JWU announces plans for opening of new branch campus

by Mike Post
Editor-in-Chief

On Tuesday May 4, Johnson & Wales announced the creation of another branch campus in Denver, Colo. The campus, which will join the pre-existing five-branch campus's in September of 2000. The new opening, which is part of the Vision 2001 program, will serve perspective students on the West Coast.

According to Dr. John A. Yena, University president, "Denver is a dynamic city with a great need for highly skilled culinary professionals. We plan to meet this need and to become a good friend and neighbor to the citizens of Denver."

To meet the needs of the Vision 2001 plan a 13-acre portion of the University of Denver's Park Hill Campus has been purchased. The campus originally held the Colorado Women's College and was purchased by DU in 1982 when the facility closed.

As for the University of Denver's use for the campus, it will relocate some of its programs to its main campus. Which is currently under a $130 million building boom. Johnson & Wales will undertake remodeling of some buildings at this site.

Dr. Yena and Peter Coors announce the opening of a new branch campus in Denver

The university will be out fitting existing buildings into academic centers and culinary laboratory classrooms.

The new campus will be offering associate's degrees in culinary arts, in food & beverage management and in baking & pastry arts. The campus will also work in coordination with the existing Vail, Colo. Campus. The Vail campus which currently has 28 students offers a one year culinary arts degree for students who already have a bachelor's degree.

The Denver campus expects to enroll 200 students its first year and hopes to have 500 within five years of operation. Heading up the new campus as president will be Mark Burke, the current VP of Student Affairs, at the Providence campus and James Griffin as dean of the new campus. Other main campus employees will be joining the two as they relocate this summer. As the Vision 2001 plan continues to progress, the new campus' will be opening, new buildings erected, and enrollment skyrocketing. It is a time of evolution and a time of change. It is a time that Ms. Johnson and Ms. Wales never would have expected from their one type-writer. Good luck to everyone in Colorado.

The Time to Remember

"How lucky we are to have the things that make saying goodbye so hard."

by: Julia Archacki
Contributing Writer

Four years and a lifetime of memories, that was college and those were our days at Johnson & Wales. We left our simple lives behind and entered a world full of victories and failures, happiness and sadness. A world no one said would be easy but everyone said would be the best. We came together from different places, each of us possessing unique and worthy qualities that we would carry with us throughout the years. Our lives were so different but our hopes and dreams kept us on common ground. We were young and now we are wise. The time has come for us to walk that last walk as one, the future is bright and the past a memory never to be forgotten. Chance brought us together as classmates; fate brought us together as friends. Our lives were filled with the challenges we had always feared, the challenges of school, of independence, and most of all the challenge of making new friends. 1995 was the year it would all unfold, a year our lives would forever recall. We left our "comfort zone" behind and dove headfirst into a pool full of possibilities. In the end, the conclusion would be only as good as the chapters that proceeded it. Writing the book was the part we would remember the most.

It was never about where we lived or what we studied, but rather about the people we were and the person we strived to be. Similarities were there; you had to be willing to find them. An artist or an athlete, a chef or a scholar it made no difference what we did, but rather what we set out to do. We took the best piece of ourselves and offered it to each other in the best way that we knew how. We grew up and learned from our mistakes. The fights only made the making up that much better. We knew this time would come and it would all end so we made the most out of everything knowing we could always look back and remember.

Run, Forest, Run

Two JWU students run for their lives.

by Mike Post
Editor-in-Chief

Perhaps in one's lifetime you get many chances to do many things. These things can range from the perfect job to finding the perfect car, but for two graduating JWU seniors their chances have just begun. For Dustin Warner and Mike Anzalone the adventure of a lifetime starts after graduation day. Starting on June 1, the two will be setting their eyes westward as they run 6.2 miles in all fifty states within 60 days.

Which started off as Dustin's idea to run in the country has turned into a major fundraising event for the Special Olympics and the Sports Dept. here at JWU. The two are looking to educate others regarding the Special Olympics and increase school spirit.

Mike and Dustin have been training constantly and it helps that they are both members of the cross-country team. Their journey, which will start in Augusta, Maine, will take them through New York City, Chicago, IL, Portland OR, Honolulu HI, and return to Providence. The two are still looking for corporate sponsors and donations. If you would like to donate anything from money, gas, sneakers please send contributions to Running Wild '99, 2209 Barker St., Sandusky, OH, 44870. The two seniors will also be putting their careers on hold, so if you have some job leads let them know.

A simple run through the country has turned into a great movement towards awareness and helping of others. The two runners are setting new standards in helping others. They have their chance of a lifetime. If you're not busy this summer and you know they are coming through your town, show up and give them some support. Good luck!

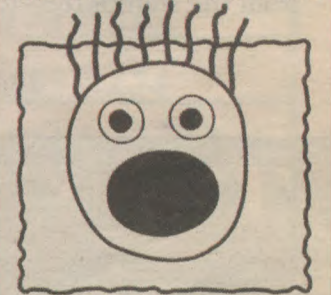

For Schedule of the run see page 4.

Oh, No Y2K Again ?

Registrars Office Announces Changes for Winter Term

by Mike Post
Editor-in-chief

As the Y2K problem is slowly being replaced by news of Serbia and whatever new thing the president has done, we will bring Y2K back to the spotlight, at least at the University. That's right, Y2K is alive and well in the Registrar's Office. I suppose you're wondering what I'm talking about, well here's the scoop.

If you haven't heard yet the holiday break for the 1999-2000 Academic Year has been extended one week. According to Joanne Galenski, university registrar, classes will resume on Monday, January 10, 2000 instead of the previously scheduled January 3. Why, you ask? The University has added this week to accommodate students who may be travelling internationally. Some international countries may not have fully addressed the Y2K problem. The university has also recognized that there may be banking problems. No one is to know for sure what will happen on January 1st, but the university is prepared. As a result of the one-week holiday break extension, the Winter Trimester will be occurring with some changes. The original 11-week term will now be ten weeks and must meet certain criteria in order to meet accreditation standards. To do this each class period will be five minutes longer making class a full hour. There will still be 15 minutes between classes.

Graduate school and continuing education classes will now be four hours long instead of three hours and 45 minutes.

As for the culinary classes, the original nine-day class segment will go to eight days for the winter term. Classes for the culinary segment will also be a half-hour longer. Therefore, the am classes will run from 7 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and the p.m. classes will be from 1:30 to 8 p.m. As for the schedule for the second term baking and pastry arts classes the 22-day segment is 20 days and the am class will run from 7 am to 1 p.m. and the p.m. classes will run from 1:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

All of these changes are for the winter trimester only and are effective for all branch campuses.

The University has taken all measures to prepare for the highly anticipated Y2K. Let's all hope that it lives up to what everyone has built it to be? See you in 2000.

"The Time to Remember"

There were nights the phone never stopped ringing only to conclude that South Street was where the fun would start. We danced all night long, never wanting to stop. We journeyed through the city searching for the party that everyone wanted to be at. We went to the bar and became instant friends with the person crammed next to us. We even hung out in the dorms that we knew best, trying each time to break a different rule. Each of us had our own special place, the place you called home for four years, the place you could walk into and everyone would know your name. Those are the nights we remember and those are the places we will always want to come back to.

We walk away four years later convinced this place we call home will never be the same again. We have left our mark as individuals and can leave as the leaders our teachers pushed us to be. We have the strength to start our lives and the passion to be on top. Failure will scare us, but determination will guide us. The future is full of many unwritten pages and our new book of life has never looked so exciting. Johnson & Wales has prepared us for the future. This school taught us unity and we taught each other sincerity. Saying goodbye will be sad, but knowing we will always have a part of each other will give us the courage to move on.

Take the time to thank the people who helped to get you where you are today. Each of us not only relied on one another, but on our teachers and coaches, employers and advisers. Our parents paved the road to college, they believed in us and loved us. All these people look to us with appreciation. Success is a goal we can all achieve because of the guidance that has followed us over the years.

There is no way of knowing where we will be tomorrow. We should all be so lucky to have had the past, because it is that past that created the person we are today. As we prepare to say goodbye and go our separate ways, take a moment to remember how you got here. The circle of friends we each have had has kept us safe and given us the memories. Our achievements are astonishing and our mark as the Class of 1999 is incomparable. Be true to yourself and hold on to the ones that have changed your life. Laughter and tears will fill the air on graduation day and, as that day comes to an end, sit back and smile because Johnson & Wales was the place we chose to all be.

Want to work for the Campus Herald next year? Send us a letter with your home address so we can keep in contact with you over the summer. Look for flyers in Sept. for the first meeting of the new school year. Have a great Summer from the staff of the Herald!

Thank you Everyone!

The staff of the Feinstein Community Service Center would like to thank all students, faculty and staff who participated in the Christmas in April * Providence Project this year.

On April 24, 1999 volunteers from Johnson & Wales University helped paint, landscape, clean and refinish the St. Vincent DePaul Ministry located at 190 Dexter St. and the Providence Community Police Station located at 903 Broad St.

Representatives from both locations were very pleased with the hard work that everyone put forth. They truly appreciated the efforts of the entire university community on that day.

Our special thanks go to the Facilities Management Department for the use of their trucks for delivery of supplies, and also the staff of the Johnson & Wales Inn and Conference Center for making the wonderful cakes for the volunteer thank you party afterwards. Your hard work and dedication was appreciated by all.

“One America in the 21st Century” Multicultural Center Hosts One America forum

by Bobbie Watkins
Staff Writer

On April 21, at the Multicultural Center located in Xavier Complex had a wonderful turn out for the One America in the 21st Century. This forum were for individual to come together and discuss diversity issues on campus and to bring together different cultures and personalities, and learn from one another.

When one doesn't understand something, he or she tends to get upset and does not want to talk about it. That's one way of not dealing with the problem at hand. First we have to understand the difference in racism and prejudice in order to help others understand.

Racism is the belief that human races have distinctive characteristics that determine their respective cultures, usually involving the idea that one's own race is superior and has the right to rule others. My parents always told me that one person is not better than the other.

Prejudice on the other hand is an unfavorable opinion or feelings formed beforehand or without knowledge, thought, or reason. When I was younger there was this little girl in my class that everyone talked about and made fun of for no reason. The little girl kept to herself only because she didn't have anyone to talk to. One day my teacher put us in-groups of two, to work on a drawing assignment. I was placed with her. I learned a lot about her and she was a very sweet person. Today she is one of my best friends and she understands why people do the things they do. She once said "If people don't learn how to make a difference and to communicate with others than they will be left in a room alone."

Everyone at the forum had very good views about diversity, which is the differences or unlikeness of others and how we could handle the issue around campus. Professor Thomas Gaines made a statement that made me thinking about something I was taught growing up. People live in comfort zones, like living in their own circle and not letting anyone else come in or different experiences are taboo and not heard of. It's like doing something wrong but at the same time being the first one to say "Its Okay." My best friend is not the same race that I am but we are the same. We like the same things, we have the same goals and I know I couldn't have gotten through some of life challenges without her. One of the challenges we have to do is start within ourselves in order to fix the problems with others.

The program had a wonderful turnout. We would like for everyone to come support some of the activities that are held the Multicultural Center. Johnson & Wales students represents over 85 different countries. We have somewhere that we can call home, the Multicultural Center. Thank-you to Johnson & Wales staff that came to the Leadership and Diversity Forum, Thomas Gaines, Dr. Marilyn Davis and Marie Juergensen.

Insurance 101 for the Class of '99: What You Really Need to Know and Probably Don't

Courtesy of Collegiate Press Wire

It may come as no surprise that surfing the Web has surpassed drinking beer as the "in" activity on college campuses, according to a recent study by Student Monitor. By now, you've mastered online research, can chat online all night long, and have multiple e-mail accounts. With graduation around the corner, you're no doubt online more than ever finding the perfect job. But has the Internet helped you in matters more practical, more important, and more real - such as your insurance?

The Internet is arguably the best tool to make the transition from college student to working professional, and part of being a working professional means your parents can no longer subsidize your insurance.

Just in time for graduation, InsWeb has developed an Insurance 101 Checklist and interactive tools and tips to help college students learn more about their coverage decisions and individual needs.

If you're wondering how to handle this new responsibility, Insurance Web Sites, like InsWeb, that provide multiple quotes, as well as easy-to-use tools and information, can help make sense of confusing terms and jargon and help you determine your insurance needs. Comparison-shopping sites eliminate countless hours on the phone and simplify a traditionally difficult process. And by comparing, you'll potentially save money because the price of similar coverage often varies widely.

InsWeb, located at <http://www.insweb.com>, is a one-stop source for educating yourself about insurance, including comparative quotes for auto, homeowners and renters, term life, individual health and short-term medical insurance.

Tips for "Insuring Your Future (also available at <http://www.insweb.com>)

* Check with your family's health insurance provider to see if you are still covered on their policy. As a recent college graduate, you may not be eligible for coverage as a dependent. It might be time to shop for your own policy; you don't want to be without coverage in case of an emergency.

* Moving into a new apartment? Consider renter's insurance to protect your new diploma and other valuables. It's relatively cheap protection, even if you don't have a lot of stuff.

* Landed your first real job? Know the right questions to ask about a company's health insurance plan. No matter how reputable the company, there may be a significant waiting period until you are eligible for coverage.

* Moving back home or to a new city? Be sure to re-evaluate your auto insurance policies. A new location can affect your auto insurance costs.

* When looking for insurance, be sure to comparison shop to get the best deal. Prices for similar coverage can vary from company to company

An End of an Era for THE MINDEN

Students, Faculty and Alumni come Out for the Hall's Final Farewell.

Runners Schedule Across the U.S.

by Bobbie Watkins
Staff Writer

I always hated the fact that when I was smaller I had brothers and sisters. The house was big but to me it was crowded. Seeing my siblings everyday made me want to turn 18 and go to college even sooner. At the same time I loved it because I knew that they loved me as much as I loved them.

Walking by The Minden you would think its just an apartment building, but as you open the door and see the sign that says "Welcome to Minden", you will feel the love of everyone there.

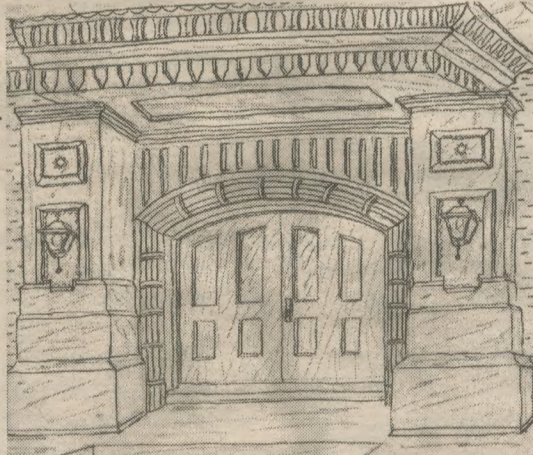

Minden residents have their own family, it's like home-away-from-home for the freshman and for the upperclassmen it's a place where they can grow and teach the underclassmen about life and friendship, as well as to survive on campus.

On April 22, The Minden had a farewell dinner in honor for Minden's history. Friedrich Herreshoffs and his son were the first of the Herreshoff to come to America. They chose the East Side as their site to build an apartment building, and for the name they chose The Minden. In 1912 Minden Hall was considered the largest apartment building of its time for Providence's East Side. It also served as a hotel and a retirement home for the upper-class people in later years.

Mary Johnson was the first director of the establishment. In 1976, after The Minden had been an apartment building and then a hotel it became a residence hall for the students of Johnson & Wales University.

After this year is over The Minden will no longer belong to Johnson & Wales University, and J- Woo students will have only memories of Minden. " When I first became a RA at Minden I really didn't want the job ... I didn't want to be a RA here. Some people wouldn't believe me when I said this but I hated it here, I really wanted to leave Minden. After making the best out of it, and being here this year I wouldn't have chosen a better place to live." said Erica Gleaton, an RA.

When asked if she thought that there be another " Minden type" hall that everyone is friendly, where everyone knows almost everyone. Srey Lach, an Office Assistant at Minden, said there could be another Minden only if the staff is comfortable and easygoing.

The front doors of Minden Hall will shut finally as students leave May 22.

Karriem K. Kanston, a past director spoke of the history at the farewell dinner for Minden. Kanston took time to go to different libraries to find out more about the history that brought them there today.

"Its important to know where you came from and the history behind it" Kanston stated before he closed his speech.

Nikeisha Dyer has been living in Minden for three years. As we sat she and her friend Jameara Bogan who lived at Minden for two years, told me what they thought about the end of Minden. They think there will be a decrease in sales on Thayer Street and shops around the College Hill because of the closing of Minden for Johnson & Wales students.

Nikeisha Dyer said as she told me that when her parents came to visit she took them to Thayer Street to shop. "Minden is a sacred place, and we will always keep Minden in our hearts."

The freshmen will be a part of history. They are the first and the last set of freshman to come to Minden Hall.

According to the Dean of Students Michael Pasquarella the goal for Johnson & Wales is to make education affordable and to make a college into a university by making it into a small community for the student to be downtown. The main point is " cost".

As I walked out of Minden I realized 3 things:

1. Minden had good food .(No wonder students go back to Minden to eat.)
2. The freshmen at Minden could say they had a home away from home.
3. The friends one make away from home when they go to college are their new family.

Summer Movies are Coming

by Krista Winston & Gina A. Vigriotto

Unless you've been living in a galaxy far, far away, chances are you already know all about the movie that's widely touted to be the biggest hit of the summer: George Lucas's "Star Wars."

But if "Star Wars: Episode I- The Phantom Menace" is already old news, which movie is likely to be the topic of pool-side conversation this summer? The answer, judging by the record of the last couple of years, is surprising. It's probably a tiny, low-budget movie that even most of Hollywood doesn't yet know about, one that will come out of no where to take the box by storm.

That was the case last year, with "There's Something About Mary". The year before it was "The Full Monty", a British import. Perhaps the strongest contender is "American Pie" a raunchy teen comedy along the lines of "Porky's". There's also "Killing Mrs. Tingle" a dark comedy that marks the debut directorial efforts of Kevin Williamson (writer of "Scream" and "Dawson's Creek"). "Drop Dead Gorgeous", a low budget comedy about a Midwestern beauty pageant, is also a longshot, of course it's still very early to place bets on movies.

Partly in response to such high priced disappointments of last year, Hollywood has significantly scaled back the number of big budget movies on this summer's slate. The key to a successful hit, producers seem to think is getting the word out inexpensively (word of month).

"Inspector Gadget" starring Matthew Broderick and Joely Fisher will be out this summer

Be on the lookout for these movies this summer!

The "13th Warrior" starring Antonio Banderas, Diane Venora and Omar Sharif. Based on the best selling novel, "Eaters of the Dead", this film will be an exciting and unforgettable adventure thriller. Antonio Banderas, an important emissary is abducted by a band of warriors. He is forced to join their battle against mysterious creatures legendary for consuming everything in their way.

"Inspector Gadget" starring Matthew Broderick, Rupert Everett and Joely Fisher. A comedy based on the television show of the same name.

"Instinct" starring Anthony Hopkins, Cuba Gooding Jr and Donald Sutherland. Hopkins plays a brilliant primatologist who has a deep secret. A mystery left unsolved by his estranged family and law enforcement who have tracked him down and arrested him for murders that happened in the jungles of Rwanda.

"Tarzan" & the "Summer of Sam" are also coming your way!

Julia Stiles as Kat Stratford in "Ten Things I Hate About You"

Meet the Stratford sisters: pretty and popular Bianca (Larisa Oleynik), who has never had a date; and Kat (Julia Stiles), her older sibling, an ill-tempered harridan whose acerbic wit is matched only by her steadfast determination to alienate any guy who might be remotely interested in her. Unfortunately, strict rules in the Stratford household forbid Bianca from having a boyfriend until her odious sister has one of her own—a situation that seems highly improbable considering Kat is a social disaster. Bianca's desperation for romance turns into a convoluted scheme to match Kat with her male equivalent—a guy whose reputation is so infamous, Kat might rise to the challenge and find him worthy of her concealed charms. Mating mayhem ensues when Patrick Verona (Heath Ledger)—a sullen young man with a mysterious past—is bribed by Bianca's wannabe boyfriend (Andrew Keegan) to woo and win Kat in order to clear the way for Bianca to begin dating, in the outrageous comedy, "10 Things I Hate About You."

Touchstone Pictures presents "10 Things I Hate About You", directed by Gil Junger from a script written by Karen McCullah Lutz & Kristen Smith. The film is produced by Andrew Lazar. The executive producers are Jeffery Chernov and Seth Jaret. Co-producer is Jody Hedien. The film is distributed by Buena Vista Pictures Distribution.

Julia Stiles (Kat Stratford) made a distinctive impression on the 1999 Sundance Film Festival by starring in "Wicked," the latest film from acclaimed director Michael Steinberg ("The Waterdance," "Bodies Rest & Motion"). She recently completed filming "Hamlet" for Miramax. Stiles plays Ophelia opposite Ethan Hawke in the title role for director Michael Alamedra's update of the classic play.

She was last seen in the NBC miniseries "The '60s" from producer Lynda Obst. Before that she starred opposite Ellen Barkin and Oprah Winfrey in the ABC/Harpo Films special "Before Women Had Wings." She also starred as a young unwed mother opposite Isabella Rossellini in a critically praised episode of the CBS drama "Chicago Hope."

Stiles began her career on the New York stage appearing in a number of plays at the La Mama Theater and the Kitchen Theater, including "Everyday Newt Burman," "Matthew: School of Life," and most recently in "The Sandalwood Box" from playwright Mac Wellmann. She resides in Manhattan where she is at the top of her senior class at the Professional Children's School.

Heath Ledger (Patrick Verona), born in Perth, Australia was first noticed by American audiences starring as Conor in the action-adventure television series "Roar." The show was shot entirely in his native Australia and the success of the project brought Ledger to the attention of other filmmakers.

He previously starred in Steven Vidler's "Black Rock," which was nominated for the Australian Best Picture prize and shown at the Sundance Film Festival. He has also appeared in two Australian television series: "Ship To Shore" and "Sweat," in which he played a young cyclist.

Ledger's theatre training is extensive. He was a state finalist in 1993 as a member of the Globe Shakespeare Company, as well as a First Prizewinner for the North of Perth Music Company for "Open Monologue." His theatre roles have included "Peter Pan," "The Name of the Father," and "Bugsy Malone."

Joseph Gordon-Levitt (Cameron James) stars weekly as Tommy Solomon, one of the earth-bound aliens on the NBC hit comedy series "3rd Rock From the Sun." Joseph has been acting since age six and played in the Academy Award winning "A River Runs Through It." He played the lead in Walt Disney Pictures' live action feature "Angels in the Outfield" and played Demi Moore's son in "The Juror."

Larisa Oleynik (Bianca Stratford) starred as an 'ordinary' 16-year old girl with extraordinary powers on Nickelodeon's acclaimed series "The Secret World of Alex Mack" for four seasons.

Her film credits include "The Babysitters Club" and a voice role in the animate feature "The Swan Princess." She appeared in the television movie "River of Rage," the series "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" and played Dana on "Boy Meets World." She has just joined the cast of "3rd Rock From the Sun" as a series regular.

She began her professional career at age 8, when she won the role of Young Cosette in the San Francisco production of "Les Miserables." Oleynik lives with her family in Northern California where she is a senior high school.

Andrew Keegan (Joey Donner) is one of Hollywood's hottest young actors. He appeared in the blockbuster hit "Independence Day." This past season, he played recurring roles on two critically acclaimed television series; football jock Reed Isley on "Party of Five" and teenage father Wilson West on "7th Heaven."

Keegan was also the National Spokesperson for "Right Decisions, Right Now." He is a native of Los Angeles where, despite his hectic work schedule, he finds time to work on his cars and enjoy his favorite sports, volleyball and surfing.

David Krumholtz (Michael Eckman) was recently seen on the big screen in the feature film "The Slums of Beverly Hills." He made his screen debut in the Michael J. Fox comedy, "Life With Mikey." His other film credits include director Ang Lee's "The Ice Storm" and playing Bernard, the elf who guides Tim Allen through the North Pole workshop in "The Santa Clause."

Krumholtz made his Broadway debut at age 13 as Young Charli in "Conversations With My Father," appearing with Tony Award-winner Judd Hirsch. He recently completed shooting the feature film "Liberty Heights" for director Barry Levinson on location in Baltimore.

Overall this film was pretty decent, in terms of who it was geared toward. It was able to captivate the audience through its individualism. It left the viewer with a sense that it is ok to be different. Being slightly older then the target market we were a little less thrilled about the film then our younger counterpart viewers. This film was a romantic comedy that puts a humorous twist on dealing with the reality of the trials and tribulation that one faces in that awkward change from child to adult. We probably would have thoroughly enjoyed it had we been in high school.

This large cast did a mediocre job in pulling this performance together. Although each played their part well, there was no chemistry or spark uniting any of them. Perhaps the casting director was trying to portray the diversity of high school by casting different people, but sadly they missed the boat on this one. Some look like their in year eight of high school while others look like their in 7th grade. We don't recommend this for your next hot date, but if your looking to spend a little quality time with a younger sibling this is the perfect film. Grab some popcorn and a soda and touch base with that younger person

Go

Set over the course of 24 hours, "Go" brings to us three interlocking stories with a huge cast. Directed by Doug Litman, this film stars William Fichtner, Katie Holmes, Jay Mohr, Timothy Olyphant and Sarah Polley.

Its Christmas Eve and no one seems to even know it's the holiday time. Ronna (Sara Polley), is an 18 year old supermarket checkout clerk who takes a second shirt as a favor to Desmond Askew, her British co-worker. Hurting for cash, Ronna tries to sell Ecstasy to a couple of TV stars (Jay Mohr & Scott Wold). But things get blotched and her dealer (Timothy Olyphant) seeks revenge over it and heads out in search of her and her pal Claire (Katie Homes).

Meanwhile, Simon (Mr British himself) is in Vegas with his fellow mismatched friends (Taye Diggs, Breckin Meyer and James Duval). Somehow they find themselves in a world of trouble during their exciting adventures including stealing a Ferrari and setting a hotel room on fire. Everything intersects at a huge underground rave Christmas dance party, after which no ones life will ever be the same. Go's crazy plot is full of all kinds of surprises, that you'll have to see for yourself.

"Go", Litman's latest film is even better then the witty "Swingers". There isn't a weak performance by any of the cast members and everyone gets an opportunity to shine. The movie was a little slow in the beginning but as it progressed everything came together. While Extra Butter enjoyed the film greatly, Popcorn thought it glorified sex, drugs and the stereotypes often placed on the generation. If your looking for a few laughs this is a good movie to see for those of you who enjoy a little weirdness.

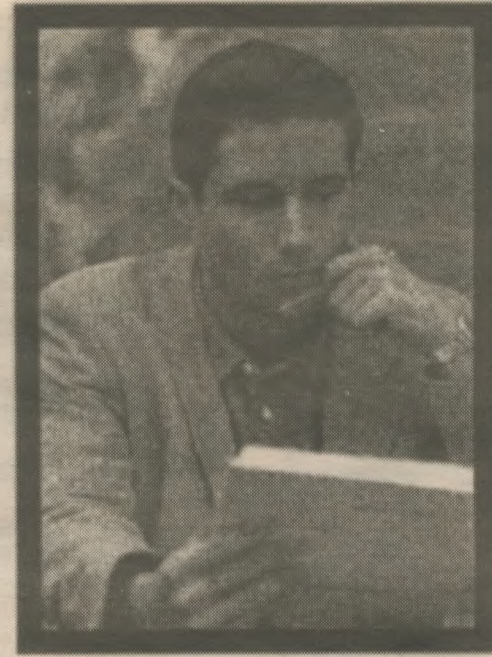

The Campus Herald would like to thank Gina and Krista for their expert reviews over the past year. Your criticism will truly be missed and good luck in all of your future endeavors.

Students Head to the Water as a New Sailing Club is Formed
JWU's Latest Edition

by Ebba Kallfelt and Malin Lindgren
Contributing Writers

After a couple of months of hard work we finally have a sailing club at our university. With seven members we have participated in four races this season and have introduced our university to New England Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association.

Our competitors so far have been universities from all over New England, such as URI, UConn, Boston College, Mass Maritime, Coast Guard Academy and Brown University. We feel that we have been very well received by the other universities and believe that our team has a future within the intercollegiate yacht racing.

The goals and objectives of JWU Sailing Club are to represent Johnson & Wales University in sailing competitions and social sailing events in New England. The purpose of this organization is also to unite national and international students with a mutual interest in sailing and yacht racing.

We would like to thank Gothenburg Royal Yacht Club for giving us team sweaters, they definitely enhanced our team spirit. To be supported by a well reputed yacht club like GRYC has been very helpful on both national and international level.

This season is almost over and we look forward to start a new season in September. During this new season we also hope to expand our team. So if you are interested in yacht racing, you are welcome to contact us at: jwusailingclub@hotmail.com

Harambee Association's First Year at JWU
Bobbie looks at the newest club on campus.

by Bobbie Watkins
Staff Writer

One up and coming organizations here on campus is The Harambee Association, which has done a tremendous job since its inception in the third trimester. The associations has done community service events, socials, and fundraisers. The organization is comprised of students ranging, from freshmen to seniors. The upperclassmen of the association hope that next year more students will become involved. Culinary students, as well as business students have shown a great interest in the club. I would like to wish the Harambee Association continued success in the upcoming years at Johnson & Wales! "I am who I am when I am in Harambee!"

The University Involvement Board would like to thank the following for their help in the Wildcat Wahoo:

Horoscopes by Bobbie

I would like to thank everyone who read my horoscopes for their personal entertainment. It brought to me great pleasure to know that I had supporters in writing them. Please continue to read them next year in The Campus Herald.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec.21)- If you just don't know why things are happening the way they are it's because you are sitting in the corner pouting. You don't want to give up but its just that you are tired of trying. Remember tryings other definition is "not doing". Also, remember your independence.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)- Lately you have been happy with how you are handling your relationships but don't let things or people put a brick wall in the way of happiness.

Scorpio (Oct.24-Nov. 21)-If you are not satisfied with something you need to make a difference. You tend to stay with something just because you can say you have it or have ownership. You will find some people saying, "Why they want to claim something like that?"

Cancer (June 22-July 22)-Good things come to those who wait, but being impatient will not guarantee it will be written in stone for you to see it happen. Learn to be surprised.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept.22)-You are happy with what you have but you will be happier with the things you can get. Don't get discouraged with what you see you don't have because there are people that see that you have what they want.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)-when you are dealing with other people make them understand that you will help them if and only if you can. You hate to say NO but you of all people don't bend over backwards for NO ONE.

Your philosophy is " You handle your and I will definaly handle mine, Alone!"

Aquarius (Jan 20-Feb. 18)-This year you have seen things in a different light. Things you have never thought about seemed to be so true to reality. It has made you a better person toward other people and you. Think about it this way, the learning process is everyday.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)-You have a wonderful personality, that's why everyone has fun around you. When this school year is over, you will miss the fun times you had but its not final, you have another year. High School friends are temporary but college friends last forever.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)-You will have a wonderful week. People will wonder why you are bouncing off walls and smiling at everything. The little things should make you even happier then something big.

Aries (March 21-April 19)-Someone that you care about need your attention. Don't forget about them. Show them that you care.

Gemini (May 21-June 21)-It's easier to be critical and to correct things in your life then to be judgmental of the things you don't want to happen. It's a part of life.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)-The problems that you have can be resolved if you don't worry about them so much. Its more that can be said if you think about how you got to that point in your life and how to handle it then you worrying over the littlest things.

PEAKE, TOPPAN EARN ALL-GNAC HONORS

by John Parente
Sports Editor

JWU's Michelle Peake and Tina Toppan have been named to the Great Northeast Athletic Conference's all-league second team.

Peake, a sophomore from Annandale, NJ, and Toppan, a freshman from Wareham, MA, were selected by the league's coaches at the GNAC's annual season-ending meeting.

Peake spent last week fighting for the GNAC hitting lead, and finished with an average of .479 with 46 hits in 96 at-bats. One of the league's top defensive short-stops, Peake finished with four errors throughout the season and an overall fielding average of .958.

Toppan, meanwhile, earned a reputation as one of the conference's most outstanding outfielders, in only her first year of action. While she hit .333 with a pair of home runs, Toppan gunned down nearly a dozen runners at the bases, and made a series of diving catches that raised the eyebrows of opposing coaches throughout the season.

The Campus Herald would like to thank John Parente for his contiued help and dedication to this publication.

TENNIS TEAM ENDS YEAR WITH 11-2 RECORD

by John Parente
Sports Editor

They may have fallen short of becoming the school's first undefeated men's tennis team, but there's no denying that this year's JWU squad will go down as one of the best.

Especially, that is, when all of Dr. Allan Freedman's top guns are on hand for the action.

After ringing up ten straight wins and the Great Northeast Athletic Conference championship, JWU finally lost its first match when UMass-Dartmouth scored a 7-2 win. The Wildcats, however, played without number-one singles standout Ahmed Hassan and a couple of the other members of the team's international connection.

But, with Hassan, Peter Kornerup, and Daniel Sjogren playing their last home match, JWU scored its 11th win later in the week with a decisive 7-2 win over Western New England, which had come into the match at 8-4 overall.

Hassan led six Wildcat singles wins, and finished the year unbeaten at 9-0 in singles play. Rob Pleva, Shachar Gat, Ron Raviv, Sjogren, and Kornerup all won in straight-sets to ice the victory during singles play.

Just for good measure, John Jakubowski and Itshzak Dalmai won their match at third doubles for the final point.

Just how deep this year's Wildcats were is evident by the scorecard. Kornerup, who played second or third singles last season, was in the sixth slot, and breezed past his opponent, losing just one set.

Sjogren, who, like Kornerup, played in the top three for the past two seasons, won 12 straight games in a 6-0, 6-0 whitewash. Raviv and Gat lost only one game to each of their opponents.

Raviv may have been one of the Wildcats' best players down the stretch. He was the lone singles victor in the UMass-Dartmouth match, and finished with a 7-2 mark in singles play this year.

Eric Kern completed his first tennis season for the Wildcats with a doubles win, teaming with Pleva for a point in the UMD match.

Winning 11 of 13 matches simply enhanced the Wildcat tennis legacy. Over the past four years, Johnson & Wales tennis teams are a gaudy 45-9, for a winning percentage of .833.

BASEBALL 'CATS OUTSLUG RIC, END YEAR AT 16-12

by John Parente
Sports Editor

Just when it looked like the Johnson & Wales baseball season would end on a sour note, Alberto Gonzalez' bat struck a resounding one. And a little more history had been made.

Gonzalez blasted a grand-slam home run in the top of the tenth inning to give the Wildcats a 13-9 victory over Rhode Island College in what turned out to be JWU's final baseball game of the year.

The win gave the Wildcats victories over all three Rhode Island Division III opponents for the first time ever in the same season. JWU beat Roger Williams on March 23rd, split with Salve Regina on April 15th, and then fought back the hefty challenge presented by RIC last week.

Challenge indeed. The Wildcats jumped on RIC with eight runs in the top of the first inning, but the Anchormen chipped away, and finally managed to tie the game in the bottom ninth, 9-9.

Dave Santos, a history maker in his own right during the year, spanked a grand slam of his own in that eight-run first. By the way, the two grand slams marked a first for JWU in their NCAA history.

Santos, meanwhile, will see his name in the NCAA Division III record book next year. The man who took getting hit by a pitch to an art form finished with 25 bruises caused by baseballs. The Division III record is 29 times, but Santos' per-game average is best in D-3 history. Santos was hit 25 times in 25 games played.

Josh Matthews' 12 consecutive hits in 12 consecutive at-bats back in late March also took JWU into the record book. Matthews is now the holder of that record, and co-holder of the record for most hits in one inning, three. Matthews entered the last week of the season as the leading hitter in the Great Northeast Athletic Conference. JWU's Rick Sawyer was second.

Sawyer and Tom Borgia completed their Wildcat baseball careers as two of the top five hitters in the conference. Borgia, last year's tournament MVP, had multiple-hit games in three of the 'Cats last four contests.

The Wildcats took one on the chin last week. Intrastate rival Bryant College, Rhode Island's only Division II team, took advantage of some J-Dub lapses both offensively and defensively, and ran and hid with an 11-4 win.

The two teams played to a 4-4 tie until Bryant scratched out a couple of runs to grab a 6-4 lead in the seventh. JWU had its opportunity to tie squelched by two baserunning mistakes, and their three-hit scoreless seventh turned out to be the beginning of the end. Bryant then scored five times in the top of the ninth to salt the win away.

JWU's last scheduled game of the year, at Framingham State last Tuesday, was a victim of Mother Nature. Wet grounds and showers forced cancellation of the seasonal finale.

Still, the Wildcat baseball future is certainly a bright one. Sawyer and Borgia are the only players to graduate, and everyone else is back, including JWU's entire pitching staff. Sophomores Ken Scholl and Jay Minassian, and freshman John Muszkewycz had solid seasons. The names of all three can be found in one GNAC leader board or another.

Rick Desmarais, who hadn't played baseball since his junior season at Woonsocket High, traded his hockey stick for a bat in March and never looked back. One of Coach Dave Morris' hardest workers, Desmarais finished the season with seven home runs—two short of the GNAC lead.

As a team, JWU was ranked as high as second nationally in runs scored and in team batting average. Though the Wildcats cooled a bit in the second half of the year, they became the university's all-time hitting leaders, banging the baseball around at a .347 clip.

With virtually the same lineup intact next year, the new millennium will be nothing more than a flip of a calendar page, for next year's Wildcats are bound to be as entertaining as this year's group.

NEW HEIGHTS REACHED IN INCREDIBLE SPORTS YEAR

by John Parente
Sports Editor

It's easy to pick out the top JWU sports story of the 1998-99 year-the spectacular grand opening of the Harborside Recreation and Athletic Center.

It's just that everything that happened from September through May made the athletic year that much better.

From soccer's first kicks to Alberto Gonzalez' grand slam that beat Rhode Island College last week, this has been a year in which Johnson & Wales athletics has reached a new level; one of competitiveness, of achievement, of respect. No one is taking any of Johnson & Wales' teams lightly anymore. Now, everyone knows better.

Two Great Northeast Athletic Conference champions were crowned-men's volleyball and men's tennis won GNAC titles. But, more importantly, JWU teams either made the playoffs, or were oh, so close, in every one of their sports.

Perhaps the women's soccer and softball teams best reflect the change in the stature of JWU athletics, not only in the GNAC, but throughout New England. If not those teams, maybe the emergence of the men's basketball team, which turned what could've been a disastrous season around to the point where they were just two minutes away from their first-ever conference final, show just how good the year was.

Or maybe it was the Wildcat hockey team, which reached the ECAC playoffs with a sizzling second half of its year. How 'bout the wrestlers, in their first year, with three members of the team finishing in the top six in New England.

Point to the women's volleyball team, or the men's soccer and baseball teams, which are now etched in stone as annual challengers to their conference's titles, and whose excellence and will to succeed are now givens before their seasons even begin.

You get the point. JWU has reached "the next level".

Surely, the night of December 3rd, in which 2,026 saw Curry beat the JWU men's team on their brand-spanking new court was big-very big. But the statement that the university's administration has made with the construction of the RAC is of even greater impact. These are going to be very good times for the student population at JWU, not only for intercollegiate teams, but for intramural, recreation and club programs, for student life events, and for those students and staff who want to work out daily in the new fitness center. The RAC is the showcase, and what a show we've seen so far.

Gregg Miller's men's soccer team started off the fall challenging for the conference title. Perhaps the hardest-working and over-achieving team he's ever had, Miller and his 'Cats were only stopped in the GNAC semis, when a referee's whistle with two minutes to play gave Emerson a penalty-kick, abruptly stopping what had been an enjoyable ride with an entertaining soccer team.

Not enough can be said about the women's soccer team. New coaches Chris Guay and Lou Faria not only breathed new life into a team that was a GNAC doormat in 1997, they fanned the fire of tremendous things to come.

Even after they were drubbed by Western New England in their coaching debut, Guay and Faria turned the Wildcats into winners in four short weeks, and by October, there were the 'Cats, playing for a potential GNAC playoff berth. They fell a game short-one single, lousy game short, but their 9-10 record was seven games better than their '97 season, and this crew was in every single game it played after its opening contest. It was truly amazing.

The women's tennis team also had one of those "just missed" years, but Kristina Dunn, Nicole Manginelli, and company gave JWU its third consecutive winning season.

The men's and women's cross country teams may not have won the GNAC titles (and for the men, that was a first) but personal times are better, competitions stronger, and respect for the job that Tom Spann and Hollie Walton are doing is greater.

The women's volleyball team may have lost personnel, but they didn't lose a step, once again reaching the GNAC championships, though once again falling to St. Joseph College in the finals. But the rest of the conference knows that in order to get to a final, the road goes through SJC and JWU. That's not bad for a team that's only been Division III for four years, is it?

With the addition of Suffolk, Western New England, Southern Vermont, and Norwich into the GNAC next season, the JWU golfers know that they, too, will be tested. But the tradition's already being established, thanks in part to Frederick Lagerman, Hans Gartner, and Martin Johansson, the 'Cats Scandinavian trio who were so very hard to beat.

Men's basketball captain Anthony Williams reached the 1,000 point mark, to become only the second player in JWU's NCAA history to get to that pinnacle. But what Williams and his teammates achieved is even better. After having started the year with 13 straight losses, Johnson & Wales went 7-7 in their last 14, including a key victory over Albertus Magnus that gave the Wildcats their first-ever home playoff game. The 'Cats then knocked off Albertus Magnus again in the quarterfinals, to reach the GNAC semis for the first time. With 2:00 to play, in Endicott's own gym, Johnson & Wales held a three-point lead, only to fall victim to the eventual champion Power Gulls when the ball simply refused to drop in the final minutes. No one is laughing anymore.

Women's basketball didn't take a back seat to anyone.

Stephanie Brown's team enjoyed the most successful year in JWU's brief history, going 12-11 before falling to Endicott in the league quarterfinals. Tehesha Parsons was an ECAC Player-of-the-Week, and finished as the tenth-leading rebounder in the nation in the final NCAA Division III standings.

Speaking of national rankings, no one in Division III hockey can compare with the incomparable Mark Deveaux. With Deveaux leading the country in goals, goals per game, points, and points per game, JWU reached the quarterfinal round of the ECAC playoffs. The Wildcats, who started slowly, made a mad rush to reach the playoffs in the first year that they were able to qualify. Deveaux, finishing off his four-year chapter of achievement in a Johnson & Wales uniform, was an ECAC All-League selection-JWU's first. Next year's captain, Tory Jacob, was fifth in the nation in assists.

If the women's soccer team had the most phenomenal turnaround, then the feat of the JWU softball team is a close second. 5-20 last season, and 0-8 in GNAC play, Coach Betsy Gilmore, assistant coach Bob Nikolian, and the Wildcats went right to work. After winning their fifth game of the year by the second week of the season, JWU hovered around the .500 mark during the entire year. And, had it not been for four lousy seventh innings in all four games of their Connecticut road swing, the Wildcats may have made its 0-8 season of 1998 an 8-0 season in 1999. But, after suffering four one-run losses, a 4-4 mark in the conference put JWU into the playoffs-another first. Albertus Magnus beat the Wildcats in the quarterfinals, but that statement has again been made.

The JWU baseball team is simply outstanding. Back in the fall, the Wildcats were the talk of the annual Cardiac Classic-the Rhode Island Intercollegiate championship.

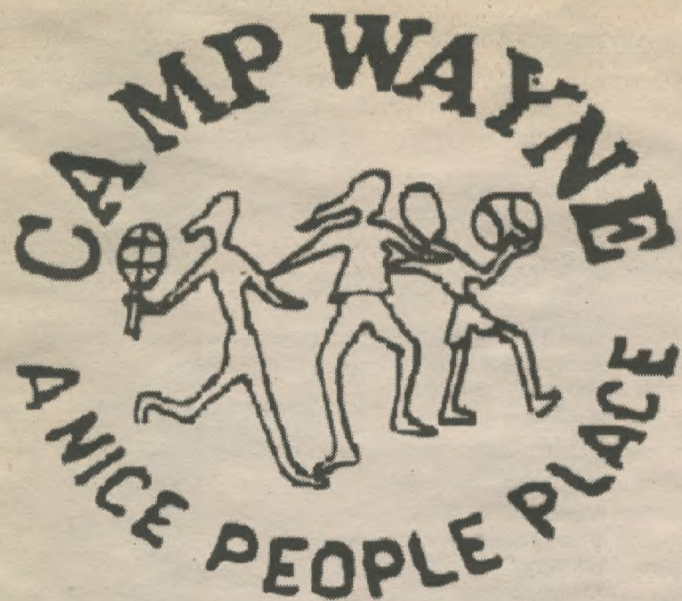

The Wildcats came within a whisker of knocking off Division I URI-the team that ended up winning the title. JWU lost to the Rams, 8-7, leaving the tying run at third and the potential winning run at second in the final inning. The spring took care of itself, as JWU established team and individual records aplenty, and finished at 16-12.

Men's tennis is only 45-9 in the last four seasons at JWU. Can that be simple enough? Or can the legacy that Ahmed Hassan, Peter Kornerup, and Daniel Sjogren will leave be any better? With a host of players coming back, the GNAC championship may stay in Providence for a long, long time. The same holds true for a men's volleyball team that is only really in its infancy, but won a GNAC title and finished one game out of a North East Collegiate Volleyball Association playoff spot in only its second year in the highly-competitive league.

And what about the new kids on the block? The JWU wrestlers won eight dual meets, and sent Keith Dixon, James Gilbert, and Jason Finnerly into the second day of action at the New England championships. Finnerly, just a freshman, finished second in the region and nearly became the first Wildcat to reach a national championship. Gilbert finished fifth and Dixon sixth in the New England, giving Lonnie Morris and crew something to shoot for in year two next season.

Whatever wins and losses are compiled this year, the past season will go down in the annals of JWU's athletic history as the spring-board year, when Wildcat teams leaped from one millennium into another with an awful lot of promise on their collective back.

Can't wait for September.
