Recreation and Athletic Complex at Harborside opens its doors to an new era in University history

Last year it was part of the Harborside Campus’ parking lot, and the bus stop for Johnson & Wales University’s buses. Now the spot behind the Delaney Student Services Complex is the Recreation and Athletic Complex. It’ s open finally.

The seven million dollar complex was officially opened to the University community at a grand ribbon cutting ceremony last Thursday night.

The Recreation and Athletic Complex is a two floor structure that will host the home games for the University’s Men’s and Women’s Basketball and Volleyball teams as well as the Wrestling team.

The complex also houses the offices of the Athletic Department, Dean of Students, and Student Life, as well as spaces for programming events.

Dr. Bowen said that this building was “The mark of a new era and a milestone at Johnson & Wales” to be addressed the crowd of close to 2,000 students, faculty, and administrators. He continued to add that “We already have great residence halls, academic facilities, and now we have this” the Recreation and Athletic Complex.

All part of the plans to make Johnson & Wales a bigger and better University.”

Dr. Morris J.W. Gaebbe, Chancellor of the University, who was also in attendance referred to the new complex as a “palace” because of its size and meaning to the University.

The event co-sponsored by Pepsi, was a memorable one indeed. Over 1,500 people watched the men’s basketball team in action, setting a M&W all-time attendance record for a sporting event. All participated in a huge tailgating party in the parking lot.

It was an evening of historical precedent. An evening that brought one more member to the university. A member that promises to change the overall atmosphere of not only athletics but student life at Johnson & Wales as well.

Five Years old and still growing

University library set to celebrate five year anniversary on December 17th

By Dr. Helena Rodrigues
Dean of University Libraries

The center of Johnson & Wales University’s downtown campus is the library. The state-of-the-art facility, a retrofit of former television studios, occupies the first and second floors of University Hall at 111 Dorrance Street.

There is an atmosphere of respect created by the traditional interior design. The spacious main level with low shelving is open reducing the visual barrier created by tall book stacks. The interior features include intimate groupings of comfortable seating study rooms, and a bibliographic instruction classroom in which students receive the essential skills needed for optimum library research and utilization.

courtesy of the Public Relations Department

PROVIDENCE, R.I. - November 13, 1998 - "Why did I become a playwright? Because I really stink at acting," With that candid opening statement, Paula Vogel - playwright, professor and possessor of the 1998 Pulitzer Prize for Drama - captured the hearts and minds of more than 400 aspiring business executives, culinarians, and hoteliers enrolled at Johnson & Wales University.

In an admittedly hoarse voice, Vogel announced to the captivated crowd, "I'm going to talk about something I rarely do - read aloud from a couple of my plays," then launched into an extended reading of scenes from "The Misanthrope" and "How I Learned to Drive."

When she finished, Vogel challenged the students to think differently about even the most mundane activities in their lives. "How did you get to school this morning?" she asked. "Did you go into 'automatic pilot' mode? Is the routine so familiar that you sometimes don't remember driving here?" Nodding heads rippled the audience.

Then she turned the table. "How many of you have ever been in a car accident?" she asked. "A few dozen hands shot up. "What was it like?"

"Like being in slow motion." "Time seemed to stand still." "I felt like I was having an out-of-body experience," several students replied.

"That's just what theater does - shake you up, changes your perspective on everyday life," Vogel remarked. "All of us need to experience things that will wake us up, make us aware of who we are and what we're doing. That fresh perspective can be very helpful when you're faced with problems and challenges of everyday life."

At the end of her lecture, Paula Vogel was feted at a luncheon hosted by the University's John Hazen White School of Arts and Sciences. Thomas Farrell, Dean of Arts and Sciences, presented her with a professor's chair and a framed certificate proclaiming her status as the University's 63rd Distinguished Visiting Professor. Earlenn Bethel, a sophomore at the School of Creative Marketing, received a $1,000 Distinguished Visiting Professor Scholarship, given in Paula Vogel's name.

The John Hazen White School of Arts and Sciences was founded in 1992 to provide students in the University's College of Business, College of Culinary Arts, and The Hospitality College with a core liberal arts curriculum. The school's benefactor, John Hazen White, is internationally renowned for his strong philanthropic support of education and the arts.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. - November 20, 1998 - Dr. Maulana Karenga, creator of the Kwanzaa celebration, delivered his address, "Kwanzaa and the Commemoration of Our Past: Forging Our Future in the Spirit of Our Ancestors," on Tuesday, December 8, at Bishop McVinney Auditorium in Providence, R.I.

His appearance was co-sponsored by the John Hazen White School of Arts & Sciences and the multi-cultural Center, as part of Johnson & Wales University’s Distinguished Visiting Professor Program.

Later that evening, Dr. Karenga spoke at Johnson & Wales University’s Kwanzaa celebration. The festivities began at 6:30 p.m. in the University’s Xavier Auditorium. Admission was discounted with a Johnson & Wales student ID.

Dr. Karenga, professor and chair of the Department of Black Studies at California State University, Long Beach, is widely known as the founder of Kwanzaa, an African-American and Pan-African holiday celebrated throughout the world. He is the author of Kwanzaa: A Celebration of Family, Community and Culture, and twelve scholarly books, including Introduction to Black Studies, the most widely used introductory text on the subject.

Johnson & Wales University

85 Years of Excellence

Presented by Michael Miller, Student Life Editor

Information provided by Donald A. D’Amato & Richard Tarantino (A Dream that became an University 1997) Part One of Five

Within the next five editions of The Campus Herald, we will be paying tribute to Johnson & Wales University, to help celebrate its 85th Anniversary. Please continue reading The Campus Herald, so you could learn about Johnson & Wales University, "American Career University."

"In 1914, Gertrude J. Johnson & Mary T. Wales launched a fledgling business, Johnson & Wales School of Business, with a clear focus and a defined mission. Today, eighty-five years later, Johnson & Wales has grown into a multi-campus international University which, in many ways, appears to have undergone a dramatic metamorphosis. Indeed, it has! However, upon closer inspection, Johnson & Wales today is strikingly similar to the school of its humble beginnings."

"The Johnson & Wales University library is fully equipped with the necessary resources from the printed text to the computer research network which enables me to complete my assignments on time. In addition the staff is always willing to assist students on their research methods."

Sanjeev Krishna, graduate school, Patna, India.

"I am really impressed with the library, which is one of the best in the country as far as student facilities are concerned. With [options] such as no ceiling on the number of books that can be checked out [for] any period of time, to accessing all libraries across the globe -- the list is endless. A modern, world-class library; with excellent ambiance. Truly superb."

Alicia Woodall, Freshman, Arcadia, FL, Business Administration.

"I enjoy working at the library. I especially enjoy working behind the reference desk [on the second floor], where I can help a great amount of students."

Hans Heglund, Gothenburg Sweden, Advertising-PR/Marketing.

"The Johnson & Wales University library has excellent facilities. Group study rooms, study booths, and plenty of seats make the library a very good place for studying or group work. The reference section features a wide-spread selection of educational works, covering all that is required for the [university's] majors."

7:30 a.m. Before the library opens, Lisa Winnch, the Instruction Librarian, prepares for a bibliographic instruction class at 8:00 a.m., the first of four classes scheduled that day.

8:15 a.m. Reference Librarian, Rick Keogh, assists a student in researching company information on the Business Index via the InfTrac Search Bank.

9:00 a.m. Technical Services Assistant, Nancy Bart-Norton, fills book order requests online with our vendor, Yankee Books.

9:30 a.m. Kelli La Vecchia, Serials Coordinator, continues to enter holdings information for approximately 550 magazines into the HELIN Consortium database.

10:30 a.m. The Inter-Library Loan Librarian, Betty Ander-Nelson, downloads book and article requests from public, academic, and law libraries throughout the United States.

11:30 p.m. Dr. Helena Rodrigues, Library Dean, heads to the University of Rhode Island for a HELIN Directors' Meeting. Today they will discuss innovations of the "Millenium Package" for the automation systems of the HELIN Consortium.

12:00 p.m. Head of Technical Services, Rosie Hopper, prepares a cataloging record which provides a "hot link" to Infotrac's General Business File ASAP, an electronic index of full-text journal articles.

1:15 p.m. Patricia Kelley, Assistant to the Dean, interviews and hires another student employee, one of 48, to assist in general library services covering 96 hours per week.

2:00 p.m. Head of Reference, Wayne Rowe, convenes a meeting of all Reference Librarians. A comparison of two new electronic databases is on the agenda.

4:45 p.m. Circulation Coordinator, David Parkinson, heads to a meeting to discuss the newest electronic technology for faculty reserves.

7:00 p.m. Kathy Blessing, Senior Reference Librarian, returns from a dinner break and instructs a patron on creating a bibliography for a research paper.

11:45 p.m. There are approximately 25 patrons in the library. Security flicks the lights, indicating that the library will be closing at Midnight.

During the past 5 years the library has:

Received 930,000 visitors

Loaned 187,000 books

Answered 115,000 reference questions

Cataloged 50,000 books

Taught 11,000 students

Collections Room located on the first level as you enter the building. This exquisitely furnished area with a glass curtain wall, pass-through bookcases and display cases, cordovan leather sofas, oak parquet floor, oriental rug, and a crystal chandelier accommodates rotating exhibits from Johnson & Wales University's Culinary Archives and Museum.

Since opening in 1993, the main library has increased its collections to over 90,000 volumes, 550 magazines and journals, and 2,400 videos. Major electronic resources total 24, including CD-ROM products and Web-based databases which offer many full text articles. Scholarly support is the cornerstone of library services. Professional librarians offer bibliographic instruction and library orientation to more than 5,500 students each year. Off-campus resources are provided through membership in two consortia: the Higher Education Library Information Network (HELIN) and the Consortium of Rhode Island Academic and Research Libraries (CRIARL). CRIARL serves a large and varied community with sophisticated information needs. The primary users of member libraries are students, faculty and staff of the academic institutions, card holders of the Providence Public Library, historians, and state government. Circulation privileges are extended to faculty and professional staff of member institutions through a CRIARL Library Identification Card.

The HELIN libraries, namely, the Community College of Rhode Island, Johnson & Wales University, Providence College, Rhode Island College, Roger Williams University and the University of Rhode Island share an INNOPAC integrated library system. Anyone with a valid library identification card from one of the HELIN libraries may borrow materials from any HELIN library.

As we approach the 21st century, libraries are quickly evolving into important information centers. Librarians are no longer the keepers of book, but rather the brokers of world-wide knowledge.

The Johnson & Wales University Library truly is a model innovative information center equipped with state-of-the-art technology. It is prepared to address the concerns of the present and confident to meet the challenges of the future.

The True Meaning of Christmas

By Andy Haynes
Protestant Campus Minister

Amidst gifts, joy, food, Santa and his Elves, Rudolph and hectic shopping trips, we often lose our focus at this time of year. We are bombarded with holiday movie events, holiday specials, memories of celebration and bad from our past. We are shown throughout commercialism how Christmas ought to be celebrated and what to celebrate. We have put such an emphasis on the celebrating that we have seen over and over the effects of the stress of the Holiday Seasons in our relationships and in our families, and in the meantime, we have lost the meaning of Christmas.

Our celebration is often that way. We celebrate with gifts, cards, food and fun often pushing the meaning of the holiday out into the cold darkness to sit on the edge of the tree for all time. In today’s world, it is not always comfortable to consider the life of Jesus Christ and his mission as the reason for Christmas. It is much more comfortable to get caught up in our gifts, parties and fun. I encourage you to take time this week and worry less about the first Christmas gifts given by the Magi of the East to the newborn King.

This special group of individuals includes 27 bus drivers, 7 transportation employees, and student drivers. The admirable team devotes their energies and efforts to make sure arrivals and departures are met. Safety is insured and trust is definite.

So, let’s not forget that this special group of individuals are a necessity to our everyday lives. Take the time to acknowledge the bus drivers and realize that they are here for our benefit. Take the time to appreciate them, by thanking them on departure of the bus, rather than taking the ride for granted. This is an introduction to the 2nd Annual “Bus Driver Appreciation Day” sponsored by the Student Government Association.

We travel everyday, from one place to another. Transportation is how we move from one place to the next. This would not be made possible without the dedicated, prompt, and hardworking efforts demonstrated by our very own staff of bus drivers.

On November 20-21, the National FBLA-PBL Fall Leadership Conference was held at the Providence Convention Center. It turned out to be a great success.

The NFLC was designed for members of their chapters to share their knowledge with new members and to gain the benefits of experienced members, advisors, and business people. Everyone shared the same goals and enthusiasm for the organization.

The general open session on Friday night at the convention center started with a keynote speaker, Jason Dorse from Alabama. He spoke on how to follow your dreams, no matter how big or small they are. That night, Johnson & Wales University sponsored a "Great Acquainted Dance for FBLA." This was a great experience for the FBLA members to meet other students from different states.

On Saturday, the conference held workshops for students and advisors. FBLA workshops focused on career skill building, self-improvements and chapter management and development. PBL workshops focused on management, leadership and communication.

The day ended with the closing general session with a keynote speaker, Karen Singleton from Kentucky. He discussed peer pressure and being a leader and not a follower. "If you fad at something, never give up. Do it again." At the closing, Singleton left saying "never give up on life."

This program includes the NFLC ended with an FBLA-PBL "Blue Jeans for Babies." Dance, sponsored by the March of Dimes and Johnson & Wales University. This event earned went to the March of Dimes to help fight the battle against birth defects. All members made a $1.00 donation so that they could wear denim during the dance.

Thank you to Johnson & Wales University for being a sponsor of the National Leadership Conference. Thanks also to the Johnson & Wales University chapter of PBL and Rhode Island State FBLA for volunteering their time to help make the conference one of the best.

A reminder: The 1999 National Leadership Conference in Chicago, Illinois will take place on July 4-7 at the Hyatt Regency Chicago. This conference will include national competitions, national elections, corporate contacts, exciting city sites and exhibitors with fresh ideas and networking opportunities.

To those members in Junior Achievement, Future Farmers of America and Future Homemakers of America, an opportunity for dual membership is available. Anyone who joins PBL and PBL the dual membership are eligible to participate in all of our activities and join us for the National Leadership Conference. Come see what PBL is all about!”

On Sunday, December 6th, Junior Achievement sponsored a Holiday Shopping Trip to the Yankee Candle Company. The shop, which is located in South Deerfield, Mass., is one of the largest candle shops in New England. Not only do they sell candles but they also sell toys, ornaments, giftware, and many other items. It helped those who attended get into the holiday spirit.

Recently, Junior Achievement created a "partnership" with the William D’Abita Elementary School in Providence. The program, called Our Regions, involves active participation from the students. Each week, on Friday, 10 members go to the school to talk about JA concepts and also to tutor the students in Math and Reading. JA works with three fourth grade classes that have a total of 40 students. This program has been a big help to the elementary students and a large success for JA. Keep up the good work!

Ski Trip

On January 15th-18th, the Ski Club will be holding a Weekend Ski Trip to Mont Sainte Anne in Quebec City, Canada. During the trip, they will be staying in the Lowes Le Concorde, a five star hotel. If you are interested in attending the trip and would like to know more, contact Dean Roberts, President of the Ski Club, at 272-5941 or e-mail him at drobot2@students.jwu.edu.

"Many Thanks and Best Wishes"

The brothers of Tau Epsilon Phi would like to welcome you for the second semester. We hope that everyone had a Happy Thanksgiving.

The brothers of Tau Epsilon Phi would like to thank the sisters of Phi Sigma Sigma for their help. We have a lot of things going on, but we know you ladies and we look forward to doing more with you in the future. Also, we would like to thank the sisters of Phi Sigma Sigma for yet another crazy social. It’s been a While since we’ve all got together for a fun time like this. However, we do feel that some of you need to practice your beard skills.

Anybody interested in being our next contact Robert Rosamond, Matthew Hooper. We would like to give a big thanks to Delta Phi Epsilon for a fun social.

Lastly, we would like to wish everybody’s new membership good luck whether you are beginning the process or nearing the end of it. We especially wish our Theta class the best of luck in their ongoing journey. Listen to all that is taught to you and use it throughout your process. Stay strong and you will be brothers before you know it.

Welcome back to the Beta Tau Colony/Zeta Nu Chapter of Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity. The brothers of ZBT were colonized and officially initiated on October 10th on the JWU campus. The brothers of Zeta Beta Tau would like to extend their sincere gratitude to everybody who supported us. ZBT had a great first Tri-mester and is prepared to continue to excel the second Tri-mester. A special thank you to brothers of K.E.S. who supported us, to our advisor, and to our faculty advisor. We had a great time at our socials with Phi Sig Sue and the Deepers. Also, thank you SDT for a PHAT Thanksgiving dinner.

On our behalf, you guys are doing a great job! Keep up! It is Happy Birthday to Brother Siskel, Brother Zeus, Brother Baptista and Brother Sha’te.

Look out for upcoming events sponsored by ZBT such as the Scott Aliberg Fund raiser and Thursdays @ Pelham. Good Luck to everyone this Tri and Happy Holidays!

The Interfraternity Council would like to say congratulations to all those who have recently received bids from their respective organizations. We hope your process is fulfilling and you make the most of it. We also send our best wishes to all the NPC ladies during the remainder of their education processes. STAY STRONG AND GOOD LUCK!!

We would also like to thank all the Greek organizations who made the Greek Advenare a memorable weekend. Many good ideas were exchanged, even if we can't implement a "Greek unity" was established. It was also great to see so many Greeks in attendance at the opening of the new Recreation Center last Thursday. We must continue to work with the University to further establish ourselves at Johnson & Wales. Lastly, we would like to wish everybody good luck on the new trimester and happy holidays to all.
Hollywood’s Brightest Shine in ’98

A Two Part Wrap Up of Tinsel Town in 1998

By Michael Post ’00

Arts & Entertainment Editor

This year saw many films grace the big screen. Some were flops, others sank, some went to war and some went to an island to be killed, but carrying the extra weight were the females. That’s right 1998, more notably known as the year of the woman. This first part of a two part series on Hollywood in 98’ will deal with my five favorite leading ladies of the past season and where are they going from here. Hope you like them.

Susan Sarandon-

At the age of 52, a mother of three, an Academy Award Winning Actress is redesigning herself for the millennium. Starring opposite Pretty Woman star, Julia Roberts, Sarandon takes on yet another, mothering role. This film unites the divas in a drama about a divorced mother of two whose life threatening illness forces her to accept her ex-husbands fiancée. Roberts. Sarandon’s past credits include Bull Durham, Thelma and Louise and Little Woman. Look for the ladies latest flick Stepmom, debuting Christmas Day.

Sharon Stone- “Spread Um”.

This former show it all, served it up in Basic Instinct but lately has been taking it a little calmer. At the age of forty Stone has settled down and is focusing for the future. Stone's biggest role of her life has been that of a chameleon. Going from a seerpot, to an everyday mom, to a coked up chick in Casino, for which she received an Oscar nomination. Stone’s past credits include Basic Instinct, Casino, Dogville, The Mighty and slated for March 99’ Gloria. Catch this rising star.

Meryl Streep- Probably one of the most notable of them all, Streep continues to re-invent herself into many new roles. She can be funny, serious, plain, Irish or adventurous. Her every performance is a down home delight. Her past pictures include: Death Becomes Her, Postcards From the Edge, The River Wild, The Bridges of Madison County, and One True Thing. Look for Meryl up next in West Craven’s 99’ Villains, due out in late 1999.

Neve Campbell- Best known as theplain but complex Julia Salinger. Yes, her parents may have been killed but Campbell has been able to ride the roller coaster of fame. Staring in the runway blockbuster Scream and its sequel Scream 2, Neve has proven that she can handle the man or woman in the white mask. Most recently her credits include Wild Things, and as the pop star idle in the drug induced Disco 54. Neve has no big films recently but Julia is still getting adjusted to college life, aren’t we all.

Drew Barrymore- Drew phone home Elliot wants you, and so does the rest of the United States. The rebellious daughter of the 80’s Drew has come out on top. I’ll Be Home for Christmas

The butt of a payback by the football team who thinks he double-crossed them by not providing the correct answers to a finals exam, Jake has to find a way to get to New York by 6:00 p.m. on Christmas Eve—and catch up with his girlfriend Allie (JESSICA BIEL) who is on the road with the school stud Eddie.

(ADAM LA VORGNA) — or risk forfeiting the vintage Porsche his father (GARY COLE) promised if his son comes home for the holidays.

As Jake desperately hitchhikes his way east, everyone he meets unwittingly sets into motion a comedy of errors as they look to Santa for help and advice in Walt Disney Pictures’ I’ll Be Home for Christmas.

Don’t confuse them with the all too famous John Cougar Mellencamp, because they don’t sing “Jack and Diane” they’re nothing like that. This cool fresh band has a sound all their own; which deserves your undivided attention if you’re into punk rock, and having a good time. With song titles like “My Favorite show is 90210” how can you not dig the heavy acoustic and innovative lyrics. Your wondering, so where can I get their CD and when are they coming to town? Well you’re in luck, on Saturday, December 12th, right here at The Met Caffè in Providence Rhode Island along with The Querens, Buck and The Gothabells. And their second release “Melo’s” is sure “to leave you begging for more.” Go check them out.

Be kind to your retail friends (for they may be somebody’s mother)

A Commentary by Ed Siebert
Daily Illini (U. Illinois)

(U-WIRE) CHAMPAIGN, ILL. — Now that Turkey Massacre ’98 is over, you, dear reader, are left with only 24 shopping days before Christmas. And why, you ask, am I reminding you of this? Have I sold out and gone corporate? Am I on the take for consumer America?

No. But I do realize the tremendous strain that holiday shopping puts on all of us, especially the lowly workers in retail hell. After all, what other time of year do we gripe about holiday spirit and tell each other to cheer the $5/hr up because it’s Christmas and then get into shouting matches over Bennie Babies?

Ah. The holidays are here. Now here is your mission. I’m not here to spout off about how commercial the season has become. I don’t care. After all, the true spirit of the season is a time to celebrate religious beliefs, and I’m hardly one to criticize others who treat their religion. But I am going to make a plea treat the retail workers better, too.

Here’s where I’m coming from: I spent two years as a working grunt at a major toy store. I won’t say who they’re, it’s just a big chain. Needless to say, that two-year span subjected me to all of the worst of human nature. There’s nothing quite like being yelled at because the chain can’t keep enough Power Rangers in its stores for some random suburban dad’s liking. It’s also fun being berated for the store running out of bags (which happened to me twice), as if I had stolen them for personal use.

I have horror stories a plenty. And I’m sure most people who have spent some time in retail do. But that simply shouldn’t be the case. Let’s face it — the people who are working at the stores this season are generally just there to get extra cash. Very rarely do you find the career stockers who place the store before their pride. The person you’re yelling at couldn’t care less if you can’t get what you want two days before Christmas. And cashiers are working as fast as they can. They don’t care if you’re late for a manicure or have 40 other stores to hit. Leave earlier next time.

The point is these people don’t care if you didn’t have the perfect shopping experience. It’s to be expected. I mean, honestly, with every American with an income looking to spend money and all of us hitting the stores at once, shouldn’t we go into this expecting some inconvenience? Yes. Now then, since you’re still reading this, you’re asking me where I’m going with this and why it isn’t amusing. Here’s the where. The holiday shopping season is a war zone. Think of the workers as civilians, and you are the military on a mission to gain the perfect gift. But if you mistreat the civilians, there will be an uprising and you’ll be tortured and forced to give gift certificates like a lamer. If that analogy falls short, try this: You are a shark.

The workers are those fish that you always see clean sing the shark. If you snap at those cleaning fish, they don’t clean you and you’ll be dirty. And dirty people never get a date, let alone any loving whatsoever. If that analogy falls short, then just think about the fact that you represent one nameless person in a field of thousands that a retail grunt will see in one day. Your problems are not unique. You are less than a number, you are a on the face of the day. Now that I’ve pumped your ego a little, consider that you as a shopper have a responsibility. You have to be civil to other shoppers and to the people working.

The whole “holidayspirit” thing starts with not the people who serve, but with those who are served. Sure, the customer is, in theory, always right, but that doesn’t give anyone the right to be a raging arse at the expense of some retail peon in a blue golf shirt and plastic name badge.

Think about Bob Cratchit. Yeah, that’s right, Scrooge’s secretary, Tim’s dad, the guy with the coin issue. Think about how you feel when he asks for another piece of coal (respect) while he’s working. You hate Scrooge for saying no. You call him names. Bad ones. Then you realize you’re yelling at the TV. Weird. Sit down.

Each retail minion is Bob Cratchit. You are Ebenezer Scrooge. What you have to decide is whether you are the evil Scrooge or the nice guy who nearly peed himself after meeting a couple of ghosts. What that means is you have to decide whether you like people or are what the call a “jerk.”

So, be nice. Be patient. Be understanding. Show the world that the holiday season is the one time of the year when even the little worker at the toy store gets respect and a smile. Show the world that you have a heart as big as the Grinch’s after the magnifying glass broke. Sing “loo, loo, loo loo loo loo...” with the Peanuts gang. Hit me, I’m stuck in pop-cul- ture reference hell.

Then on Dec. 26, go back to treating the working stiffs like the average they are. I’m kidding.

The holidays are here. And remember, if Nostradamus is right, this could be the start of something new. Now there’s a pleasant thought for you.

Smile people. Happy holidays.

Affirmative action should start in the high school classroom

A commentary by Yeo Jin Chun
The Chronicle (Duke University)

(U-WIRE) DURHAM, N.C. — It is rather disconcerting and perplexing that as the debate over affirmative action unfolds outside in the "real world" that those who reside within the boundaries of the Gothic Wonderland seem completely oblivious to the ramifications of the events that have taken place in recent years and in recent weeks.

There is more coverage and talk over Curriculum 2000 (which I do not mean to marginalize) but shouldn't the administration and the student body be more concerned about affirmative action? Or do we care more about whether or not Duke will recruit fewer football players if we increase the graduation requirements by two credits?

Last month the state of Washington passed Initiative 200, similar to California's Proposition 209, which will end affirmative action policies that were meant to "level the playing field." In Texas another similar ballot proposal, Proposition A, was surprisingly voted down by the typically conservative state. But the most focus has been on California and its 1996 passage of Proposition 209.

Consequences of Proposition 209 and the United States Supreme Court's decision to uphold the ban have had dramatic implication, especially on the higher educational systems.

African-American and Hispanic enrollment has fallen at the University of California, both at the Berkeley and Los Angeles campuses. In 1997 only one of 17 African-American students accepted decided to enroll at UC-Berkeley Law School. The class of 1999 had 20 African-American students and 28 Hispanic students; the class of 2000 has only one African-American and 18 Hispanics. UCLA's numbers: from 19 African-American students to 10, and 45 Hispanics to 41. I am not necessarily suggesting that the end of affirmative action in California was wrong. At the less prestigious campuses in the UC system, minority enrollment increased. At UC Riverside, for example, African-American admissions increased 34 percent and Hispanic admissions increased by 43 percent.

Furthermore, what affirmative action supporters leave out is the fact that the drop-out rate for African-Americans was 42 percent vs. 16 percent for Caucasians at Berkeley. Considering the average 288 point discrepancy in SAT scores, this should have come as no surprise.

But this is a slippery slope. If the secondary school system had done a better job of educating African-Americans and Hispanics, we would not be facing such a large and divisive problem (The Black-White Test Gap ed. Christopher Jencks and Meredith Phillips). "Intelligence tests" show a gap between Caucasian and African-American children as early as the age of four. A racist closed-minded person may argue that such statistics show that African-Americans are less intelligent, but the fact is that the secondary school system and society at-large have failed minority students. The discrepancy in test scores is not a sign of innate differences but socioeconomic differences. If we could eliminate the differences in the schooling before African-Americans and Hispanics reach higher education, we could eliminate affirmative action for colleges and we would have more minorities attending prestigious schools on merit alone. That would be a truly "level playing field."

Boy, how lucky you are

A commentary by
Amanda Miller '00

When I think back to two years ago when I started here, I think about just how lucky the freshmen now are. They have no idea of how things used to look like here at Johnson & Wales. How it looked without the new Recreation Center down at Harborside, how downtown was without a skating rink and new mall soon to open. They weren't here when the J&W buses ran only a half-hour apart with no exceptions. They have a new recreation center, a new residence hall under construction, a remodeled Plants Fitness Center, and many other new changes.

These changes were thought about years ago, but are only now being enjoyed by the students. It was the voices of the students who are now juniors, seniors, and alumni that were finally heard. We are the ones who have brought about these changes, the athletes who have rallied for a new gym and bigger place to practice: the ones who raised money for our teams and petitioned for these changes.

So, for the classes of 2001, 2002, and beyond, please take our visions and pave the path for those who follow you. Don't be destructive and disrespect those who have worked for you, because when you look back and see those changes, you'll want the same for those younger than you.
Your Horoscope by Natasha

Aries (March 21 to April 19) - The financial picture looks bright, but in some ways a friendship could cost you money. This weekend accents group activities and the enjoyment of social relationships. (20 April 20 to May 20) - It's just not the right time to bring up a career matter. You have a right to feel optimistic, but mustn't reach for what is beyond your grasp. Gemini (May 21 to June 20) - A small embarrassment with cold occurs this week, but this is overshadowed by the good news you will hear. A kindness is appreciated. Don't feel neglected.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) - You'll end up getting your way with a domestic concern, so there's no need to be with others. Enjoy creative fare this week.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) - How to have a good time without going broke is the message for you now. Home-based activities are best this week.

Virgo (August 23 to September 22) - A job opportunity looks promising but it's not the right time to get too involved, so try. True to recognition and pleasure pursuits. Enjoy romance over the weekend.

Libra (September 23 to October 22) - You can enjoy the pleasures of a close involvement without having to disregard the wishes of a family member. Try to keep everyone happy.

Scorpio (October 23 to November 21) - Money can come in now, but it also can be quickly spent. It's not too late in the week that romance begins to go your way. Be patient.

Sagittarius (November 22 to December 21) - It's not the best time to experiment with health remedies. You needn't try the latest fad. Developments after are potentially beneficial.

Capricorn (December 22 to January 19) - Though you're anxious to take advantage of a business opportunity, remember to also be mindful of the needs of close ties. Accent considerations.

Aquarius (January 20 to February 18) - It's a good week for your social life, but not for mixing business with the messages for you. Home-based offers are best this week.

Pisces (February 19 to March 20) - You won't get the feedback you desire about original ideas this week. Spend more time on your development. Friendships are luck for you now. Socialize this weekend.

Excitement Rocks RAC

Men’s Wrestling team strikes big in front of a packed house at the RAC

Give us a few more wrestling matches like the first one, think at the Hasbrouck Heights Athletic and Recreational Center, and packing the new house for JWU’s newest intercollegiate sport will be second-nature.

Before a couple of hundred onlookers, Johnson & Wales upset Roger Williams in a stunning victory at the RAC. JWU won its first-ever dual wrestling meet in its first-ever home match before its first-ever home crowd.

The Wildcats insured a victory in a strategy filled contest when Pat Hogan stayed out of a pin situation against an opponent that was 100 pounds heavier in the heavyweight match—the last of the night.

Hogan’s work protected a 21-5 Wildcats lead and preserved the victory over a Roger Williams team that came into the match ranked sixth in New England.

While the two hundred or so who showed up watched and learned about collegiate wrestling, Coach Lonnie Morris’ team made the most of every single opportunity for points, and put themselves in a position to win with five key victories.

Rick Sungaila and Ed Senatus pinned their opponents for 12 of JWU’s 21 points, while Jason Finnerty, James Guibert and Keith Dixon decisioned their opponents for the rest of the scoring.

Finnerty got the ball rolling at 125 pounds when he racked up enough riding time to beat Angelo Diaz. Finnerty had grabbed a 4-1 lead after the first period, then held off Diaz, who gamely fought back to an 8-5 tie just for the match’s end. But Finnerty’s ability to control the match earned him a 9-8 win based on the riding-time advantage.

Sungaila stepped in at 141 and pulled a 10-9-3 lead when he ended his match with an exclamation point. After racking up nine points in a minute, he summarily dismissed his opponent by pinning him at the 1:02 mark of the first period.

Paul Allen lost a heartbreaker at 149 pounds, as he dropped a decision to veteran Randy Ring of the Hawks, 9-7.

Up came Gilbert for the 157-pound match. He faced JWU’s Keith Medeiros—a twice-time New England champion who normally wrestles at 141 pounds.

In the best match of a great night of wrestling, Gilbert scored a first-period takedown and a third-period escape, and beat Medeiros, 3-2.

The win gave JWU a 12-9 lead, but, more importantly, the Wildcats began to show the Hawks that they are not your average first-year NCAA team.

After the Hawks tied the match at 12-12, Dixon took to the mat in the 174-pound match, and dominated from start to finish.

The freshman from Boston got better as the match went on, and stretched a 2-1 lead after one period to a 5-2 lead after two. Then, backed by three takedowns in the finale, Dixon gave JWU the lead again, with an 11-5 victory.

Senatus then put the Wildcats in the driver’s seat with a third-period pin over Tony Coccorillo of JWU. Wrestling with a weight advantage, Senatus, like Dixon, took control in the second period. Senatus’ 2-1 lead became a 10-3 advantage after two, but the freshman from Naples, FL, took things a level beyond, and slapped his opponent’s back to the mat and earned a pin at 1:01 of the third period.

The three extra points afforded by the pin gave the Wildcats a nine-point lead. That meant that if the Cats could avoid a pin in the last two matches of the night, the upset would be theirs.

Just D. M. Idleak of Roger Williams managed to beat Nick Curtis with three unanswered points in the third period, the Hawks could only bring the lead down to 21-15.

That left it up to Hogan, who normally wrestles at 197. Faced with trying to handle the Hawks’ 285-pound Tim Grady, Hogan relied on quickness, curviness, and the urging of the crowd that constantly yelled “Hogie, Hogie” throughout the seven minutes to stay on his feet and slide out of bounds as needed.

Grady ended up winning the match 6-2, but, so what. Hogan did exactly what he had to do and the Wildcats got their win.

For Morris, who looked as physically spent as his wrestlers, it was a major rush.

After screaming himself hoarse for two hours, jumping in and out of his chair, barking and motioning and virtually feeling every move his wrestlers were making, the Wildcat coach had himself one memorable night.

“We’ve really been working hard,” said Morris, “and the earlier tournaments we went to gave us a chance to see what it takes to win at the college level. We’ve got so many freshmen that were great in high school, that to get this kind of win is important. And it’s a reward for the work they do in practice. Now, we’ve got to keep going ahead.”

The next home match is set for December 16 against Worcester Polytech, starting at 6:30.

The atmosphere was absolutely electric. Fog show, dimmed lights, a howling, chanting, supportive, standing-room-only crowd of just over two thousand.

Man, what a night. No wonder the Johnson & Wales men’s basketball team was the most intense they’ve been all year.

And though they ended up falling short as Curry won its fourth game in a row, the Wildcats gave the opening-night throng at the new Harborside Recreation and Athletic Complex a show.

And though the “Cats may have been understandingly slightly tight playing before by far the largest crowd in the history of JWU basketball, they hung tough against a Colonel team that was taller and a bit more experienced.

In fact, the Colonels clowed and scratched their way to a 50-47 lead with six minutes gone in the second half.

But the Colonels ran off a 22-3 spurt and swung the decision in their direction when JWU “went ice.”

The ‘Cats shot 28 percent in the second half— and were only one of 16 between the 14 and 7-minute marks, when Curry grabbed what eventually became a lead as large as 22 points.

Even then, JWU didn’t quit. The Wildcats actually got the game down to ten when T.J. Coliio and George Kosianowski each scored a pair of three-pointers. There just wasn’t enough time left to dent the Curry lead.

Vols, Seminoles to Fiesta Bowl

Associated Press

MIAMI — College football has the national title matchup fans want to see every season — No. 1 vs. No. 2. And this time it will be Tennessee vs. Florida State in the Fiesta Bowl.

It took a wild Saturday of upsets, but when the dust settled there was really no need for computer scores and strengths-of-schedule after all.

In the final Bowl Championship Series standings, which use a complicated formula of polls, computers and strengths-of-schedule, the Volunteers and Seminoles came out a clear 1-2 on Sunday and were invited to play in the Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 4, where the national title will be on the line.

"If we feel we arrived at two tremendously qualified teams to be ranked 1-2, BCS chairman Roy Kramer said Sunday. "They deserved to be there based on all the criteria. We want to create 1 vs. 2. The others are up to the individual bowls."

In the other BCS matchups, it's No. 5 UCLA (10-1) vs. No. 9 Wisconsin (10-1) in the Rose Bowl, No. 7 Florida (9-2) vs. No. 18 Syracuse (8-3) in the Orange Bowl and No. 3 Ohio State (10-1) vs. No. 8 Texas A&M (11-2) in the Sugar Bowl.

The BCS standings were created this season to set up a No. 1 vs. No. 2 matchup and incorporated The Associated Press' media poll, the coaches' poll, computer ratings, strengths-of-schedule and the number of losses into the process of picking the top two teams.

Tennessee finished with 3.47 points — 1 point for poll average, 1.67 points for computer ranking, 0.80 for the 20th-toughest schedule and zero points for losses.

Florida State, in fourth place last week, jumped ahead of UCLA and Kansas State with 4.91 points — 2 points for poll average, 1.75 for computer ranking, 0.16 for the fourth-toughest schedule and 1 for a loss.

Kansas State was a distant third, with 9.86 points .4 for poll average, 3.08 for computer ranking, 1.96 for the 49th-toughest schedule and 1 for a loss.

Ohio State was fourth with 10.37 points and UCLA was fifth with 10.9 points.

The Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., was the site of the last 1-2 matchup in a postseason game. In the 1996 Fiesta, a No. 1 Nebraska won the national title with a 62-24 rout of No. 2 Florida.

It will also mark the 12th time No. 1 played No. 2 in a bowl game.

"We have been a resilient team all season and we’ve found a way to get it done," Vols coach Phillip Fulmer said after he watched UCLA and Kansas State lose before his team had all it could handle before beating Mississippi State. "We’ve been on the edge of playing in a national championship game, and now we have a chance to do it."

Ohio State coach John Cooper, whose Buckeyes were ranked No. 1 until losing to Michigan State 28-24 on Nov. 7, said his team was just as qualified as Florida State to play in the Fiesta.

"We’re happy to be in the Sugar Bowl, but I think we can make an argument that we’re one of the top two," Cooper said.

"We were No. 1 for nine straight weeks. It’s difficult to run the table to go undefeated. The day we got beat, we did not play our best game."

"You stink your toe one time you’ve got to be a great team to get a chance to come back."

In another bowl matchup announced Sunday, Arkansas (9-2) will play Michigan (9-3) in the Citrus Bowl on Jan. 1.

Finnerty becomes first JWU Wrestling Champ

SEW LONDON — Jason Finnerty became the first Johnson & Wales wrestler to ever win a weight class in an NCAA meet when he led the Wildcats to a sixth place finish at the Coast Guard Invitational.

The freshman from Coram, NY, took the 125-pound championship at the two-day event, which was won by Appalachian State.

Finnerty’s 1-0 lead at the 3:00 mark, Tufts made it 2-0 on a power-play tally that put the Wildcats in a hole. The worst, however, was yet to come.

A goal by Dana

Guilbert almost halfway into the first period brought the "Cats to within, 2-1, but the Jumbos scored less than a minute later and were on their way to what was, for them, a very sweet win.

After taking a 4-1 lead into the first intermission, Tufts scored two unanswered goals in the second and raised the margin to 6-1.

The Jumbos made it 7-1 just 70 seconds into the third period on a rush to the net, and applied the finishing touch with their second power-play goal of the afternoon with just under three minutes to play in the game.

Dan Silva scored a shorthand goal for the Wildcats at 18:23 of the final period, but it was too little, too late for JWU.

The Wildcats powerplay went 0 for 5 on the day, while the jumbos were 2 for 7. 17 penalties were assessed against JWU, while Tufts was issued 11.
Northeastern’s Nolan fights back from accident to earn league honors

(U-WIRE) BOSTON, Mass. — As the volleyball season came to a close last month, Lisa Nolan had a chance to observe the past year amid her near fatal accident, which has led to an amazing comeback and to the America East Player of the Year award.

On Sunday, July 26, 1998, Lisa Nolan was vacationing in York Beach, Maine, with her family. "It was around 9:30 a.m. My family and I were at the beach. We forgot something at the condo, so I decided to Kollerblade back to get it," Nolan said. "On my way back to the beach, from the condo, I had to skate down a very large hill. I proceeded down the hill gathering more and more speed. "I started to lose control. At the bottom of the hill there was a parking lot. I sped into the parking lot hoping to find a patch of grass to dive onto, but I only saw gravel. It all happened very fast." "The next thing I knew I was on the ground covered in blood, struggling to breathe," Nolan’s hand went through the car’s glass window. Her neck slammed into the frame of the window, leaving her with a separated trachea. She was brought to Portsmouth Hospital, where she received an emergency operation and was placed in intensive care for four days.

Upon her release from the hospital, Nolan was left wondering about her future in volleyball. "It was a scary situation. If I couldn’t play volleyball it would be devastating. I just love the game, she said.

Her love for the game is something that is indispensible. Nolan returned to volleyball less than a month after the accident on Aug. 16. She was ISTO.ISO easy. She couldn't put any excruciating pressure on her neck or her lungs and that meant no heavy running. Nolan, however, overcame all.

Her return was astonishing. With Nolan at the helm, the Huskies had their first winning season since 1992. The team finished 28-10, with a 10-4 conference record — 14 games better than last season. Nolan was named America East Setter of the Week five times and was named to the America East First Team All-Conference. To top it all off, Nolan won the America East Player of the Year.

She set NU’s single season assist record with 1,403 and set NU’s career assist record with a total of 2,581. Today, Nolan is seen as a premier setter in Division I volleyball. Her will to win and her love for the game has brought her to a level that is unreachable by many. If one asks Nolan how this incident has affected her life, she will look you straight in the eye, with a smile so bright that it will over-shadow the scar on her neck and say, "I just appreciate that the fak that I’m here today." DiMaggio: ‘I want to go home’

Associated Press

"I want to get the hell out of here and go home," the 84-year-old Hall of Famer said after his doctor temporarily adjusted the breathing tube in his throat.

Those were his first words DiMaggio had been able to speak since last weekend, when he had another setback in his recovery from lung cancer surgery.

DiMaggio continued to show improvement from his latest lung infection, which developed Friday, according to Dr. Earl Barron, a cardiologist who heads a team of doctors treating the former New York Yankees center fielder.

"Things are looking up today, but who knows what will happen tomorrow," Barron told The Associated Press, adding that DiMaggio had no fever and his white blood cell count was normal.

DiMaggio, unable to speak because of the tube in his trachea, had been indicating he wanted to go home by waving his arms Thursday.

A cancerous tumor was removed from DiMaggio’s right lung on Oct. 14 two days after he entered Memorial Regional Hospital. A series of setbacks have kept him in the intensive care unit since.
