Express or Local?

By Rebecca Bozeman

Johnson & Wales University spans the entire globe and continues its expansion every year. With students from all 50 states and 92 countries, the Providence campus has done an exceptional job of integrating cultures. Beckoning scholars and athletes from Sweden, Turkey, Japan, and a host of others, to contribute and acquire knowledge. Knowledge of cultures, business, law, culinary arts, and even equestrian studies, to name a few. We employ the best of the best. Our professors are in a league of their own. Bodies of wisdom, anxious to bestow their understanding of their particular profession, upon us. Acknowledging and fostering the mind-body connection, Johnson & Wales University has triumphed in the area of intercollegiate sports, generating an abundance of scholar-athletes who transcend the norm on and off the field.

The students who have left an indelible mark on the fields and classrooms here, did not succeed on the merits of professors or coaches alone. Nor will the students who are about to establish themselves within the Johnson & Wales community. You may ask, "How will I do it?" You start by setting aside any preconceived notions and allow your mind to be open. Once you have done this it will become apparent how many opportunities there are for you and you will be equipped to seize them. The Providence campus has a career development department, which provides efficient job placement. An abundance of opportunities await you. As a college student the pressures surrounding financial stability may be overwhelming. There is no better time than the present to secure a part-time job.

Once you have established yourself within the Johnson & Wales community you may want to begin networking. Forge contacts and get acquainted with all aspects of the University. This will probably be one of the most beneficial steps you take to ensure success in your future. Through networking it is possible to encounter someone who will be more than happy to guide and support you through these uncharted territories. The Providence campus has a wide array of clubs and organizations, which provide outlets for interests and hobbies.

With all the opportunities that JWU can offer, not a single one will come to fruition without one thing: you must accept, want, and maintain responsibility for yourself. These next four years will be comparable to a train ride. Someone may have bought you the ticket or helped you find the station, either way you are in that seat and the train is moving fast. Each hour as you approach your destination will go by faster, the amazing thing is you have no idea what your stop is called. Along the way you'll have a ton of options: (1) sleep wavering in and out of consciousness and awake when everyone else is getting off assuming this is your stop, (2) watch the scenery pass you by, going through towns, cities, fields, and rivers yet never asking where they are, or (3) mingle among your fellow passengers, question where they're from, what they've done in life and how they got to the train. Explore the train, try different cars, sneak into first class and see what they have to offer, ask questions, and taste the food cabin. The choice is yours. Will you allow idleness and stagnation to overcome you or will you reach your final destination equipped with the resources and knowledge to get on the next train.

Electronic Textbooks: Changing The Way Professors Teach and Students Learn

COURTESY OF U-WIRE

BOSTON, /PRNewswire/ -- The ritual of college students poring over textbooks with highlighter in hand will be changing at many campuses this September as increasing numbers of colleges expand their curriculum to include online textbooks.

Accessing digital textbooks is simple, according to Andres Nannetti, CEO of Rovia (www.rovia.com), a Boston-based provider of secure, electronic distribution infrastructure. A student goes online, downloads the reader software, and searches for their assigned textbook(s). Rather than paying for the entire book, they rent access to either specific chapters, or the entire text. Digital textbooks often include special features, such as the ability to highlight text, electronically bookmark pages, or even Instant Message (chat) with other classmates online.

With most digital textbooks running about one-third of the price of print versions, they also aid students where it helps most - their checkbook.

"I would love to see more digital versions of my textbooks," said Allison, a senior at Syracuse University. "Buying ten books or more each semester, plus lab guides and other workbooks ... it really adds up."

For professors eager to engage students in coursework, electronic textbooks provide a new way to communicate with students outside the classroom. For example, they can annotate students' digital textbooks with insights, provide special guidance, or flag important information for a quiz. ETextbooks also enable professors to facilitate online study groups and offer one-click access to Websites and other multimedia tools referenced in the text.

"In the past, students had limited digital textbook options because publishers worried about copyright infringement," says Nannetti. "But now that textbook publishers have noted the prevalence of the 'wired campus' and embraced new eTextbook technology, students returning this fall will find many textbooks available digitally."

Most college students today, born in the early 1980s, have never used a printed encyclopedia; so using a digital textbook should be a natural transition. In fact, according to many professors it appears these students are actually more comfortable learning in a digital environment.

With the ability to update information continuously, professors are finding digital textbooks to be much more flexible than printed versions. Most print textbooks are updated every three years or so, and information becomes outdated quickly. For professors teaching technology, or other dynamic curriculums, three years is a lifetime.

"Today's college student has grown up with real-time information, and interacting with multimedia features. The ability to quickly update and customize the digital texts is a key benefit for their use in the classroom," said John Pietsch, coordinator of information services at California Polytechnic University's center for teacher education.

"I teach technical and business writing courses for students pursuing careers in technology," says Johnnan Johnson-Eliola, technical communications professor at Clarkson University and director of the Eastman Kodak Center for Excellence in Communications. "Online pedagogy better prepares students for their post-graduation work as so many of their careers will revolve around the Internet."

With the publishing industry in the process of building its digital title portfolio, students and professors are ready to make the switch. So, when your child comes home from campus this fall without books, don't be concerned ... they're online.

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

Welcome to Johnson & Wales University!

You have been here for about two weeks - just enough time to get settled in; meet some wonderful new friends; find the library so you can study for your classes; and realize that when we say "Students Come First" at Johnson & Wales, we mean it! I hope that you are starting your college career off on the right foot, and that the adjustment was an easy one for you. The faculty, staff, and administration are here to assist you - just let us know if there is something that you need!

If you are returning to the University, Welcome Back! I hope that you had an enjoyable summer and that you are ready to continue with your studies. As you have already noticed, we had quite a busy summer. Snowden Hall was completed, many of the academic buildings were renovated, offices were moved, new classrooms were built, new furniture was purchased for some of the residence halls, not to mention all the landscaping that was done. And - you haven't seen anything yet! Wonderful things are happening here at Johnson & Wales University in Providence, and I am proud to have you all here to experience what I believe will be a fantastic year!

Best wishes for much success!

DID YOU FEEL WELCOMED ON YOUR FIRST DAY HERE?

TIFFANY

Yes--people were very nice and all the teachers welcomed us. The upperclassmen were great in helping us move in as well. I was pretty excited

NAKIA

Two fraternity guys helped me move in. Everyone was extremely nice.

JUSTIN

Yes, I did!

DOMINIQUE

No, because it didn't feel like a family type of environment with me being from the South.

College Life Awaits You To New Roads and Dead-Ends

By Terry Addison

To the approximately 2,700 entering 1st year students as Dean of Students I would like to give a warm welcome, and to say thank you for choosing Johnson & Wales.

Attending Registration and Orientation I had the chance to meet many of you and your parent(s). It is always refreshing to see the energy and vitality as new students enter the University.

To our returning students it's "into the fray" once again. Having successfully matriculated this past year, you bring back a wealth of knowledge, and familiarity with the University. I hope you all had a pleasant summer.

College is many things but above all else, college is an exercise in choice and responsibility. It is determining whether you will be a leader or a follower.

You have the complete freedom to choose the path (s) you will take. Will your choices bring honor and pride to your parents? Will you choose to respect yourself and others? Or will you disrespect yourself, your parents, and others by making poor choices and bad decisions.

Your parent(s) have worked long and hard to give you the opportunity to attend a world-class university. In many instances, opportunities that they may not have had themselves. You show them honor and respect by taking care of business and being responsible.

How do you do this? By getting up and going to class, by studying and being a fully engaged student. By joining clubs and organizations and pursuing your interests. Athletics, intramurals, student government, debate, the campus newspaper/yearbook, Pep Band- there is something here for everyone!

Make new friends and have new adventures and experiences. Remember that this is a dry campus and that drugs and alcohol will not be tolerated. Violations of the Student Code of Conduct will lead to disciplinary action. In the case of drugs and alcohol sanctions can lead to suspension or dismissal from the University.

Have a safe, happy and productive year!

JWU SPECIAL FUNCTIONS

Welcome back, we hope you all had a great summer! For those of you who were thinking of joining the Special Functions Club, we would like to explain our mission. Since the formation of our club on January 1, 1998, we have stormed into the new millennium with exciting events; ever important networking opportunities and ultimately, once in a lifetime doorways to gain invaluable experience. Our club needs members with positive attitudes and strong work ethics.

The basis of our club is highly rewarding volunteer work for the College of Culinary Arts. Some of the functions that we, as a club, participate in include the following: various Food Shows; VIP Dinners; Open Houses; Faculty Luncheons; Family Weekend and many other important events. Club members can volunteer for either front of the house, kitchen or bakeshop. These functions are a key ingredient in the potion of success: "In order to become successful, surround yourself with successful people". Our club is an excellent way to sharpen skills in a grade free environment. We have the potential to be a very important asset to the success and the image of our school.

Most importantly during these functions, we gain tremendously important contacts and industry referrals from well-respected and honored foodservice professionals as well as having fun. SFC can help establish skills of the beginner and boost the careers of experienced students.

These next few months to come will be exciting and enlivening! September is loaded with great events such as, Staff Appreciation Day, Open House and the Chef's Choice functions. Signing up for these events is EASY!! Sign up for an event at an SFC meeting or at the front desk of Culinary Administration, second floor of the David Friedman Center.

If you have any questions or suggestions, please call our hotline at x4636, press 5, then press 3, or you can e-mail us at special-functionsclub@jwu.edu

Hope to see you at our next Function!

Thanks Again!

Meaghan C. Riley
Assistant Director of Culinary Events,
Special Functions Club Advisor

Crisp-Coated Chicken is
Crunchy Outside, Juicy Inside
Garlic Chicken with a Crunchy Chip-
Basil Crust

Hot from the oven. These garlicky chicken breasts get a kick from a crunchy crumb-basil coating.

Yes, I admit, there really are potato chips in this recipe. They make the crust extra crunchy. Serves six.

FOR THE MARINADE AND CHICKEN:

- 6 Tbs. olive oil
- 2 Tbs. minced garlic
- 1/2 tsp. cayenne
- 3 Tbs. Dijon-style mustard
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh basil
- 6 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves (about 6 oz. each)

FOR THE COATING:

- One 6-oz. bag potato chips, crushed
- 1 cup well-crushed cracker pieces (about 10 crackers)
- 1/2 cup roughly chopped basil
- 1/2 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
- 2 Tbs. melted butter

For the marinade—in a nonreactive bowl, combine the olive oil, garlic, cayenne, mustard, and basil. Rinse the chicken breasts, pat them dry, and add them to the marinade; turn to coat. Cover and refrigerate for 1 to 4 hours.

For the coating—in a large, shallow dish, mix the chips, crackers, basil, and pepper. Drizzle the melted butter over the crumb mixture and toss until well combined.

To coat and cook the chicken—Heat the oven to 450°F and butter a baking sheet or rack. Follow the directions in the photos at left for coating the chicken. Roast the chicken until it's crisp, browned, and cooked through, 25 to 30 min. Check after 15 min. If the chicken is getting too brown, reduce the heat to 400° and add 5 min. to the total cooking time.

TAPPING INTO THE FOUNTAIN OF KNOWLEDGE

INTERVIEW WITH WALTER POTENZA OF AQUA VIVA EURO BISTRO

ON AUGUST 7, 2001 TUESDAY 11:00 AM.
WRITTEN BY REBECCA BOZEMAN

A waiter is prepping for the lunch crowd when I arrive. Since this was my first interview with a chef, I wanted to get the low down on Walter before I had to meet him. Aqua Viva has long been a favorite of mine. Walter had come over to my table and introduced himself and inquired about our dining experience. He makes a point of personally greeting most of his patrons. Rather bluntly, I asked the waiter if Walter was easy to talk to. The waiter informed me that Walter was a fountain of knowledge in everything including business. The interview took approximately 40 minutes. Within that forty minutes I attempted to tap into that fountain of knowledge. This is a man who prides himself on being one of the closest chefs to his heritage here in the Renaissance City. Most would agree he has accomplished this.

Aqua Viva is a Euro Bistro with Tapas style dining. For those unfamiliar with this popular trend in dining it is a form which is used to eat foods from the 16 countries in Europe United. These include, but are not limited to, Spain, Italy, and Portugal. The portions are smaller in size than a regular entrée and are shared among everyone dining at the table.

Did you know from an early age that you wanted to be a chef?

No. I received a degree in Architecture and History. It was not until later that I took cooking classes at a camp in Italy. There I believe I found my niche.

Can you describe the décor of your Bistro? Where did you get the idea for Euro Bistro?

Well, Aqua Viva means live water so we went with the blue tile around the bar, giving the restaurant a cool feeling. We decided on the stainless steel to give it that modern touch. In the winter it becomes cold in here because of the brick walls so we do something that is so simple to create warmth that many people cannot believe it. We slip simple pillowcases over the back of the steel chairs. This is such a simple idea yet it makes a huge difference.

What projects are you involved in aside from the restaurant?

So many changes are happening at this time. I just recently opened a gourmet shop called ETRURIA, which is located in Aqua Viva. We also added outdoor seating in the back. The entire building at 286 Atwells Avenue will soon be called The Palace of the Arts which will include a culinary concept on every floor. The building will be a culinary center in which I hope to create and offer numerous opportunities for local culinary students and ordinary patrons. One floor will consist of fine dining seating approximately 40 guests and will be called Walter's Historical Fine Dining. I will serve dishes ranging from the Roman Empire to the Spanish Inquisition. I will be blending History with food spanning the past 100 years. Another floor will contain an area for chefs to use video's to assist in their culinary technique and learning experience.

Where did you come up with the ideas for this Culinary Center?

I attended Etruria International Cooking School in Gubbio, Italy. A beautiful area that complemented the culinary experience. Here the style of learning allowed you to take excursions in the morning to reinforce what you learned in the actual classroom. It was quite an experience and quite an inspiration that I would like to share with everyone.

What is the most popular item on Aqua Viva's menu?

That is a difficult question because people's preferences change with the seasons and times. Winter people tend to want heartier fare, versus summer they often want lighter fare. If I had to choose something I would say Gambas al Ajillo which is shrimp sauteed with garlic and saffron, reduced with sherry wine, served over parsley savory wheat for $11.95.

What do you love most about your field?

The ability to spend time with people who are real everyday folk. No façade or high expectations from either party. I enjoy bringing back the romance of a couple's life, even for one evening. Most of all I want to see a smile on all the customers faces.

FLORIDA CAMPUS

The Florida Campus, established in 1992, is located in the heart of North Miami, between Miami and Ft. Lauderdale. With South Beach to the south and the Ft. Lauderdale strip to the north, it's easy to find something to do anytime.

Majestic palms line the Florida Campus where over 1,600 students are enrolled in the College of Business, the College of Culinary Arts, and The Hospitality College. Yet, it's still small enough that faculty and administrators remember your name. Florida was chosen the campus to host the first golf major as a concentration in the Sports/Entertainment/Event Management program. In its first year, the golf team won the Southeastern Regional Championships, placed in the top 10 in the National Championships (NAIA), and has two All American players.

Getting involved is the key. Whether it's hanging with friends, shooting some pool, attending a student club function or playing intramural sports, there's always something to do on campus. Student Activities also provides numerous opportunities to enjoy off campus life as well. Trips to the movies, theatre, beach, Miami Heat and Dolphins games and many other fun-filled events in the Miami/Fort Lauderdale area are held each week.

Living in University housing is one of the special experiences associated with academic growth. While the primary function of Johnson & Wales University's residence halls is to provide students a place to sleep and study while attending J&W, the Residential Life Staff is committed to making our residence halls genuine living/learning centers for students. Your residence hall is your home, a place to relax and enjoy yourself. It is important, however, that an atmosphere for studying prevails.

Established in 1987, our Norfolk campus has more than 600 full-time and continuing education students earning certificates and associate degrees in Culinary Arts. And, in September 2001, we'll begin offering a bachelor's degree in Food Service Management.

Located in the heart of the Hampton Roads, this coastal Virginia city offers students the fun-filled Waterside Marketplace, beautiful Town Point Park and many spectacular beaches. There are also annual free outdoor concerts, dances and festivals for all to enjoy.

While Norfolk students develop their skills in lab and academic classes, they also have the opportunity to share their talents with others via community service learning. An option within Communications class, it has taken them into homeless shelters to cook meals, Boys and Girls Clubs to tutor, and local stores such as Wal-Mart to educate consumers about kitchen sanitation.

J&W at Norfolk resident students enjoy a truly unique college experience. They spend their days focused on a premier culinary education at the J&W campus and Jive at Old Dominion University (ODU), another respected Norfolk educational institution. This partnership gives students the best of both worlds - world class, personal instruction on a small campus and life on a large one.

Students reside in Gresham East, a co-ed dormitory where men and women live in alternating suites on the same floor. Two people typically share a room, with two rooms sharing an adjoining bathroom. Each has a private vanity. Upperclassmen may reside in adjacent apartments. Free transportation is provided between J&W and ODU.

VIRGINIA

The Charleston campus, established in 1984, is located in one of America's oldest and most beautiful cities. Charleston boasts a wealth of historic homes, plantations, museums, fine restaurants, wide sandy beaches and numerous recreational opportunities.

The campus facilities are located in the Port City Center, a five-story brick building constructed in 1881 as part of the Reconstruction effort following the War Between the States. These facilities include administrative offices as well as academic classrooms, demonstration/production kitchens, bakeshops, dining rooms, a storeroom, mixology laboratory, library and computer laboratories.

The Student Center and University Housing are located nearby, with recreational and athletic facilities available to the student body.

Students living in University-provided housing at the Charleston campus in Charleston, SC enjoy a truly unique style of dormitory living. All housing students reside at the Village Square Apartment Complex located in the scenic West Ashley section of Charleston.

As opposed to traditional college dormitories, students live in fully furnished 2 bedroom, 2 bath apartments. All kitchens have major appliances including stove, dishwasher, a refrigerator with ice maker and garbage disposal. Four students are assigned to each apartment; two students per bedroom. Local telephone service is provided by the University.

Charleston students enjoy many amenities while living in student housing such as a swimming pool, basketball courts, tennis courts and laundry facilities. The housing complex is located within walking distance of the city library and the University's brand new 20,000 square foot Student Activities Center. Banks, grocery stores, restaurants and a large shopping mall are all within close proximity. Free transportation is provided between

The Denver Campus of Johnson & Wales opened its doors to its first class of 825 students in the fall of 2000. Located on a beautiful, 26-acre campus nestled in one of Denver's most historic neighborhoods, they offer students the opportunity to live and study in one of the most dynamic and beautiful cities in the world. With the majestic Rocky Mountains as a backdrop, our students develop life skills on a campus that has been home to students for over one hundred years - yet they learn and study in state-of-the-art business and culinary facilities that are unrivaled in the western part of the United States.

Life on campus has taken off over the past several months and our students have wholeheartedly committed themselves to making this an interesting and worthwhile place to learn!

COLORADO

Johnson & Wales University established its first international learning site in Göteborg, Sweden in 1992. Since that time, the Göteborg campus has become a vibrant and personal learning environment in which faculty, administration and students work together towards the achievement of educational goals.

The unique type of international education allows students to study the first year of their Bachelor's degree program at our Göteborg campus, then complete their university studies at one of our campus locations in the United States.

Studying in Göteborg

Scandinavian students can study their first year close to their family and friends, while they acclimate themselves to American university life. Study time abroad is therefore shortened.

Students from other countries can gain cultural experience from both Sweden and America while getting their university education.

Student Government Elections
October 2, 2001

We challenge you...

Last year, Student Government addressed issues concerning student life, campus facilities, and university policies. We will continue to do so, however this year we are taking our efforts to a new level. In each Campus Herald, SGA will present the student body with issues that affect students and the college lifestyle. Every other week, a new issue will be presented and the issue addressed.

Whether the topic is political on a local or national level, we want to hear from you. If there is something that you would like to bring to our attention, then tell us. We may not always have the same stance on issues, but there are always battles to be fought. The Student Government Association exists for one reason, to serve you, the student body. We are the voice of the students.

This year, the Student Government Association wants to challenge you to take an extra step and show that you do have an opinion worth hearing. In the next Campus Herald, we'll have our first issue. If you are interested in suggesting a topic or if you are interested in helping in some way, call us at 598-1091 or email us at sga@jwu.edu.

From Us, To You

Welcome to Johnson & Wales

Greetings Members of the Class of 2002,

My name is Juan Soto and I am proud to be serving as President of the Class of 2002. It will be my job to serve as the representative of the Senior Class to Student Government Association and to the University as a whole.

First, I would like to thank you for placing your trust in my abilities to serve as your Class President. As a member of Student Government Association for the last three years, I have learned the in's and out's of Johnson & Wales and I am ready to represent you. I want to make sure that this year is the best possible for our class. We have worked hard over the last years and we deserve a great senior year. It will be my job to help fulfill that wish.

This year, we are bringing back the Senior Class Clambake. This event, normally held in May, has been the traditional festivity to end the senior year. This year, the officers of the Class of 2002 are looking to make it bigger and better than ever. Also, your class officers will be working on fundraising efforts to go towards the Senior Class Gift. Each class that passes through Johnson & Wales is unique and I want to make sure that we leave our mark here at the University.

To make this year the best possible, I want to hear from YOU! Your ideas and comments are always welcome. Stop by the Student Government Office on the first floor of the Citizen's Bank Center for Student Involvement (CBCSI Building) or call ext. 1091. I believe that this is going to be a great year for the Class of 2002 and I can't wait to work with each and everyone of you, on making this dream a reality.

Sincerely,
Juan A. Soto
Senior Class President

CCCS Offers College Students Some Credit-Wise Tips

Courtesy of U-Wire

FORT WORTH, Texas, /PRNewswire/ -- In an ideal world, all college students would know how to handle their finances. Unfortunately, when it comes to credit card management, most students find that they need more studying.

"Many students would fail if they were graded on their management of credit cards and bank accounts," said Marianne Gray, president of Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Fort Worth. "This is an area where they can definitely use some extra credit."

Half of card-carrying students pay late fees and 7 percent have had a card cancelled, declares the California Public Interest Research Group. College students are not much better with check-books, according to a Quicken study, with half bouncing checks.

If you are a college student, these tips from CCCS can help you!

-- Learn credit card terms. Credit card words such as grace periods, annual fees, annual percentage rates, are terms you should know. Visit websites like www.bankrate.com and www.cardweb.com to familiarize yourself with these terms

-- Calculate the cost of credit. Credit may be convenient but it isn't free. Interest charges can be expensive. For example, if you have a $1000 balance on a credit card at 17 percent interest and make only $25 minimum payments, you'll pay $979 in interest charges.

-- Develop a spending plan. Develop a written spending plan and stick to it. Pay with cash first and if you have to use credit, have a plan to pay off your balance within 90 days.

-- Be leery of deals too good to be true. A free tee shirt is not a bargain if you have to sign up for a $25-a-year credit card to get it. Always read the fine print because getting something free could involve a hidden cost.

-- Protect yourself from credit card fraud. Protect your credit card number by shredding receipts, outdated bills, and pre-approved credit card offers you don't need. Keep your card in a secure place and remember that if you let someone use your card, you are responsible for the charges.

CCCS is a non-profit community service organization that provides confidential counseling, guidance, debt management, and educational programs to financially troubled consumers. For help with money management or budgeting, contact CCCS 24 hours a day, 7 days a week at 1-800-374-2227.

Dear University Community:

Welcome to a new and exciting school year. The members of the 2000-2001 JWU "Student Organization of the Year" would like to take this opportunity to introduce you to the National Society of Minorities in Hospitality (NSMH). NSMH is a national student run, professional organization with over 45 university chapters nation-wide and internationally. As the premier organization for minority hospitality students its main objective is to help prepare students for advancement within the industry. The National Society of Minorities in Hospitality is one of the nation's most dynamic student organizations and is distinctive because the members represent an array of social and cultural backgrounds and bring a wealth of unique perspectives and ideas to the organization.

NSMH member chapter's promote academic achievement, serve the community, provide social interaction, and promote growth within the hospitality industry. Here at JWU a few of the upcoming chapter plans include promoting & sponsoring diversity events, participating in the NSMH National High School Initiative—a hospitality industry awareness and mentoring effort, attending the 12th Annual Conference in Las Vegas, Nevada and participating in industry events.

Since the founding of NSMH in 1990 at Cornell University numerous sponsors including ARAMARK Incorporated, Four Seasons Hotels & Resorts, Marriott International, Disney and Darden Restaurants have provided internships, jobs, seminars, and scholarships for NSMH members, providing them with opportunities that will last a lifetime.

The National Society of Minorities Hospitality invites you to join them during their Welcome Meeting on Tuesday, September, 25 2001 at 5:00 p.m. in the Multicultural Center (MCC) or during weekly Tuesday meetings at 5:00p.m. in MCC. Don't miss the opportunity to join the organization of a lifetime. For more information contact the chapter advisor, Mrs. Pits-Wiley at 598-1464 or visit www.nsmh.org

PROVIDENCE WATERFIRE

WaterFire Providence®, the award-winning sculpture by Barnaby Evans installed on the three rivers of downtown Providence, has been praised by Rhode Island residents and international visitors alike as a powerful work of art and a moving symbol of Providence's renaissance. WaterFire's sparkling bonfires, the fragrant scent of aromatic wood smoke, the flickering firelight on the arched bridges, the silhouettes of the firetenders passing by the flames, the torch-lit vessels traveling down the river, and the enchanting music from across the world all engage the senses and emotions of those who stroll the paths and bridges of Waterplace Park. WaterFire has captured the imagination of many thousands of people, bringing life to downtown, and continues to revitalize Rhode Island's capital city.

Cited by the Providence Journal in 1997 as "the most popular work of art created in the capital city's [365]-year history," WaterFire continues to grow and gain in popularity. Barnaby Evans created First Fire in 1994 as a commission to celebrate the tenth anniversary of First Night Providence. In June 1996, Evans created Second Fire for the International Sculpture Conference where it became the gathering place for thousands of participants from all over the world. Ardent art supporters convinced Evans to create an on-going fire installation and started a grass-roots effort to establish WaterFire as a non-profit arts organization. With the support of hundreds of dedicated volunteers, generous donations from many individuals, contributions from corporate leaders and support from the City and State, WaterFire's flickering flames now regularly return to illuminate downtown Providence.

In 1997, WaterFire Providence expanded to 42 braziers, and attracted an estimated attendance of 350,000 people during thirteen lightings. Evans received the Renaissance Award from the City of Providence for his work as an artist and his role in revitalizing downtown Providence.

In response to growing attendance, WaterFire expanded in size to 81 braziers in 1998; and 97 braziers in 1999. The 1999 season culminated in a special WaterFire lighting for the December 31 millennium celebrations. WaterFire's 2000 season was our biggest so far - more than thirty sponsors helped host 25 lightings during a season that ran from March to October.

Hundreds of volunteers have devoted many thousands of hours to create WaterFire for the enjoyment of the public. The broad support for WaterFire Providence and its power to attract millions of visitors are eloquent testimony to the power of public art and to its capacity to restore our urban and social landscape.

BOOK REVIEW

The Greatest Generation BY TOM BROKAW

They drive too slow, tip too little, pinch too hard, and are apprehensive to change. Yet this same generation has laid the foundation of the current financial powerhouse we live in. Every benefit we reap today was sowed by those who came before us, and had it much harder than we'll every dream of. At a time when their lives should have consisted of innocent adventure, love and lessons of life, their futures were decided for them. To live through the Great Depression they went to work at ages that we couldn't fathom, under conditions that would give OSHA enough to do for a decade. As if having to contribute to the family income at age 15 wasn't bad enough, the future for these young men and women wasn't looking too bright either. A few short years later they'd find themselves defending the great nation that just put them to work due to its own financial shortcomings. They'd find themselves on another continent's landscape camouflaged with the blood of other heroes, firing at people they'd never met and watching friends die in their laps.

At ages fifteen and sixteen, the pressures and decisions you faced revolved around one thing...you. What college will I attend? What will I get on the SATs? Will I pass the driving test? What car will I drive? Our complaints revolve around how slow the computer is and why we can't have more done for us. Why the coach doesn't play you or how long it takes at McDonald's. Never have we experienced a national sacrifice that controlled who we are and what we'll be. This book gives great insight to a time in which youth's lives were not as simple as today.

The Greatest Generation by Tom Brokaw is a book of short stories of the lives of those heroes and heroines who built modern America. These pages will take you into the lives of a generation that survived the Second World War and were untold by it; learning duty, honor, courage, perseverance, service, national pride, and above all, responsibility for oneself. The book is written as a series of short stories divided into eight categories: Ordinary People, Home Front, Heroes, Women In and Out of Uniform, Shame, Famous People, The Arena and Love, Marriage Commitment which make it suitable for easy reading. The book is not just a source of entertainment, but a tool for communicating a sense of respect and admiration for a generation that has produced unlike any before. The old adage "respect your elders" is given life in this book; its made personal.

MOVIE

CRITIC'S CORNER

By DNA Smith

"American Pie 2"

In 1999, the surprise success of "American Pie" spawned a whirlwind of teen sex comedies. After a two-year hiatus, Stifler and the gang are back, but this time around, their antics seem like a rerun.

Which is not to say that "American Pie 2" is a dog. There are plenty of laughs to be had, but much of the movie looks like a rehash of gags they did in the first film.

The film picks up a year or so after the events of the first movie. The boys have just completed their first year of college and plan to celebrate by renting a place by a lake in Michigan.

Jim (Jason Biggs) learns that Nadia (Shannon Elizabeth), the Czech exchange student he had Internet sex with in the first movie, is coming back to America and wants to hook up with him.

Despite a year in college, poor Jim still hasn't learned much of anything — at least when it comes to doing the dirty deed.

His love life is so pathetic that when his girlfriend offers him "friendly good-bye sex" to celebrate the end of the term, he observes that they never had "hello sex."

To help him beef-up his sexual repertoire, Jim enlists the help of Michelle (Alyson Hannigan). You remember Michelle. From Band Camp? Yup. Her.

Frankly, the only performance in this film that really shines is Hannigan's. I'd see "American Pie 2" again simply to watch the way she approaches her character. In what could have been just a throwaway, one-dimensional performance, Hannigan instead imbues Michelle with a special, subtle tenderness that is refreshing, three-dimensional and totally human.

Coming in a close second is the performance by Eugene Levy as Jim's dad. I've loved Levy ever since his SCTV days. The man has a gift for creating memorable, believable characters no matter how slapstick the material handed to him.

"American Pie 2" also contains the requisite gross gags and sexual mishaps we expect. Some work. Some don't. None of them can be printed here.

In a nutshell: If you liked the first movie, you'll find enough laughs in the sequel to feel like you got your money's worth.

AALIYAH

January 16, 1979 - August 25, 2001

Although Aaliyah was only 22 years old when she was killed Saturday in a plane crash, the musicians and movie directors who remembered her this week almost unanimously noted her artistic maturity — both as a singer unafraid to push R&B's envelope and as an actress whose commitment to her craft belied her age.

She released only three albums and appeared onscreen in one film — she was set to follow her performance in 2000's "Romeo Must Die" with turns in "Queen of the Damned" and both sequels to "The Matrix" — but nearly every one who worked with Aaliyah pegged her as a creative force on the ascent (see "Aaliyah Mourned As Artist Who Had 'Boundless Potential'"). (Click for photos of Aaliyah through the years.)

"As a performer, she was one of the best I have ever seen do what she does," said Hype Williams, who directed the "Rock the Boat" video Aaliyah filmed in the Bahamas just before she died (see "Aaliyah Plane Crash Investigation: No End in Sight"). Williams said working on the clip with her was like working with family.

Aaliyah, who collaborated with such names as Timbaland, Missy Elliott, Rodney Jerkins and Naughty by Nature's Treach, was no producer's puppet. When the 17-year-old went into the studio with Treach in 1996 to work on One In A Million, her second album, she clearly wanted an artistic partner (see "Timbaland, P. Diddy, Other Artists React To Aaliyah's Death").

"She was like my lil' sis," Treach said Monday. "She'd come up and put her arm next to me like, 'Listen, we gonna make this song together. I don't want you to do just one verse and it's over. We gonna do the hook together.'"

Jerkins, who worked with Aaliyah on "Everything's Gonna Be Alright" and a remix of "One In A Million," marveled at the singer's artistic growth between her 1996 effort and this summer's eponymous release, which found her examining the complexities of adult romance (see "Hard-Working Aaliyah Packed Hit Albums, Movies Into Short Life").

"She grew like crazy from the time I worked with her to the stuff she's doing now," Jerkins said. "She was trying to out herself before. But by the third album, she was more of a performer, she became more of an artist."

Jermaine Dupri, who also worked on One In A Million, characterized Aaliyah as a risk taker and groundbreaker with a sound unlike anyone else's.

"I think it was fly that she took chances on her music," Dupri said of the progression from her R. Kelly-produced debut to the Timbaland beats on her second album. "Just the softness of how she sang over them hard-ass beats. It was something different."

Aaliyah's unique sound and willingness to experiment won her fans outside the R&B and hip-hop genres. Korn leader Jonathan Davis penned several songs for a vampire rock band in "Queen of the Damned" and planned to remix one of them with Aaliyah and Timbaland. He said Aaliyah was unafraid to bring a hint of darkness to mainstream radio's otherwise sunny vistas.

"She does really great, different stuff that's dark," he said Monday. "She skirts the goth edge. There's something cool and mysterious about her. I dug that. Just a dark little girl singing some cool-ass sh--."

Aaliyah wasn't simply a pop star who took up acting as a lark. She brought her unconventional approach to her movie roles, too. Michael Rymer, who directed Aaliyah in the title role of "Queen of the Damned," said she brought a unique approach to the part of 5,000-year-old Akasha, transforming the character into something complex and terrifying.

"Aaliyah and I devised a plan in which she would be the oldest, most powerful creature in the world, but she would play it like a child, like a kitten playing with a mouse," Rymer said. "It could have been a complete joke and come off in an embarrassing way. We both knew we were taking a huge risk and that if we pulled it off, it would be much more exciting than if we approached it more conventionally. She was a young queen."

For "Matrix" producer Joel Silver, who also cast Aaliyah in "Romeo Must Die," her skill and talent were crystallized in a scene where she talks to Jet Li's character about the death of her character's brother. She had to break down in tears but refused to resort to such tricks as blowing menthol up her nose or putting fake tears on her cheeks.

"Aaliyah didn't want to do that. She reached down somewhere and found this place where she could be this incredible actress," Silver said, beginning to cry himself. "She was a fantastic girl."

Filmmakers and musicians alike applauded Aaliyah's professionalism. Rymer said she was a dream to work with, never becoming impatient even while suffering through hours of makeup and waiting in the cold to film a scene. Treach said he never heard a negative word about her from anyone.

"You hear certain things through the industry about who you can work with and who you can't," he said. "You heard nothing but good stuff about Aaliyah."

Beyond her musical vision and professionalism, Aaliyah possessed an undeniable star quality, a magnetism and aura that separate the great from the merely good.

"Some stars have a unique way of capturing their audience without saying a word," Williams said. "That comes from charisma. It comes from charm. A lot of it comes from someplace else. I can't really define it, but I'm always able to recognize it. She had that 'magic,' for lack of a better word."

STUDENT ACTIVITIES WELCOMES NEW STAFF MEMBER

As we all head off to classes for another year, there are new staff members heading off to work at Johnson & Wales University for the first time as well. Student Activities has hired a new Assistant Director, Tanya McGinn, who will be serving as the Greek Advisor and also working with all clubs and organizations.

McGinn was most recently the Assistant Director of Student Activities at Bryant College. While there she served as the Greek Advisor and worked with various student organizations and programs including Homecoming, Orientation, Programming Board and Leadership. Over the past year she has served as a consultant to various colleges and universities including assisting with the most recent Greek Leadership Retreat at Johnson & Wales University and writing some educational material for recruitment purposes.

A graduate of Washburn University in Kansas, she was a very active student leader. During her undergraduate years she served as president of her own sorority, an orientation leader, student senator and appropriations chair, and chartered a new community service group on campus. She attended graduate school at Emporia State University in Kansas where she also worked with fraternities and sororities in the Student Activities Office. While at Bryant College she received the Advisor of the Year award and was recognized as the Northeast Outstanding Panhellenic Advisor in 1999. She also served as the National Board for Alpha Phi and coordinates the Northeast Regional Leadership Conference for Alpha Phi as well.

When asked about her outlook on her new position she was positive about her JWU experience so far. "I am very excited to be at Johnson & Wales University. I think there are some great opportunities here and I really look forward to working with all the students. I'm a big believer and promoter for Greek Life because of the very positive impact my own greek experience has had on my life but I also realize some of the challenges and struggles that Greek organization face. I think there is tremendous potential at this university for Greek Life to become stronger and I'm pleased to be able to be a part of that."

During the next year she hopes to have a chance to work closely with the students and continue to develop a strong foundation for Greek Life while also assisting the councils and chapters with programming, recruitment, and publicizing the positive aspects of greek membership. Tanya is located in the Student Activities Office in the CBCSI Building downtown and be sure to welcome her to Johnson & Wales when you have a chance.

Greek Trivia Question

QUESTION: What three national men's fraternities do not have a greek letter in their name?

- Aretha Franklin
- Betty Crocker
- Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.
- Dr. Seuss
- George Bush
- Jesse Jackson
- Kate Spade
- Katie Couric
- Neil Armstrong
- Ronald Reagan
- Ruth Baiter Ginsberg
- Shaquille O'Neal
- Sheryl Crowe

What do all these people have in common?

They are all greek. Don't you want to be greek too? Consider the benefits of membership in a fraternity or sorority today. You'll join a long list of outstanding men and women who are part of the Greek Community.

If you see this Professor today, wish her a...

Dear International Club Members and Friends:

On behalf of Johnson & Wales University International Club, I welcome you back and wish you an adventurous upcoming year.

As in the past the International Club will continue to hold its coffee hour event. I encourage that you participate and make new friends this year.

The Executive Board structure changed and we are looking for new officers. If you or anyone you know is interested please have them email me at jwu\_intl@hotmail.com or call me at 401-598-4906, as soon as possible.

The opening positions are as follows:

- |                            |                      |
|----------------------------|----------------------|
| Vice President             | Secretary            |
| Treasurer                  | Reporter/Historian   |
| Community Service Director | Fundraiser Director  |
| Membership Director        | Coffee Hour Director |

Anyone with or without leadership experience is encouraged to take a leadership and a challenging role on campus. All elected officers will be trained for their new positions. Make the best of your college experience and LEAD Now!

I look forward to a remarkable year. Enjoy the rest of your summer and plan for a magnificent time.

Sincerely,

Senna Saeed

International Club President

Every Year, J&W Students Stand Up and Initiate Change

Community Service-Learning Coordinator
Feinstein Community Service Center
J&W University

One of the outstanding features of J&W is its award-winning Community Service-Learning (CSL) program, through which students complete service projects at local non-profit organizations in conjunction with a course, lab or practicum. Faculty are key in this process. Faculty members now offer CSL in over 80 classes, giving their students a chance to learn concepts, test ideas and apply academic skills beyond the classroom walls. Last academic year, 2,145 J&W undergraduate and graduate students performed an astonishing number of hours of service through CSL: over 47,000 hours at places ranging from soup kitchens to courthouses. J&W requires students to participate in CSL because the university takes seriously its own power as a civic leader and member of the Providence community. As a national leader in career education, the university's mission is to educate its students to be prepared to have a positive impact on the business world and in the public sphere.

After completing their CSL experience, students often realize that their own lives and feelings have been affected. Just this past summer, one J&W student, Maggie Connor, worked with children with disabilities at Teaberry Knoll Therapeutic Horse Farm. In her report, reflecting on her experience at the horse farm, Connor writes, "To be honest, I was not too sure what to expect, or if I could handle working with these children for that matter [...] Because of my experience at Teaberry Knoll, I realized that one person could make a difference."

This realization and sense of empowerment is a far cry from the mainstream, where pessimism and cynicism often dominate perceptions about the meaningfulness of civic engagement. One 1990 national study of the attitudes of college age youth determined that many young people have disengaged from politics and civic life because of a pervading sense of helplessness and hopelessness. As one participant in the study put it, "One thing I have learned [is that] I can't change anything." The experience of J&W students in the community and the impact they have had over the years prove otherwise. "We must have the courage to stand up and initiate change," says Connor.

There's still time to register for CSL for the fall trimester. Call or stop by the Feinstein Community Service Center between 8:30 am and 4:30 pm every day this week and next through Friday, September 21, 2001. The Center is located on the third floor of the Arcade Building, 65 Weybosset St., downtown Providence. Call us at 598-2989 if you have any questions about the CSL requirement, registration and other opportunities to contribute to civic life and possibly change your own.

GO!!!!!! WILDCATS

Lady Wildcats Ready to Roar

Women's Soccer preview 2001

By Kareem Davis

Following a very successful campaign in the 2000 season the lady wildcats are back at it again, all everyone is asking is what can they do for an encore. Last season the lady wildcats advanced to the first round of NCAA tournament. The lady wildcats hope experience will take them to the next level in 2001. The lady wildcats finished last season as the most successful JWU soccer team ever posting a record of 18-1-2. The confidence and talent is there to lead the lady wildcats to another GNAC Championship. Last season was one of beauty for the ladies they started going in the right direction early and carried the momentum throughout the season. They established themselves as a strong defensive team, but with some very good offense players who made the big shots in tight games. This year the main objective is for the lady wildcats to maintain that mind set as a strong defensive team and continue to improve on offense and become a more dangerous team. Everything is in place for the lady wildcats to have another great year but last year the ladies didn't have any expectations. This year the expectations couldn't be higher. The lady wildcats are the defending GNAC Champions and when you're on top every one is gunning for you. Everything went the lady wildcat's way last season but if they don't get rid of last season memories and emotions this season can become a nightmare even before the first game is played. Can the lady wildcats leave up to the hype or is the hype too much for the ladies.

LADY WILDCATS FALL IN SEASON OPENER

By Kareem Davis

The JWU Women's Soccer team dropped their season opener to the ladies of Weaton College 10-0. The ladies of Weaton jumped on the scoreboard early and often posting a 8-0 halftime lead. The ladies of Weaton did a very good job of catching the lady wildcats off guard, and continued to pound them right through the first half. The lady wildcats began to resemble the team of last year in the second half by playing more aggressive defense, but by that time it was two late Weaton put two more goals on the board and the ladies continued to struggle on offense. Looking back at the game, the prime mistake was the lady wildcats switched up their prime defensive formation the (Box Four) and played a three zone which made them at some times look out of zinc. Hopefully the lady wildcats can bounce back from this defeat and continue their quest for a consecutive GNAC. Championship

MEN'S SOCCER WINS OPENER

Courtesy of John Parente

Playing their opening game at home was a unique experience for the Johnson & Wales men's soccer team. Playing their opener under the lights at Pierce Stadium was unique, too. The outcome of their opener, however, was not.

The Wildcats, who had won their first game in each of the last three seasons, did it again, blitzing Endicott College, 4-2. But it was the way that the 'Cats handled their opener that turned out to be better than the final score.

Mark Scott, returning from a year off and two leg injuries, scored twice, and assisted on Steve Tenaglia's two goals, as the Wildcats went out to a 4-1 lead in the first 49 minutes and never looked back, much to the delight of over 150 who showed up for the opener.

Tenaglia opened the scoring just six minutes into the contest, when Scott hit him with a perfect cross. Now one-on-one from five yards, Tenaglia converted a shot that Endicott's Mitch Donar had no chance to save, and the 'Cats led, one-zip.

Scott, fouled in the box at 27:19, converted his penalty kick to make it 2-0. Endicott's Kyle Austin was credited with a goal on a misplayed corner kick, bringing the Power Gulls to within a goal in the 31st minute, but Tenaglia made it 3-1 with the most critical goal of the game, with only four seconds left to play until halftime.

For a second time, Tenaglia was left alone in front, and took a perfect chip from Scott and turned it into a two-goal lead. Scott was to finish the scoring before five minutes had passed into the second half, when John Sassman hit Scott in stride on a two-on-one break.

Tim Hurley's goal on a penalty kick in the 71st minute proved to be inconsequential, and the 'Cats played steady defense in the final 19 minutes to end all doubt.

Coach Gregg Miller, starting his seventh season, was satisfied, but noted that his team "has some work to do. We were out of position a little bit at times. We passed the ball really well, though, and we handled ourselves pretty well in a pretty physical game. Not bad."

The Wildcats, who face their most challenging schedule in their history, play Clark University in Worcester, Massachusetts, on Tuesday, and then tangle with Roger Williams, the defending Commonwealth Coast Conference champion, on Thursday. The 'Cats get back to work in the Great Northeast Athletic Conference on Saturday in the second game of a women's-men's doubleheader. After the women's team plays Rivier at 1:00, the Wildcat men meet Western New England at 3:00.

WHO WILL SMELL THE ROSES? COLLEGE FOOTBALL PREVIEW 2001-2002

Are you ready for some high flying? Not the NFL or Vince McMahon Flop XFL. Are you ready for some highflying put it all out their heisman hopefuls? Battle of the bands, Still waiting on a playoff system college football. College football has returned to primetime, and if you are a sports fan like myself you are in for one of the most exciting college football seasons in recent years. The 2001-2002 college football season is sure to be a treat with at least seven teams having a legitimate chance of making it to Rosa Bowl in January. Below are my top twenty-five teams in college football this year.

1. Texas- First step the Whitehouse, step two a national Championship.
2. Florida- Could have been number one but with quarterback questions they're number two.
3. Miami- The swagger has returned, but will a national championship.
4. Oregon State - One of last years surprise teams won't surprise anyone this year, but they won't have too.
5. Florida State- Could this be the year the mighty Seminoles fall.
6. Okalahoma- National Championship talent but won't make it to Pasadena.
7. Oregon - The ducks will fly this year Pasadena with in eye site, but plenty of teams are hunting them.
8. Nebraska- The big red machine is in for a bumpy road, but with most of the key games at home the road will get a lot smoother.
9. Georgia Tech- September 15, September 15 (Florida State) that's all they have to worry about.
10. Tennessee- Started to gather all of the pieces of the puzzle last year, this year they put it together.
11. Virginia Tech- Suggs is good but he's no Vick! NO National Championship.
12. Clemson- With an injury free Danzler they are the one's to watch in the ACC.
13. Kansas State- Too many new faces to be a serious contender this year.
14. Michigan- Unproven quarterback, new offensive line, to many new pieces.
15. Notre Dame- Can the luck of the Irish continue from last year?
16. Washington- A lot of talent but not enough experience, 2003 that's their year.
17. Northwestern- How far can the legs of Damien Anderson take them? Maybe a Big Ten Championship.
18. Alabama- How can they be considered a powerhouse when their head coach doesn't even think this team is as strong as his last years team and he coached at TCU.
19. Colorado State- They are the favorite in the Mountain West, but watch out for UNLV.
20. South Carolina- If this team shows up every week and keeps down the turnovers the SEC will be all shook up.
21. Mississippi State- They finally have an offense to go with that fearsome defense. The Bulldogs bite will be worst then they're bark.
22. LSU- If Rohan Davey can stay healthy and the defense lives up to expectations the tigers will be on the prowl.
23. UCLA- To many defensive problems, especially with offenses like Oregon and Oregon state in the same conference.
24. Wisconsin- Two All-American running backs departure in the last two years took away there chance at a big ten title.
25. Ohio State- Will surprise a lot of teams in the Big Ten this year, Michigan. beware.

DWEBB OF THE WEEK

The dweeb of the week is no other then Lleyton Hewitt, the number four seed in this year's US Open. Hewitt was in a five set thriller with wild-card James Blake but after being called for two foot faults by a black linesman, Hewitt requested that the linesman be removed. At one point Hewitt was heard saying, "Look at him", gesturing at the linesman. "And look at him," pointing at Blake, one of the few black players in the field. Hewitt went on to win the match and move on to the next round. At the match Hewitt denied that he was a racist, but did not apologize for his comments. This is the second time racism has come up in the US open this year the first is when Martina Hingis stated that Venus and Serena Williams were getting special treatment because they are African- American. The US Open is one of the greatest tennis events of the year, played in the greatest city in the World (NY). But with these two incidents occurring, a damping effect has come over flushing meadows. And it didn't come from up above. So for ruining one of the greatest sporting events of the year Lleyton Hewitt you are the dweeb of the week!

COACH K's CORNER

In 1998 the baseball world couldn't get enough of Mark McGwire as he chased ROGER MARIS home run record. The media constantly wrote about him the fans simply adored him. The world seemed like it came to a complete stop every time Big Mac was up to bat. In 1998 Mark McGwire did something special for the game of baseball. Americans were losing interest after the strike of 1996. McGwire helped rekindle the flame in a lot of Americans to make baseball America's past time again, when all was said and done and Mark McGwire ended the season with seventy homeruns the baseball world kinged him the new icon of baseball, Big Mac had replace the Big Bambino (Babe Ruth). So I ask as Barry Bonds approaches the mystical feat of perhaps passing seventy home runs in a season and replacing Big Mac as the new king of the home run, how come the baseball world is not showing bonds the same kind of love they showed McGwire. Bonds has been the best leftfielder in baseball for God knows how long. HE is also a three time MVP, four time gold glove award winner and you wouldn't leave him off your all star team, which he has been on 13 times. Bonds is not your typical baseball superstar. He has never had the charm of Ken Griffey Junior or Alex Rodriguez. The media has downplayed every-great thing Bonds has accomplished in his Career. Now he is on the verge of breaking a record no one thought would ever be broken unless Mark McGwire was swinging the bat. I believe that it's time for the baseball lovers across the country to stand up and salute one of the greatest baseball players of all time as he continues his quest toward seventy home runs. If they don't it make s me wonder if American's have lost their love for baseball once again or if American's don't have no love for Barry Bond's.

Gravity Games: Here To Stay?

By Kareem Davis

Two weeks ago a friend of mind pointed out to me that all the signs that represent the gravity games say 99-01 he said this must be the final year. I told him the gravity games would never leave Providence, that the gravity games are becoming a part of Providence just like Water fire. People look forward to it ever year the city would never give it up. Well it looks like I was wrong and he was right.

As another year of the Gravity games goes in the books it looks like this one may be the last one the city of providence ever sees. That's right the excitement of seeing our very own perform daredevil speeds down College Hill or Wakeboarding at Roger Williams Park May have come to and end. The three-year lease that Rhode Island and NBC (Producers of the Gravity Games) has come to and end. Both sides are saying all the right things in public that they would love for the gravity games to continue in providence.

The Gravity Games is becoming a huge Sporting event and that may be the problem the city of providence is growing at rapid pace as more outside companies by up the cheap real estate in downtown providence. The city of providence currently has plans for the space occupied by the gravity games this year leaving consequently no open space for the gravity games next year. The city insists that they have space and if they don't they will make it like they have done in the past. NBC outlook on the situation is that Providence is the Perfect Place for the Gravity Games but space is limited. The City and Gravity Games Officials Will continue to meet with hope of finding a new site for gravity games 2002, but for right now the chance of gravity games returning to Providence is looking very bleak. Well at least we still have Waterfire.

MENTORS NEED FOR CITYGIRL PROGRAM

By Erica Jorgensen

This Year, the Women's Center is pleased to announce it has been selected as an official mentoring site for the Citygirls Mentorship Program. Operated through the local Boys and Girls Clubs, Citygirls' mission is to enhance a girls emotional, physical, behavioral and social development by providing new experiences that explore opportunities, challenge boundaries, allow her to experience, and trust her own strenght, courage and abilities. To do so, the Citygirls began in 1997 and currently operates at Providence College and Brown University.

The concept underlying the Citygirls program is that, through the power of mentoring, the values and support, that are brought into these girl's lives, are everlasting. It gives them the support and quidsnce they need to help them make good decisions now and in the future. This program has benefits, not only for the girls but also for college students involved. "When you mentor, you learn about yourself. Your self-esteem increases. You begin to see that your actions have an impact on society. That is an invaluable lesson that cannot be taught in a classroom," said Sheila Johnson, director of the Women's Center.

The girls and their big sisters participate in fun and educational activities on campus and off campus, such as canoeing or a visit to a ropes course. Often the girls simply enjoy being on campus and spending time talking with their big sisters. Jenny, a twelve-year old Citygirl said "The best thing about Citygirls is that I can talk with my big sister about anything." The Women's Center is currently looking for mentors to participate in this program. Mentors must be available in the late afternoon one day a week for the entire academic-year. Stop by the Center or call 598-1138 to sign up. Deadline for sign-up is September 20, 2001.

Make yourself count! Latinos in Higher Education

Brought to you by Sigma Lambda Upsilon/ Señoritas Latinas Unidas Sorority, Inc.

• Today, about 14 percent of the school-age population is Hispanic. By 2020, the proportion will grow to about 22 percent. It's estimated at that time, one out of every three workers entering the labor force will be Latino.

• About 40 percent of Latinos rely on some form of federal student financial aid to get them through college.

• Hispanic students are among the nation's most educationally disadvantaged. Thirty-nine percent of Hispanic children live in families with an income below the poverty line, a rate more than twice as high as non-Hispanic white children.

• Recent reversals of college admission policies and scholarships targeting minorities may have temporarily lowered the number of Latinos entering colleges and graduate programs.

• Pell Grants remain the most effective way to provide access to higher education for low-income students. But the grant-award amounts have not kept pace with the increase in college costs. Latino students represent 17 percent of Pell recipients.

• About 55 percent of whites enrolled in college graduate within six years, according to board reports. About 28 percent of black students graduate within six years, compared with 34 percent of Hispanics, 38 percent of American Indians and 58 percent of Asian-Americans.

THE GOSPEL CORNER

By Sister Mabline Honeydew

My Children:

I bring y'all greeting and infinite blessings in the name of our LORD and Savior the Christ. This is Sister Honeydew coming to you all the way from Coffeerville, Kansas. Coming to bring y'all the LORD's Word.

Now, my children, I know school is in session. And it ain't no little primary or secondary school, neither, this here is college. You on your own, now! And Sister Honeydew knows for all y'all new students, with the new faces, and trying to find the T Building (that's John Hazen White) and the J Building (that's Chestnuts) and so on and so forth, that college can be a bit overwhelming. But be assured! Trust in the LORD, Isay! HE will never fail and always keep your head above water. Let's go to the Word and see what good messages GOD has for us this week. Y'all know, you can never go wrong believing in the Bible. The Word of GOD is sharper than any two-edged sword: test my Word and see if I fail! Ain't that what HE says? And my children,

I'll tell you. I'd rather trust in Jesus than to trust any human, an' that's the truth! But I'm going off my course...allright...the Word says in 2 Samuel 22:3... we talking 'bout trust now, "The GOD of my rock; in him will I trust: He is my shield and the horn of my salvation..." Sounds like a song of praise, doesn't it? Well, children, it is! This verse was written by David after GOD had delivered him from being slain by Saul the king. See, David used to be the king's harp player, and then he was a general in his army. But because of God's favor with David, his forces conquered more than the king's did. So King Saul got very jealous and tried to kill David. But GOD looks out for HIS own, ain't that the truth! David managed to get away and Saul never found him.

To read about it more, read the second book of Samuel. David was so grateful to GOD for working in his favor that he wrote an entire chapter of praise to the LORD. "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee" Amen? I almost feel like shout it up in here! But let me hold my peace, children, cuz Sister Honeydew is out-off time. But heed the words of the LORD, HE won't fail!

Until next time, this is Sister Honeydew all the way from Coffeerville, Kansas saying: Blessings, Peace, and Chicken grease be with you!

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

BY: Luz Cuevas

For many decades our ancestors have struggled to provide us with a better future, but what is better and what are we doing to accomplish that for ourselves?

Yesterday

From colonization times, when the purity of our natives was stained by the violence and viciousness of the navigators, our people have fought to provide equality and break down class structure barriers. The reality is that they fought so hard against what was stronger, that most of those tribes are extinct today. However they left a valuable lesson, believe in your dreams and even if you don't live to see the outcomes the work will reflect on the lives of others. As time passes the importance of empowerment has been implemented on our people, from father to son and mother to daughter, the essence of our culture of our roots has been preserved. The vision of a prosperous future, achievement of excellence through the power of education, and the development of families where love overrules the differences and the atmosphere for growth is ideal. The question now is do we carry that dream today, or is it just part of yesterday?

Today

A better future I see today, Young girls pregnant, battered women, drug addiction, alcoholism, analphabetism and so many others. Some of us have definitely lost track of yesterdays dream! Parents struggling to work support their homes but loosing the core of what family is. Young girls looking for a boyfriend getting pregnant and leaving their house to supposedly have a better life without the misunderstandings and the oppressions of their parents households. Little do they know that they have turn down and closed most of the doors that could take them to what their dream life could be? It is sad to see our young men getting locked up for breaking the law and committing crimes that they do because that is all they know, that's what they have learned to do. It is sad to see our younger siblings dropping out of school and settle ling for minimum wage because they find the streets more appealing than continuing education. It is sad and that is all we can say.

Then there are those of us who follow a dream, maybe a difficult dream to reach but we are willing to take the challenge. We surpass the social pressure and we take the mistakes of others as guidelines to avoid stumbling. As many times as we fall we rise with our heads high and with more determination to overcome. We come to college to prepare ourselves for the roaring world; we want to fight the battle laid ahead of us. Along the way we realize that we are not alone that there are others like us, that is not a thing of yesterday but an action in present tense, it is part of today. Now what will tomorrow bring if today stays the same?

Tomorrow

If I would have! I should of! and all of the regrets will rise. When today knocked on my door I took the fastest, easiest or most clear way and now I have what I tried running away from. The young girl will say, I left home to make way for my dreams but today I have children a home and no preparation I live the life my parents did. Working ridiculous hours and not being able to provide the family atmosphere that I wanted. The young men will say, I learned from life, the rough way but I learned, now is too late I'm out of prison, but can I do something for my self? I have a criminal record and getting hired is almost impossible. While the ones that followed their dreams have preparation, a home and all the things they knew they would!

"Yesterday is history, and today is the marked scar of what tomorrow may bring"

HOROSCOPES

King Features Syndicate

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) The typically tidy Ram or Ewe might want to butt out until things are settled on the home front. But get involved and let your Ovine sense of order help restore domestic tranquility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The Bovine's flair for fine-tuning complicated fiscal dealings comes in handy when an unexpected financial problem arises. Stay with it until it's resolved to your satisfaction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Family aspects remain strong. There might be some unresolved difficulties, but continued attempts to smooth things over eventually prove to be successful. A major purchase looms.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A promise that was made but never kept suddenly re-emerges in your life. You now have to decide if you're still interested in what it offers or if you've moved past it.

LEO (July 23-August 22) Romance comes to unattached Leos and Leonas who have been waiting for Cupid to target them for far too long. Domestic purr-fectness is also enhanced for paired Felines.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) You need to take a much-needed break from that demanding project before too much energy-draining tension sets in. And don't be ashamed to ask for help.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) Change makes demands that you might find unwelcome at this time. But instead of concentrating on the short run, look toward potential benefits down the road.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) You have a gift for reviving projects that seem beyond repair. Use that same ability to restore a relationship that seems to have turned from loving to lifeless.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) Except to be asked to use your combined wisdom and humor to resolve a problem. After all, folks not only value your advice, they also like how you give it.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Most people consider you solid and steady. But you can also be quite capricious (which is Latin for describing the behavior of Goats) when it suits your needs.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) People treat you as you wish to be treated. So if you want a change in your relationship, make it happen. Also expect someone to reveal some long-held secrets.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) Stay with the decision you made, despite a sudden torrent of advice to the contrary from well-meaning people. Remember: You know your needs better than anyone.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Internships Lead to Career Success

Quiana M. McJunkins

Want the fast track to career success? Consider completing an internship next summer. An internship is a paid or volunteer job where students gain supervised practical career experience from a company in their chosen career field. After completing my internship this summer with JHM Hotels Management Inc. at the Wingate Inn-Atlanta Airport Hotel I experienced the foundation of a great career. A internship is not only a job it is the best way for students to get their name out into the industry, boost their career resume & portfolio, network with industry professionals and evaluate potential employers. It is a student's first step into realistic career experience.

During the internship process companies have high expectations of students. I was required to treat it as a full-time job, behave professionally, represent the company culture & mission and act as a source of industry information. I took on extra responsibilities by completing company assignments and tasks, networking with company executives, presenting new ideas to the company and designing a new associate of the month program. During the course of my internship it was extremely important for me to take on challenges and display the initiatives companies are looking for in future associates. Companies benefit from the internship process by evaluating students as potential management employees and students benefit by gaining invaluable work experience. At the end of the internship process if the company believes the student is a match with the company they will usually offer the student a full time position after their college career.

Surprisingly, the best time for students to begin preparing for a summer internship is early in the school year during freshmen, sophomore, or junior year. This is an excellent time to network with company representatives at career fairs, research companies during career days and practice interviewing skills. Completing my internship after freshmen year has given me the opportunity to identify what segment of the industry I would like to concentrate in and the opportunity to gain experience in the area next summer. I encourage all students to take control of their career and follow the fast track to success by pursuing an internship experience next summer. Try to make the most of your college experience now and start a great career path by exploring the industry. It won't make any students rich but it comes with many benefits, contacts and opportunities that will last a lifetime. For more information contact you academic advisor or the Career Development Offices.

Nationwide minutes may be used to call any number in the U.S. from your VoiceStream home digital service area w/ no long distance charge. Weekends are defined as midnight Fri - midnight Sun. Incoming and outgoing calls are rounded up and billed in full minute increments from the time the network begins to process the call (before the call rings or is answered) through its termination of the call. All allocated airtime minutes must be used in the month provided and do not carry over. Applicable taxes, assessments, tolls, and dual-mode (analog) long-distance and roaming charges are additional. Our digital PCS system is not compatible with analog TTY which may delay or prevent emergency calls. Additional restrictions may apply. Call 1-800-937-9887 or see a VoiceStream representative for more details. VoiceStream is a registered trademark of VoiceStream Wireless Corporation.
