do so. After all, look at what non-smokers have been able to achieve to clear away the environmental tobacco smoke that once permeated public area and facilities around the nation.

On many campuses, college administrators are helping students discourage underage and binge drinking and fight the peer pressure to drink, but their efforts are often fleeting and fragmented: Alcohol Awareness Weeks; sobriety checkpoints; training for alcohol serving staff; and so forth.

New students and, indeed all students, concerned about the problems associated with AOD abuse can encourage administrators to establish a comprehensive prevention strategy tailored to the unique characteristics of their campus. Such strategy will likely combine some new and different ideas with existing campus programs and activities not previously identified as part of a substance abuse program. Elements of such a program include:

Establishing substance-free housing. The University of Michigan first set up such living arrangements in 1989, and 500 students signed up. Last year, 2,400 student- 30 percent of the undergraduates living on campus- were housed on substance-free floors in 15 different buildings.

JWU students say goodbye

THE CULINARY TEAM

Common meringue, Bavarian cream, it was all a part of being on the culinary team.

Day one was the day we all assembled together, even though we were asleep through some of Chef Welling's lecture.

Day two we jelly rolled like it was Jelly's Last Jam' we made mistakes, but that was OK because we knew the stuff would get eaten.

Day three and four, Italian meringue followed by Creme brulee crashed through the door, too bad some of it end up on the floor.

Day five and six, we cooled things down by making the best sorbets in town.

Day seven and eight, we tore up the place making delicious sponge cakes.

Day nine, day nine, a day that will always be stuck in time. A time when we lost a member of the team, a young culinary soldier with great hopes and dreams.

Our petit fours are bitter, our cakes don't rise, because it seems we have stopped in time. Although we are sad, our friend has moved on to a place that is even far better than in the locks of our arms. Cook on earth again, he will not, but it's good to know that he's preparing meals for the almighty Boss. Sleep on Douglas we'll all see you again when we meet in that big kitchen in the sky.

A tribute by Harry Clerk

As many students know, the memorial service for Douglas Burack was on Thursday, September 28. Friends and family came to say goodbye to the nineteen year old culinary student. Classmates wrote a poem for their friend and a speech from Diana Brewer was part of the memorial service. Burack died on Wednesday after being injured in a car accident.

From the Campus Ministry Office

Sr. Fran, SND, Catholic Campus Minister at JWU welcomed about 30 students plus administrators, faculty and staff to the Fall Trimester Opening Mass at St. Francis Chapel on Weybosset St.

Four students: Isabelle Mendez, Christian Lopez, Evelyn Rios and Stacie Ingrassia assisted Fr. David Convertino, OFM and Sr. Fran, SND in distributing the Eucharist. Erin O'Gara and Dr. Gene Burns read the scripture passages for the Liturgy of the World.

Michael Tellier, Director for Worship at the Chapel, inspired the community with beautiful music and his melodious singing voice. Michael was accompanied on the flute by Cheryl.

Fr. David Convertino gave a most inspirational homily and one student stated it was the best homily she had ever heard. Dr. Morris Gaebe spoke to the community just before the end of Mass and expressed his hope that we all continue to make Sunday Worship a way of life. Dr. Gaebe ended with a reading of the poem: "Footprints."

Mass was followed by an open reception during which the JWU community members and Campus Ministry had a chance to introduce themselves and get to know one another and initiate friendships.

Weekly Sunday liturgy will continue throughout the year at St. Francis Chapel, 58 Weybosset St., 11:30 a.m. Come and join us.

Campus Safety & Security: Be careful out there!

Every year the University suffers losses of money and equipment. Many thefts can be avoided with simple preventative measures in three key areas: cash control, equipment access, and key monitoring, including frequent lock changes. With your help, we can protect the University from many of these needless losses.

Most thefts are not planned out, they happen when an opportunity to steal is realized by the thief. To prevent this sort of crime:

1) Keep cash and personal valuables in a secret and locked drawer, box or better yet, locked safe when it is not attended.

2) Always be diligent in following your standard cash handling procedures, even if there have not been recent loss in your department.

3) Limit the cash you keep on hand to only necessary amounts, and make frequent bank deposits; more cash equals more temptation for thieves.

4) Let as few people as possible have access to extra cash; if someone does not need access, then that person should not have access.

Typewriters, TVs, VCRs, computers, and other valuable equipment are frequent targets for thieves.

1) Keep equipment in secure cabinets in locked rooms when not in use.

2) Limit access to the rooms and cabinets to those who need access.

3) When use of the equipment is complete, be sure it is returned to locked storage right away.

4) Ensure that the equipment in your room or department is permanently marked for identification; Campus Safety and Security maintains engraving tools for that purpose.

Keys and locks are some of the most important elements in protecting the University from crimes. Safeguard them as you would valuable equipment.

1) Leave keys on your person or in a secure place, not on your desk or out in the open.

2) Report lost keys to the person who issued them right away.

3) Have malfunctioning locks or doors serviced right away.

4) If you are the key issuer for your department, keep an accurate and current inventory of available keys. Also keep track of who they have been issued to.

We all have a responsibility to prevent crimes to University property which naturally extends to protect personal belongings we keep in our dorms and workplaces. Good security practices will limit potential thieves from access to both.

If you have any questions about improving your inventory and cash control, please contact Colleen Sullivan in Internal Auditing at X1495.

If you have questions about engraving, or crime prevention topics, please contact Cpl Murdocco at X2947, who will get an answer for you.

The Lemonade Stand

Love Jones: not trying to change the world, just to entertain a few people.

by: Gary W. Wagener
Staff Writer

The '70s pop culture revival trend continues to rear its ugly, and sometimes not so ugly head throughout the 1990s. From those anatomy-sculpting, one-size-to-small tee-shirts, to the non-stop onslaught of cable reruns featuring the Brady Bunch, Sanford and Son, and Welcome Back Kotter.

In the last three years or so, a growing cluster of bands have decided it's time to return to the AM pop of the 1970s. Mind-twisting, good-time, funkadellic soul, to roller boogie too. One of those '70s sound resurrecting bands is Love Jones.

Love Jones second album titled "Powerful Pain Relief," taps into a blend of '70s pop styles. "The album presents a varied template of 11 songs guaranteed to soothe sore eardrums, from the Stax swagger of "You Don't Know Me" and the pumping roller boogie of 'Roll-On' to the soul daddy balladeering of 'World of Summer' and the '70s AM pop of 'Help Wanted'."

Perhaps the most intriguing, definitely most entertaining track, is the revised "cop theme style rocker, "Vigilante." Scene of the crime / gangland execution, that's when they call me / outside of the law, I'm your retribution Vigilante me." 'Vigilante' has the familiar bass lines and lyrics of '70s crime fighting TV icons Starsky and Hutch or Shaft.

Louisville, Kentucky's Love Jones formed in 1990: Jonathan Palmer (vocals), the Daughtrey brothers, Tom (vocals, guitar) and Ben (vocals, congas), Stuart Johnson (drums), and Barry Thomas (bass). After the release of their first album, "Cocktail Nation," Love Jones found a staining label of lounge band, thrust upon them. Yes, Love Jones is a savoire-faire lounge band and much, much, more. As they prove on "Powerful Pain Relief": a colorful mix of Latin Jazz, doo-wop, swing, and flashback funk, that exceeds the predictions made of Love Jones future. On tour with the Afghan Whigs and solo, Love Jones has been winning audiences amongst the modern rock circle, as well as the mainstream. Love Jones who are on the Zoo label, were noted and signed, with the help of pain philosophizing rockers, TOOL.

A welcome reception to Love Jones has been given by industry and the general public. Through entertaining performances and charming personas, Love

Belly & Backwash blast a small, but eager audience

By Prentice Murphy
Staff Writer

People are trickling in the doors of the Culinary Gym, students, guests, and last but not least the bands. For those who did not attend "the show," and there was quite a few of you.

Belly and local band Backwash rocked the gym two weeks ago. I had just walked in the door when the lights went down, but I could still see that the place could fit more people. Backwash was moving the crowd with grinding guitar riffs and booming drum beats.

After the first couple of songs the audience was really thrashing to the sound filling the space. A half hour of power pop behind me and still more to come. During the set change I walked around talking to friends about the less than optimum attendance and concluded that most students would rather stare at their monotonous walls than be entertained by a cool band or even two cool bands.

My thoughts were halted when the crowd started clapping and cheering for none other than Belly. The bass and drums rumbled in the rafters and then the swirling sound of guitars rounded out the night. Everyone I talked to had a good time; I can't speak for those of you who missed out. Student Activities will have more shows... Hopefully people will support them.

C-4 Students Knock out Competition

by Kenn Boyle
Sr. Staff Writer

Ladies and Gentlemen weighing less than 250 lbs...Johnson & Wales C-4 program... For the 2nd consecutive year, JWU's C-4 student team knocked out the competition for "National Student of the Year" sponsored by the Society for Food Service Management (SFSM) in Dallas. The bout featured contenders from Weidner University in New Jersey, University of San Francisco, Penn State, University of Houston and Washington State University. The tag - team of Avi Dieter and Tiffany Sawyer successfully defended the belt won last by Jasmine Clark and Liz Gross (Who later picked up a bronze at the International Competition held in London last year).

The match consists of two parts; the first was the Mini - Lesson competition which consisted of a presentation featuring American Regional foods or cuisine while the second part was a series of three rounds of questions on Culinary knowledge (like Culinary Jeopardy. I'll take Holland for 1000, Alex).

Tiffany and Avi felt out their opponents in the first round and scored 11 out of 20. In the next 2 rounds they brutally punished the challenges with a powerful A V series of stunning answers. The judge's cards showed the team to have won the last rounds 31 to 26k. Chef James Griffin, Director of the Culinary Bachelor degree program, the team's trainer, and corner man stated " They won due to the high level of performance during the Q & A period. I predict that were taking the gold in Berlin in 96" !"

Avi Dizter, stated "I felt excited about competing for the school and look forward to seeing the Culinary Olympics in Berlin next year. It should be a lot of fun and great opportunity for networking."

The winner and still champions...JWU C-4!

CraneLift For Cancer Will Help Camp Hope

The Johnson & Wales University Chapter Phi Sigma Fraternity and Sigma Delta Tau Sorority are organizations devoted to assisting local charities and organizations in fundraising and awareness.

This year's Crane Lift for Cancer will help Camp Hope of the Rhode Island Division of the American Cancer Society. Camp Hope is a one week camp for children with cancer and their siblings.

Over the past three years Phi Sigma Kappa has helped raise over 20,000 for the American Cancer Society, and this year with the accompaniment of Sigma Delta Tau we're trying to surpass our original goal of $10,000.

This year's Crane Lift will be Friday, October 20, 1995 from 10 am - 7 p.m. The daytime show hostess Carolyn Fox from radio station 94.1 WHJY will broadcast live from Kennedy Plaza in Providence. They will be spinning records and doing their regularly scheduled show, high atop an enormous crane.

As active local Greeks we appreciate your contribution or donation for the American Cancer Society. The auctioning of your contributions will be both live at Kennedy Plaza and over the airwaves of WHJY.

Sorority Memories Last a Lifetime

Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority

The memories of your summer will last a lifetime, but we all came together before school and celebrated a special way.

Camp Aldersgate was swamped with Sigmas the weekend of August 26 - 27. When we arrived, our teamwork was challenged in a ropes course. Sisters talked around a campfire and caught up as we reviewed policies and discussed goals for upcoming year.

Convention is a national three year event that was held in San Francisco, California this July. Ruth Ann Ruocco and Angie Corman were there and experienced sisterhood on a national level.

"Underwater Monopoly" helped gained us a place on Robbie Page Memorial Honor Roll - Look for details this spring! The next Convention is in 1998 in Tyson's Corner, Va. Sigma Sigma Sigma will be celebrating it's 100th birthday.

Back at school we welcomed back freshman at Greek Day with our paper flowers, move ins, and a water balloon fight. It was nice to see so many new faces!

Some of our upcoming events include hosting Judge Mitchell Crane, a Risk Management Speaker. He will be visiting the University on Saturday, October 14 at 7:00. Judge Crane will be speaking on issues and concerns about Greek life survival.

and Delta Sigma Phi will be sponsoring this with us. ALL are WELCOME!

At this time we would like to extend a warm Sigma WELCOME to SUSAN, our National Consultant, The GAMMA CLASS, and our greatly missed RHO CHI's, ALLIE and HEATHER!

The Sisters of Kappa Phi would like to welcome all the students back to school. The Sisters are looking forward to an exciting new academic year. They would like everyone to be involved in their activities to come: so be on the look out for KAPPA PHI Sorority!

Strong Roots

Each week Strong Roots will spotlight the achievements of some of historically important names of ethnic minorities.

This week we highlight Maya Angelou, one of the most prolific Black authors of our generation.

Some of her works include: I know why the Caged Bird Sings and Still I rise. Here is an excerpt from Still I Rise.

*Does my sexiness upset you?
Does it come as a surprise that I dance like I have diamonds at the meeting of my thighs?*

*Out of the huts of shame
I Rise
Up from the past rooted in pain
I Rise
I am a black ocean, leaping and wide,
Welling and swelling I bear the tide.*

*Leaving behind nights of terror and fear
I Rise
Into a daybreak that's wondrously clear
I Rise
Bringing the gifts that my ancestors gave,
I am the dream and the hope of the slave*

*I Rise

Experience your government

by Doris Sock
Senior Editor

Are you majoring in Government, Political Science, Advertising, Business, or Hospitality? Then Mayor Cianci and the State of Rhode Island want you! There are immediate openings in Mayor Cianci's office for fall and spring trimester internships. The internships involve working on government policies and initiatives in the Mayor's office or other city departments. Students will be able to work in the field of their interest as well as gaining valuable experience in special events, photography, and citizens assistance. The internship requires a commitment of twelve hours per week and students must provide their own transportation. They will also be working closely with students from Providence College, Brown, Roger Williams University, URI, and Bryant. Internship duties include researching data on truancy in Providence schools as well as compiling information for city publications and preparing press conferences. If you would like to participate, please call Dewolf Fulton at (401) 421-7740.

There are also major openings in the Rhode Island State Government. Internships focus on the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Branches and other state departments.

The internships enable students to participate in the State Government as well as gathering knowledgeable experience in the student's major. Interns must work eight to ten hours per week, attend weekly lectures, weekly readings, and take-home mid-term and final exams.

Students must be a junior or senior and have a 2.5 gpa or higher. For more information, please call Dr. Robert Jackson in W-219 at Ext. 1492. Applications are due in Mid-November.

On every 2nd and 4th Wednesday of the month, a faculty member will stop by the Multicultural center for an hour to talk with students in an informal setting. Here, Professor David Claire chats with Director Thom Gaines about world events, the role of advertising, about issues in our society.

Big changes hit computer labs all over Johnson & Wales

by Charlie Miller contributor

Three big changes have happened in the computer labs this year. Color printing is now offered, hours are extended at the Xavier Labs, and management of the labs in the Academic Center is now aligned with the other computer labs.

Realizing the students' needs for color printing, all labs have replaced their aging laser printers with color inkjet printers. While the cost for this service remains unchanged, the new printers offer color printing as well as improved laser-quality, non-color printing. The old lasers offered 300 DPI (dots per inch) non-color printing. The new inkjets offer 600 DPI non-color, and 300 DPI color printing. See one of the Senior Lab Assistants for details.

Sunday hours at the Xavier Labs will be extended to 9:45 p.m. starting October 1st. These extra two hours of lab time are being added for the convenience of students.

Probably the most important change in the computer labs is the transition of the labs in the Academic Center from the school of Technology to Academic Computer Services.

A Lab Coordinator, Dave Chandler was hired as well as three Senior Lab Assistants, to manage these labs. These labs, now referred to as the Academic Center Computer Labs, are open to all students of the University. Located on the fourth floor of the Academic Center, the labs are open seven days a week and offer Works 3.0 as well as the specialized technology software.

These labs are actually more convenient to many dorm residents than the Xavier Labs. Give them a try. Dave Chandler's phone number is JWU-2968, if you have any questions.

As a reminder, the hours for all three computer lab locations are posted on the JWU-INFO (4636) Line. This one phone number also lists a plethora of other information valuable to you.

Dining hours and menus, bus schedules, upcoming sporting events and student activities, listing faculty out for the day, operating hours for just about every function on campus including the libraries, and registrar information are all available to you at this one phone number.

Johnson & Wales University brings home the gold

by Craig W. Relly
VICA Correspondent

This past June 14 students from the Johnson & Wales University chapter of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) attended the Skills USA Championship in Kansas City, Missouri.

The event brought together the best competitors and leaders of each state, from the secondary and post-secondary levels. We are proud to report that the Johnson & Wales team brought home a gold, a silver, and multiple bronze medals.

Showing their support were advisors William Priante, Dr. James Brosnan, and NSO admissions recruiter Brandon Crosby.

The team competing in opening & closing ceremonies exhibited their talents and won the bronze. The team consisted of Amy Boulton, Melissa Caprio, Rachel Cobb, Alan Hart, Garret Jarrman, Alan Scott, and Denise Walsh. Demonstrating her skills in wine service was Tiffany Sawyer.

Tiffany's out-standing performance won her a silver medal in Job Skills Demonstration A.

Benjamin Kuchma showed his expertise in Baking & Pastry Arts by bringing home the gold for his work in the Commercial Baking Competition. Also, David Jackson a junior and former Johnson & Wales VICA President, ran for National VICA office.

His week of campaigning, assisted by Shari Jones and Lewis Crocker paid off when David was elected National Post-Secondary Treasurer. David will work closely with National VICA this year, sharing his knowledge and skills with the rest of the nation.

Congratulations to everyone, and best of luck in the year to come

Lady Spikers Win Two In A Row

On September 18, 1995, the Johnson & Wales University Women's Volleyball team was successful in defeating Lasell College 15-13, 15-13, 15-9. This win boosted the Lady Griffins' record to 4-3 and pushed them past the .500 mark for the first time this season. Although, Lasell took the early lead, JWU was able to catch up on a series of quality service points. Late in the game, Courtney Renk (Jr., Napperville, IL) brought the Lady Griffins within two points of winning with three straight service aces. Team captain, Kyra Ala (So., Soldotna, AK) scored the next two points to end the game and bring the final score to 15-13.

The second match was a lesson in never giving up. In the beginning of the game with the score 6-5, Lasell College scored seven straight points on service aces increasing their lead (13-6). Without quitting, the relentless Griffins demonstrated great teamwork and came back to win the game by a score of 15-13. In the final match, JWU kept up the pace and ended the game 15-9. Throughout the match, Michelle Gibbons (So., St. Thomas, VI) played impressively and had six kills, three solo blocks, and five service aces. Kristen Sells (Fr., Crum Lynne, PA) played great defense with six digs. Kyra Ala ignited the offense with eleven assists.

The Women's Volleyball Team continued to improve their record with a victory over Massachusetts Maritime Academy (15-7, 15-9, 15-9) on September 23, 1995. The Lady Griffins are now 5-3 overall. Michelle Gibbons led the offensive attack with 13 kills supported by Nancy Shelar (Fr., New Castle, PA) who assisted on 27 points. Carrie Annunziata (Fr., Neptune, NJ) provided the needed defense with 13 digs.

Tonizzo Helps The Griffins In Second Win

The Golf Team improved their record to 2-1 with a win over Emerson College at the Swansea Country Club on September 22, 1995. The Griffins Team scored 438 points compared to Emersons' 505 total points. Again JWU was led by Marco Tonizzo (Fr., Alexandria, VA) with a low score of 79 followed by Barry Cowgill (So., Marshfield, MA) who shot 85.

Men Split On Maine Trip.

On Friday, September 22nd, the JWU Men's Soccer Team shut out Maine Maritime Academy by a score of 1-0 in a well played game. The game was a tough defensive battle which was scoreless up to the end of the first period. Milton Johnson (So., Brooklyn, NY) scored the only goal of the game 64 minutes into the game, assisted by Brian McMahon (Fr., Swansea, MA). JWU dominated the shots on goal with fourteen (14) compared to only two by Maine Maritime Academy. Goalie Todd Hart (Sr., Merrimack, NH) had three (3) saves in net for JWU. "Steve Hanawait (So., Harrisburg, PA), in the fullback position played an excellent defensive game," said Coach Miller.

On Saturday, September 23rd. Although the JWU Men's Soccer team jumped out to a quick start, Husson College responded with three goals in the first and two more in the second period. Milton Johnson scored the first and only goal at 5 minutes into the game for JWU. Griffin goalie, Todd Hart had a poor outing allowing 3 goals and 7 saves in net. Kevin Lacey (Fr., Harvard, MA) had 6 saves and allowed 2 goals for the second half. Johnson & Wales University managed only 7 shots on goal compared to 13 shots by Husson College.

WOMEN'S SOCCER: Season Record: (1-4-1)

9/20/95 JWU 1, Lasell College 3

Upcoming Games:

Wednesday, 9/27/95 JWU vs. Teikyo Post University @ Providence Country Day 4:30 p.m.

Saturday, 9/30/95 JWU @ Framingham State College 1 p.m.

Still Looking To Pick Up Second Win

The Women's Soccer Team dropped another game to Lasell College (3-1) on September 20, 1995 in Boston. At half-time, Lasell College was already up by two goals. Even though, the Griffins had 17 shots on goal only Kristen Bley (So., Melvin Village, NH) could get one past Lasell's goal keeper. Rory Schepisi (Jr., Saddle River, NJ) had six saves in net for Johnson & Wales University.
