ACE Hall Petitions against RIPTA

Another way students opinions make a difference

By Michael Gibson

Johnson & Wales University 2002-2003 school year began with a different look. The university transportation system merged with RIPTA, Rhode Island Public Transportation Authority, bus service to provide students with a professional transportation system that is free.

Johnson & Wales scaled back the JWU buses and has since had RIPTA service students to and from all areas of the campus as well as the state of Rhode Island.

Many students feel that RIPTA is the best improvement Johnson & Wales has made for a long time. Carneil Brooks, a freshman, says, "It's all right, like the fact that we get to ride around the city for free." Some freshmen like the idea of taking public transportation for free and are very comfortable. Although, other students do not feel likewise. Questions of safety are a direct link between a student's comfort level.

Unlike the usual JWU buses, the RIPTA buses will be driven by bus drivers hired by RIPTA through the city. The JWU bus drivers are staff of Johnson & Wales and are therefore hired through the University. Unlike the usual JWU buses, the RIPTA buses will host a diverse crowd of people. These people may be comprised of business professionals, small children, full-time mothers, and quite possibly men and women without the comfort of homes.

A diverse crowd is to be expected on a public transportation system, but the issue of safety is confronted when a private university mixes public transportation with the student community.

Student at A.C.E. Hall (Academic Center East) speak out about the issue, to make a difference. Recently a group of students started a petition against RIPTA.

"Buses are never on time, and they have too many breaks," says Tiffani Odge, a commuter residing in Warwick.

JWU Prepares for a Mardi Gras Homecoming

The Big Easy takes over the Providence campus during this year's Family Weekend and Homecoming.

Student Activities and student groups are preparing for an exciting weekend of events as Johnson and Wales kicks off this year's Family Weekend & Homecoming.

Festivities begin on Friday evening as faculty, staff, students, and families gather at the Johnson & Wales Inn for the Mardi Gras Kick Off. Extravaganter, Craig Karges is scheduled to amaze students and their families with a blend of mystery, humor, psychology, and invention. Karges has made over thirty national appearances from the Tonight Show and Larry King Live to Roseanne.

Student organizations will announce judges and parents with performances and extravagant floats in this year's Fat Tuesday Parade on Saturday night. The parade will also feature this year's Homecoming King and Queen.

Textbooks are often targeted by thieves. Keep yours safe by putting an identifying characteristic -- your name, a certain # -- along the binding on the same page in each book. If your books are stolen, you can tell bookstore personnel and public safety to “look for the initials along the binding on page 22 of each book” to identify them.
Law Affecting Over 1,000 Johnson & Wales Students

By Michael Gibbons

Excluding this year, the world was hit with the most tragic occurrences. America stood in silence for a week after a terror attack while being struck by terrorist lightning like a bolted striking the Atlantic Ocean. With every country, there is an effect and after 365 days we are still feeling the effects made by the ripple of that 9/11 Boulder. Moreover, these events have reached our colleges and institutions of higher learning. Johnson & Wales University is one of the most diverse schools in the world with a student population representing 81 different countries. It will soon feel the effects with a law called SEVIS. (Student and Exchange Visitor Information System) SEVIS is an Internet based system for the collection of information on exchange visitors and students. Since July 1, 2002 it was available upon a voluntary basis, but is it be expected required as soon as early 2003. The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) and the Department of Justice (DOJ) announced on May 10, 2002 that they are proposing a new rule for foreign student and exchange visitor tracking. This became a highly discussed issue after the attacks of September 11th, 2001, seeing that there is no tracking system for students and exchange visitors to determine compliance with the terms of their visa status. Schools will be required to report directly to the government via internet on specific information regarding foreign student enrollment failure to enroll, changes in legal name or address, failure to maintain a full course load, etc.

Once use of SEVIS is mandatory, all schools approved by the Service must be using SEVIS in order to continue accepting foreign students and all exchange visitor programs. Similar measures to track all non-immigrants and enrollment...

The Off-Campus Student: Good Neighbor Policy Statement

Johnson & Wales students must abide by the Good Neighbor Policy as described in the Student Handbook. Off-campus students and Commuters are required to keep Johnson & Wales University informed of their local addresses for directory purposes.

Undergraduate students have been living off-campus for many years and our neighbors, many of whom are Johnson & Wales faculty, staff, and alumni, have traditionally enjoyed a positive relationship with students. Established neighborhoods depend upon a sense of order and stability for those who live there permanently. Students are often viewed as transients, but the quality of life for all residents of a neighborhood can be greatly influenced by the style of living and sense of citizenship exercised by student residents. When students take their neighbors seriously and regard them with respect, this attitude is usually returned in kind and makes the area a more pleasant place to live for everyone.

The university reserves the right to deny permission to live off campus to a student who has a record of a violation of the student conduct code or other university rules and regulations.

Noise.

Most localities including the City of Providence have a Noise Ordinance. The Providence Police and other local law enforcement agencies such as Cranston Police and Warwick Police will enforce the law and will respond to complaints from your neighbors. Families living in the neighborhoods around our campus are likely to enjoy a reasonable level of peace and quiet. Students' schedules and the schedules of families with young children sometimes come into conflict. The Offices of Dean of Students and Community Relations expect that Johnson & Wales students will exercise good judgment and be sensitive to the needs of our neighbors and friends.

Trash.

As a tenant you are responsible for putting out your trash. If you are not sure about which day trash is picked up on your block, check with your landlord. Occasionally, trash is put out over the weekend causing an unnecessary nuisance and mess. City Ordinance stipulates that trash cannot be put out before dusk on the day preceding pickup. Please be considerate of others and do not put your trash until the night before pickup.

Recycling.

The City of Providence recycles and you have probably seen the "blue bins" on the sidewalk. Your landlord must provide each apartment unit with one blue bin for recycling materials (glass, plastic, contain ers, aluminum cans and newspapers). This is not only not a good cause, but also a global issue to which the University is committed.

Your participation in recycling both on and off campus is extremely important.

Parties.

Contrary to popular belief our neighbors are not against parkiness, disorderly conduct, and large groups of people partying outside with loud amplified music late into the night. Off-campus parties are becoming increasingly popular, but party hosts are putting themselves in jeopardy when their guests act irresponsibly. You assume all the risks associated with state and city laws regulating drinking age, noise ordinances, and public safety when you sponsor a party at your off-campus apartment. As a Johnson & Wales student you are potentially placing yourself in "double jeopardy" because the University's disciplinary system will also be utilized if a serious incident occurs off campus. When students do not think of others living around them, they create major problems for themselves as well as for their neighbors. Police will respond to complaints from our neighbors and disciplinary action will follow.

You should be aware that living off campus does not alter your relationship with the Johnson & Wales Community.

IN THEIR OFF-CAMPUS LIVES, STUDENTS ARE ALSO EXPECTED TO COMPLY WITH THE STANDARDS OF BEHAVIOR EXPECTED OF ALL STUDENTS.

CAMPUS HOUSING PRIVILEGES. STUDENTS MAY BE SUSPENDED FROM THE UNIVERSITY IF RESPONSIBLE FOR VIOLATIONS OF THE GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY.

Signed,

Arthur J. Gallagher,

Terry H. Addison,

“IN THE ARCADE”
IF IT AIN'T BROKE, DON'T FIX IT

Chestnut was a place for JWU students to relax, study, hang out with friends or grab a bite to eat. That is no longer the case. Our concerns are as follows:

The Menu: What happened to grilled cheese and chicken fingers? What was once a staple of a chestnuts experience has now fallen by the wayside, to make way for such trendy, sandwich names such as "The Federal Hill" and "The Stones" and what's the deal with the prices? We need to save our money for parking and other expenses. "In appalled," said 6 Concerned Students the anonymous lady.

The ambiance: What's going on with the televisions, are they broken? I'm sure the school can afford to buy new ones. The seating arrangements? Where did all the couches go? Last year students were able to kick back and relax. That's not the case anymore. You are stuck sitting in these uncomfortable chairs.

Commuter Tuesday: The majority of clientele are commuters. We want our free bagels and coffee back.

Why make changes with out the student's input? If this is supposed to be out "Student Union" where's the School pride? Change is not always a good thing!

As Editor-in-Chief of The Campus Herald, it is my duty to provide a channel of communication for the students here at Johnson & Wales University. We are a bi-weekly, student-produced paper for the campus community. I strongly urge the students of Johnson & Wales to voice your opinions about campus topics in an effort to positively initiate change, and better our school community. It is upon us to let our voices be heard so that we can be the catalyst for change.

Editor-In-Chief, The Campus Herald

Get the Most out of Career Conference

C areer Conference 2002 begins tomorrow! Are you ready? Simply attending the Conference is not enough; you need to make your participation count. Here are some tips on making the most of your Career Conference experience.

Prepare a Resume - A well written, error free resume is a must! Make sure you have multiple copies of both your resume and list of references on hand.

Make a Good First Impression - Be sure you are wearing professional business attire. The way you dress will obviously affect the employer's initial impression of you. For women, a suit or tailored dress in solid or subtle color is acceptable. For men, a navy, charcoal gray or pin-stripe suit is acceptable.

Target Your Top Five Companies - Check out the employers who will attend by viewing the Career Development public folder. Prioritize those employers with whom you would like to speak.

Learn to Sell Yourself - Create a 60 second commercial on yourself and practice it. Your commercial should include:

a. Introduction - Introduce yourself, offer a firm hand shake and a resume
b. Objective - Tell the employer why you are there and what sort of employment you are seeking
c. Background - Summarize your education, experience, strengths, etc.
d. Closing - Reiterate your interest and thank the employer

Create a List of Questions - Formulate intelligent questions to ask the employers. It is a good idea to ask one or two meaningful questions without monopolizing the employer's time. At this point, it is not a good idea to ask about salary. Don't forget to inquire about internships, co-ops, summer employment and scholarship opportunities if you are a continuing undergraduate student.

Prepare to Answer Questions - Remember, employers will also be asking you questions! You will be expected to think on your feet, so be prepared. To navigate through these questions successfully, you must know yourself inside and out. This will require a lot of introspection and soul-searching on your part.

Be Confident - It is important that you understand that employers view candidates as possible future employees. Therefore, you need to display enthusiasm, confidence, sincerity and the ability to communicate clearly. Smile, walk with good posture and make consistent eye contact.

Don't forget to Follow-up - Don't make the mistake of thinking that as soon as you have spoken to the last employer and left the facility that you are finished. Follow-up is essential to making the most of your Career Conference experience. Keep the following steps in mind:

a. Prepare to follow-up - Ask each employer that you talk with for their business card and company literature. As soon as you walk away from the employer, jot down some notes about your conversation. You may want to use these notes in your follow-up thank you letter.

b. Thank You Letters - Within one week, send out thank you letters to the employers that you met.

c. Be Persistent - Observe the follow-up procedures suggested by the employer. Once you have complied with these procedures and a reasonable amount of time has passed, it is okay to contact the employer about the status of your application.

d. Use Your Handbook - At Career Conference, you will be given a handbook that is an excellent resource for you to reach those employers that you did not have a chance to meet! Be sure to review the advertisements in your handbook carefully. These ads will typically include open positions and contact information. You can then write a letter and send your resume to these organizations as well.

Attending the Career Conference can be a little overwhelming at first. However, if you have taken the time to prepare, you will get as much out of it as you put into it. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact the Career Development Office at 598-1070 (Downtown Campus) or 598-4611 (HarborSide Campus).

College Students Continue to Gain More Than Knowledge

courtesy of North American Syndicate

Every year as students leave home for college they risk gaining the "Freshman 15" -- the beginning of a downhill slide of continued poor weight-loss behavior, contributing to the 62 percent of Americans who are currently overweight.

New York, N.Y. (September 3, 2002) Nutricise.com -- Dieting and losing weight are national obsessions, but still more than 60 percent of college students are overweight and forty percent are attempting to lose weight, according to the National College Youth Risk Behavior Survey conducted by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. From fraternity parties to all-you-can-eat cafeterias, college life makes it difficult to maintain healthy eating patterns. The Freshman 15 (or 50) begins with students who exercise their newfound freedom to eat, no matter what they're in the mood for. It's an easy trap of all that, bland college cafeteria food begets for butter, salt, and sour cream to make it more palatable, not to mention the need for side dishes like ice cream, french fries, onion rings, and cake to enhance taste bud sensation. (And that's not even factoring in all the beer...)

But will power alone is not the solution to combatting these common tendingties and fighting the college bulge. A recent study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association found that interactive weight loss guidance in the form of a structured behavioral approach with access to a registered dietitian helped dieters lose more weight than those who dieted without online interactive assistance and a structured program. College students face new challenges in creating a weight maintenance program that works for their schedule, and Nutricise is the only company to offer a sophisticated, one-on-one weight management counseling program that helps individuals to lose weight and keep it off.

All Nutricise clients are assigned their own personal nutritionist/registered dietitian who educates and coaches them via email to achieve the lifestyle changes and skills necessary for weight loss and maintenance.

Tips For Fighting Off Freshman 15

TIP #1

-Eat breakfast. Breakfast gets your metabolism working first thing in the morning — especially if your "morning" is closer to afternoon. You'll have more energy and you're likely to eat less later in the day.

-Don't skip meals. Many college students make the mistake of skipping meals only to be lured into someone's dorm room at 2 a.m. by the tantalizing aroma of a freshly delivered pizza. Your body needs fuel throughout the day, not just at the end.

TIP #2

-Cut down on alcohol. Just because alcohol is fat free doesn't mean it's calorie free. Alcohol, especially beer, is loaded with calories.

TIP #3

-Keep moving! It doesn't matter if you walk, jog, take aerobics, weight train, take a gym class, or play intramural sports — staying active will burn calories. Lounging in your dorm watching TV or sitting around studying all day will put on the pounds, simply because you're taking in more calories than you're burning off.

-Rise And Shine, It's Breakfast Time
courtesy of North American Press Syndicate, Inc.

No meal is expected to do more, in terms of replenishing our energy and launching us into the world, than breakfast. As we open our eyes to a brand new day, our desire to experiment is at its daily low, but sometimes it's time to try something new, even for breakfast.

Feischmann's Yeast offers a twist on a breakfast classic designed to please the palate. Once you've tried this recipe, it may become a breakfast tradition in your dorm.

The recipe, Perfect Pancakes, uses the convenient "batter method," an easy alternative to kneading. The recipe even offers the option of an overnight "cool rise," in which the dough rises in the refrigerator, allowing the mix to be made up the night before. This option balances the desire for nutritious, fresh, homemade foods with speed and ease.

Pancakes are an all-time breakfast favorite, but a regular pancake produces a rather crumbly crumb, which tends to soak up syrup and become soggy. Perfect Pancakes have a crumb, which is not only tender, but is also more firm, so they taste better and less toppings are needed. Regular pancakes tend to be used mainly to carry rich or sweet toppings, but Perfect Pancakes offer an excellent taste on their own. It's the yeast that gives these pancakes a richer, fuller flavor. Even the batter has a fuller, more pleasing aroma. Once you've had "raised pancakes," you may never go back to pancakes without yeast.

This recipe has been tested in the kitchens of Feischmann's Yeast. For added convenience, it has been developed using Feischmann's RapidRise Yeast.

Continuing a legacy of Helping Bakers Bake, Feischmann's Yeast offers expert resources to consumers through a number of free programs. The most popular is a Web site, www.breadworld.com, that is bursting with baking tips and recipes for both the beginner and experienced baker.

Perfect Pancakes

Ingredients

2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1 envelope Fleischmann's RapidRise Yeast
1 teaspoon salt
1 3/4 cups milk
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 large egg

In a large bowl, combine 3/4 cup flour, sugar, undissolved yeast and salt. Heat milk and butter until very warm (120 degrees to 130 degrees F). Gradually add to flour mixture. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg and 1 cup flour; beat 2 minutes at high speed. Stir in remaining flour to make a soft batter. Cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled, about 45 minutes. Stir batter down. Pour 1/4 cup per pancake onto hot, lightly greased griddle or skillet. Cook until edges are dry. Turn; cook other side until brown. Top as desired.
Organization Spotlight

The Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) is a club on campus that is organized by an independent, responsible, polite and caring individual. Rick Perez is the president of FBLA this year. Rick exemplifies leadership qualities, considering he is only a sophomore. This is very impressive to have a sophomore run a business club such as FBLA.

In this interview, Rick will discuss his goals and thoughts of FBLA and give advice to freshman members of FBLA, as well as, other freshman on campus.

Interview with Rick Perez, President of FBLA
By: Jennifer Fritsma

How does it feel to be president of FBLA?
Wow! It is a likable feeling. I have much more attention and people come up to me for advice. I was nobody and now I'm somebody. I also learned that I need to watch what I say and do a little more closely.

Is this position everything you expected?
Well. It's a lot different from being president of FBLA in high school. There, the advisor did a lot of work for you. Here, you can not rely on the advisors and it is a lot more responsibility. It is also a great learning experience.

What is your goal or mission for the 2002-2003 FBLA year?
I would like to concentrate on member retention. I want to keep members happy. The inner circle-the club members-need to be fixed first before anything else happens.

What do you think about the new members?
They are a challenge. There was much less interest for pointed positions than I expected this year.

How do you plan to get members involved?
I want the meetings to be fun. Not just to talk about new business and that's it. I want speakers from business and government offices and on the rise celebrities to come speak at the meetings. I also plan to have fun activities at the meetings. This schedule will alternate throughout the year.

What projects do you have planned?
The last week of October, we are participating in a haunted tunnel event in Newport. It is a week long event. And, a project that is in the works, is a mini version of fear factor on Gaede Commons. For instance they would pay a student $100 for shaving all of their hair off.

Can anything be improved in the club?
Everything! I want to do more community service, rather than fundraising events. It is not about the money. I will make sure everyone carries their jobs out this year. That was a big problem last year.

Do you want to thank anyone?
Yes. Mike Bosco was a huge help to me this summer. He taught me the regulations and policies and things that I needed to know to run FBLA.

Do you have any advice for new FBLA members or freshmen?
Yes. Don't take anything too seriously. Just worry about your career and family. Also, have fun and make it a fun year.

WE ARE AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER
Gaming Gambit Begins in The Arcade

BY Kyle Ricks

For years the Arcade has stood between the streets of Weybosset and Westminster. Around twenty five years ago the old and closed down building reopened its doors for business, and during this time, in the aftermath of the explosive birth of Dungeon and Dragons a store called The Game Keeper opened. The owner, a talkative and intelligent man who goes by nothing more than Larry has been there ever since. The Game Keeper publishes supplemental books for the D20 system of Dungeons and Dragons and carries a wide assortment of Role Playing Games, Board Games, Miniature Game, Collectible Card Games, and more. Yet things change, and this time they seem to be for the better. A few weeks ago, Larry was approached by the management of The Arcade to attempt to fill up the entire Arcade. Larry was quoted saying "The Arcade Management came to me and asked me to fill the entire place up on Saturdays, so I said, "I'll do it.""

With that Larry went to the drawing board and began to draft ideas. He consulted with a few of his regulars and new comers to get feedback on ideas for the execution of such a feat. The final result is the idea of a massive gaming situation. Every Saturday from 10am to 4pm there is open gaming at the Arcade now. This could be extended into the evening should the demand arise. The main events going on there are Mage Knight, Mech-Warrior, and games that are brought by people. Furthermore, since the release of DC Hero Clix (a superhero miniature game based off of the DC genre) there will soon be a Hero Clix tournament beginning. Yet it doesn't stop there. For those who want to leave their mark on the D20 universe, there is a chance to go in and play-test supplements written through the business. Those who do will be asked for feedback and will be not only given a free copy of the book, but also their name will appear within the book. To sign up just walk in and make an appointment with Larry to Playtest. Any other games that show up will be given areas to be played in so just because your game may not be located here, it is still an option.

Now, the idea of refreshments and seating arises. The thing is, they aren't problems. Larry and the Management have spoken already and with a current seating capacity out of 150 people and going upwards of around 400 people the amount of people it can hold isn't a big deal. The refreshments are not furnished, though Larry is speaking with the vendors in the food court to strike reduced prices deals with them.

The first one occurred on the 21st of September 2002 and was a solid achievement. The turnout was fair and hopes are high for a phenomenal amount of attendance in the near future. So before you go party on the weekend, whether passing by, looking for fun, or just wanting to take a breather from the cramped little dorm you live in, drop by the arcade. Make some friends, play some games, and maybe win some of the prizes offered in the tournaments.

WESTSIDE STORY

A classic of American musical theatre, the show features some of the most compelling songs of all time, including "Somewhere (There's A Place For Us),” "Maria,” "Tonight," "I Feel Pretty," and "America" and showcases the talents of theatre greats Jerome Robbins, Leonard Bernstein, and Stephen Sondheim.

Set in the slums of New York City, WEST SIDE STORY is the story of Tony and Maria, who doomed love story -- based on the tragedy of Romeo and Juliet -- plays out amid the battles of rival gangs the Sharks and the Jets.

With this exciting new production, WEST SIDE STORY, is as fresh and relevant as it was when it first opened on Broadway in 1957. With electrifying dance numbers based on Jerome Robbins' groundbreaking original choreography and a score written by Leonard Bernstein, Stephen Sondheim, and Arthur Laurents. WEST SIDE STORY features some of the most unforgettable numbers ever performed onstage.

WEST SIDE STORY is directed and choreographed by Alan Johnson, who has recreated numerous acclaimed productions of the show during the past 30 years. Musical direction is by Donald Chan who has served as musical director for more performances of WEST SIDE STORY than any other conductor.
The Barbershop

"Giving New Meaning to the Phrase Good Buzz", Ice Cube is clearly pleased with the hit of the hit movie The Barbershop, with a budget of 15 million dollars to make the film, the Barbershop brought in 21 million on opening weekend. That is the best record for Ice cube in his entire movie career. MGM and producer George Tillman was please that instead of opening the movie to 1,300 cinema like they intended they decided to go with 1,600 instead, which turned out to be a big hit.

The movie also featured other people like Eve (XXX) and Sean Patrick Thomas (Save the last dance).

The fans were very pleased with the movie and was hopeful that there would be a sequel. The soundtrack to the movie was also a hit. It debuted in Billboard's Hot 10 and sold 85,000 copies in the first three weeks. Hey this could even mean Ice Cube might try to come out with another album, "who knows?"

Making Tracks with American Idol

Just Because The Hit Serious American Idol is over for the first season and the winners have been chosen, the final episodes of the season have been wrap up, the cast of the show are defiant not wrapping up at all. The creator of the show Simon Fuller is doing his research trying to get the winner Kelly Clarkson and (runner up) Justin Guarini together to star in a final note feature. As for the judges Paula Abdul has headed back into the studio to start recording her first single album since 1995, and for Simon Cowell he is season 2's only confirmed returnee.

The Return

He's baaaaaack. Michael Jordan has announced that he will return to play for the Washington Wizards for the upcoming NBA season. "My love for the game of basketball continues to drive my decision," His Airen says. "The steps I took in the offseason have allowed me to return to the game in great condition."

The Future of Dining at America’s #1 Culinary School

By Dina Fingerprint

If you are counting calories or concerned about eating right, campus diners be cautious. Although there are right food choices to be made on campus, nutrition-wise decision-making will have to come into play. While there are many opportunities to maintain a balanced diet on campus, there are also many ways to 'put on the pounds.' But putting on the pounds may not be the only reason students want to watch what they eat, maybe they just want to feel better and live healthier. Regardless, the number one foods consumed by students at the number one culinary school has little to do with health. Let’s take the average student meal: a hamburger or chicken sandwich, a plate full of French fries (which is two servings), two sodas, a cookie or dessert, and a small salad or fruit (usually one or the other).

There is not much nutrition in the typical dinner. Protein comes from the hamburger, but along with high amounts of saturated fat. The bun may give students some carbohydrate, but it comes from white breaded processed flour. The French fries will also give students complex carbohydrates, but lets not forget the bagel that comes with fries: high amounts of fat, and hydrogenated fat is used for frying to only heighten the amount of empty calories. Then there is the cookie or dessert where students are receiving high amount of sugar and fat, then added sugar which comes from the soda. Last comes the fruit or salad. Some students make it a point to add both into their dinner, however some students may not even think about the amount of fruit or vegetable servings they have consumed for the day (according to the American Dietetic Association, we need five servings of fruit and vegetables a day). On the other hand, this is only the typical plate of students. There are so many other foods that are available, but at the same token, are not as popular.

Fortunately, there are steps being made in the dining centers at Johnson & Wales. For one, the dining facilities are working on formulating nutrition facts for the foods they are serving as well as items like the salad bar. Hospitality has already begun and the other dining facilities are working towards the same goal. Vegetarian and vegan entree options are also an issue as well. According to Timothy Stevens, a TA at Snowden, "More and more students are requesting vegetarian and/or vegan foods." Even though a dinner may not be vegetarian, vegetarian meals will provide greater amounts of nutrient density, s.a. fewer empty calories. Vegetarian food items contain less saturated fats (the unhealthy fats) and provide more opportunity to get the five a day from fruits and vegetables.

The Chestnut dining facility is approaching their spin on providing a more balanced menu. According to Chef Bob, "The kitchen will be providing Weight Watcher points on menu items to assist customers in making balanced choices." Chef Bob is also focusing on community involvement by purchasing breads and rolls from local bakeries instead of larger corporations like Sysco. Chef Bob is also conducting a 'Chestnuts Information Survey' to further explore his diners' needs and tastes. When I asked a student about what accessible changes in campus dining would you like to see, Eric Steins, President of the Nutrition Society, replied, "I would like to see more whole foods. For example, more grains like quinoa replacing rice or pasta."

As a culinary nutrition student at Johnson & Wales and an occasional campus dinner (I am not a freshman anymore), I am looking forward to seeing the changes being made on our campus dining facilities. In addition, the Nutrition Society will be having dinners at Hospitality and Snowden where they will be educating students on healthier options and providing students with information such as protein requirements according to weight and physical activity and fat analysis tests. Although the Nutrition Society has not confirmed a date yet, it will be posted in the 'Club Box' in the Campus Herald. And I am not trying to say that students cannot have their burgers and fries, just pay attention to how many burgers you consume a week (or month) and try not to fill the ENTIRE plate with French fries. An addition of a dinner roll or fresh fruit will help fill up the tummy without the hydrogenated fats.

Volleyball Team Earns Regional Ranking

By Dave Bious
Sports Editor

Playing a tough non-conference schedule has been rewarding for the women's volleyball team. Which has earned its first-ever slot in the top 15 ranked teams as determined by the New England Women's Volleyball Association.

The Wildcats were ranked 14th among Division III teams when the first poll of the young season was released. The pollsters apparently took into account the tough competition on the schedule. The Wildcats were 8-4 in their early matches, but three of the losses were to Plymouth State (4th) \ Wesleyan College (7th) and the Coast Guard Academy (9th).

Besides the recognition enjoyed by being listed in the poll, the Wildcats hope it might improve their seeding position at the end of the season if they are to complete again in the 48-team NCAA tournament. The higher a team's seed, the potentially weaker their opponent in the first round of the tournament.

The Wildcats are aiming for their fourth consecutive Great Northeast Conference title, and have already defeated Emmanuel College, one of their toughest opponents in the league. Sophomore Amaree Proto led the way with 10 kills, assisted by sophomore Tanya Wyss (9) and freshman Erica Young (8), in a 30-18, 30-27, 30-23 win over the Saints. JWU showed it's depth in the match as Proto was credited with 14 digs, while Young, senior Shaina Eugen and junior Sarah Haslem had 12 a piece while sophomore Stephanie Cropper added 11.

The Wildcats host Great Northeast Athletic Conference foe St. Joseph College on the Wednesday, Oct. 2 at the Harborside Rec Center. They travel to the Bates tournament on Oct. 4-5 in the search of more top-flight New England competition and quality that will help keep them in the polls.

JWU Women’s Tennis Team Growing As A Program

By Dave Bious
Sports Editor

Johnson & Wales women's tennis coach Dr. Allen Friedman says it's not his team's goal to repeat the undefeated season they racked up in the fall of 2001. He's not opposed to winning every match, but says continuing to build the overall strength of the program is more important.

Friedman's program has evolved from a for-fun-only club sport to a Division III New England Intercollegiate powerhouse. And there's no reason not to think the Wildcats won't be dominating opponents again this autumn. Intercollegiate powerhouse. And there's no reason not to think the Wildcats won't be dominating opponents again this autumn. The number of two-singles players is a sophomore Tara Pasqua, who was 30-2 and conference rookie of the year 2001. She's dynamic, a strong, extremely competitive player," Friedman said. "Plus she plays doubles with Tori. I call them "TNT, my explosion team."

Sebba Eyuboglu came to Johnson & Wales from Istanbul, Turkey. The school has a recruiting officer, but her mother was the tennis couch.

Hockey Team Seeks Skating Mascot

courtesy of Athletic Department

Johnson & Wales hockey coach Lou Iuzzi is looking for a student to serve as mascot for the 2002-03 season. Beginning Nov. 10, the team plays 19 home games, mostly on weekends, at the Rhode Island Sports Center, located approximately eight miles north-west of Providence on Route 146.

The mascot will wear the Wildcat costume and skate onto the ice to lead the players before the beginning of each period. The mascot will remain on the ice for a couple minutes, waving the school flag and leading the crowd in cheers. While the match is in progress, the mascot will ruin the crowd, talking to fans and perhaps handing out promotional material.

For those who prefer not to dress up, Iuzzi is also looking for two team managers and a student to film the home matches. For further information, contact Iuzzi at 598-1603.

"They need to have buses later on in the evening, like past 8pm, or at least 12 midnight on the weekends."

Student concerns stem from safety, but more importantly they are derived from the bus schedule. A concerned ACE students speaks out, "They need to change the transportation system because it takes us almost 45 minutes just to get downtown. And on the weekends, we need more JWU buses because the first JWU bus that comes out here on the weekends begins at around 7pm...that is just lazy."

During the first weeks of the trimester students complaints were sent directly to the Rhode Island Transportation Authority. Complaints after complaint until something had to be done.

"As of September 23, 2002 RIPTA will be adding express service between ACE and Gaede Commons in response to student concerns." The Rhode Island Transportation Authority continues. "The service will be provided on the #7 Jefferson Boulevard route because of routing limitations students will be asked to board and alight this service at the bus stop Montibello Street [The street between the Radisson Hotel and the National Car Rental] right near the corner of Post Road."

Homecoming: JWU's Mardi Gras

"I am excited to see the result of all the hard work student groups have been putting into their floats," Assistant Director of Student Activities, Scott Lyons said. "They work hard for those cash prizes."

Saturday continues with the King's Day Luncheon in the Harborside Academic Center main parking lot, while some parents take the opportunity to interact with the Deans from the Colleges of Business, Culinary, Hospitality, and Schools of Technology and Arts & Sciences in an open forum.

J&W's world-renowned chef-instructors are scheduled to demonstrate a wide range of techniques for families as well.

That evening, the Harborside Recreation center will be transformed into the Big EASY for a Mardi Gras style Carnival. Students and parents will have the chance to try their luck at Black Jack, Roulette, Caribbean Stud Poker, and much more. The event will feature live music, dancing, desserts and a chance to win great prizes. Some students and families will complete their Homecoming and Family Weekend experience with a tour of Newport, Rhode Island or with a wine tasting tour at Sakonnet Vineyards.

With such a wide range of activities planned, students and their families are bound to be kept busy and enjoy this year's Family Weekend and Homecoming.
