Construction for an immediate apartment style residence hall and athletic fields on the Harborside campus will commence this Fall.

Students, faculty, and staff will embrace a number of University-wide changes and opportunities as they return for the 2003 academic school year.

Johnson & Wales University utilized the summer of '03 to improve and grow in a number of areas. Numerous buildings on the downtown and culinary campuses have undergone interior and exterior renovation, and restoration. Fundamental departments and student service locations have relocated with the aim of improving landscape and efficiency. Plans and construction for an athletic/recreational facility and an immediate apartment-style residence hall on the culinary campus have commenced this summer and will continue throughout the year.

The Barnes & Noble book store has relocated from the John Hazen White Center on Chestnut Street to the Cookson Building, a seven-story office facility located on Westminster Street. The location will also house University administration offices. As a result of the move, Student Academic services will expand into the former location of the bookstore. The extension, which is said to be a 100 percent increase in size, should decrease crowding and improve the number of consultation and meeting space between students and staff.

University officials observed the retail space as an opportunity to enhance the streetscape. As well as having a "beautiful" retail operation. Barnes & Noble's management and staff will eventually develop interior soft seating to create a comfortable retail experience.

The executive office function located on the third floor of University Hall will relocate to leased office space in the Cookson building beginning this fall. The Career Development office, originally located on the first floor of University Hall will expand into the vacant space on the third floor, along with the Elliot Leadership Foundation. "The space was available, and the landlord of the building had wanted us as a tenant," says Chris Placco, director of Facilities Management. Placco continues, "The first floor was available, coinciding with our needs to expand student academic services on the downtown campus. The Paramount Building has a one-stop concept for all Student Academic and Financial Services. The downtown campus doesn't have that yet. But that is coming."

A number of ongoing improvement projects are also taking place at the Academic Center, Xavier Chapel, and the Xavier Academic Building. Johnson & Wales is conducting a study for the master plan of the Xavier Chapel and Academic building. The details have not been released thus far. The Harborside campus has undergone shifting and turning of functions this summer, according to Placco. The vital change at the Harborside campus this summer was faculty accommodations. The University has moved all of the culinary administration out from the 2nd floor of the David Friedman Center and into the Harborside Academic Center. A new conference area and a "much more welcoming image" has been provided, according to University officials.

In addition, the dining room originally dubbed "the Angelica Dining Room" will experience a major face-lift. It will be renamed the Clinic’s dining room. The first step towards Recreational and Athletic space will begin this autumn when the University begins receiving "hill" to start crafting the designated property to an elevation that will allow for recreational use.

Administrators have not yet decided what type of sporting fields to place on the grounds, however a baseball diamond, soccer and lacrosse fields, walking paths and green space, concession stands, bleachers and parking have all been included in the dialogue.

"At this point all we are doing is identifying plans. The issue of adding sporting teams like football has not been resolved. We are looking at multi-purpose fields that could be used for a number of sports," claims Placco.

"The time outlook will most likely be longer than two years for the infrastructure. The work you never see is going to be done. Water, sewer, irrigation and other utilities have to be installed. The location is extremely exposed; it could easily dry out on a hot summer day."

Another major development for immediate implementation on the Harborside campus is an apartment-style residence hall. The 4-bed unit hall will be located where the transportation center is at the present time. The transportation center will be relocated to an undecided location. The move will not put a strain on transportation services according to administrators.

"The University is working with a third party developer who will design, finance, construct and manage this development. This allows our institution to very quickly produce attractive student apartments. The developer will know what the students are accustomed to paying, and the competition in costs is the immediate neighbors, says Placco.

Many Johnson & Wales students forced to rent apartments in light of the housing shortage on campus have displaced community residents.

"Our hope is to restore those neighborhoods, and to have more suitable and affordable housing for our students, to actually make a really neat place," claims Placco.

Both the apartments and recreation facility should have a direct impact on the area. The sporting facility will be open to organized groups like youth soccer, tee-ball and baseball. The walking trails and green space should improve the landscape of the community.

We will continue to provide in-depth coverage of the preliminary stages of both the Athletic Field & Residence Hall throughout the year.

Comedy Central
star to entertain
J&W Insomniacs

Dave Attell tickets can be picked up during registration at the Student Activities table under the main tent or at Friday Night’s Hypnotist Show.

BY JOHN ORTENZIO

Dave Attell, stand up comedian and host of ‘Insomniac’ on Comedy Central will provide students, faculty and staff with much needed comic relief on Saturday September 6th at 8 p.m.

Attell writes and hosts the show “Insomniac with Dave Attell,” which appears Thursdays at 10:30 on Comedy Central, currently in its third season.

Insomniac is a travelogue, detailing after-hours experiences in cities across the world. The hit series provides viewers with a realistic glimpse of nightlife in all of its strange forms.

The Los Angeles Times claims the show is “foul-mouthed, sophomoric, tawdry, and incredibly fun, combining the elements of travelogue, documentary and boys’ or girls’ night out.”

Although Attell is known for using raw, crude language during his stand-up routine the show is “for anyone who just wants to come out and laugh, free of charge,” according to Scott Lyons, Assistant Director of Student Activities.

“Our goal was to bring some comic relief to J&W students after the nitty gritty of registration and move in. Dave Attell was sought after for his creatively random style of comedy that will definitely keep everyone laughing,” Lyons said.

Lyons countered, “We actually hope that Dave Attell would be inspired to do an Insomniac episode in Providence after his visit here, so we plan on treating him well.”

“It’s an adult show. I use raw language and suggestive gestures. They’ll be no poppers or banjos. I won’t be talking about someone’s red neck,” Attell said in an interview with the Birmingham News, referring to his popular act.

“It’s a very raw kind of comedy,” he continued. “I tend to hit the basics. You know, sex, midges, drinking - that kind of stuff.”

The 37-year old New York native is well known for his appearances on “Late Night with Conan O’Brien,” “The Late Show with David Letterman,” as a screenwriter on “Saturday Night Live,” and also as a correspondent on “The Daily Show.”

Student Activities representatives intend on having another sold out show at the Harborbides Recreation Facility this year. Attell is the second consecutive stand up comedian with a show on Comedy Central to perform during the registration/orientation week. Last year featured stand-up comedian Dave Chapelle, who amused a jam-packed Harborbides Recreation Center.

Attell is promoting his new “Insomniac” DVD and his stand-up CD “Skanks for the Memories” released on February 4, 2003.

J&W to pay city of Providence over $50 million

Johnson & Wales has entered into a voluntary 20-year agreement with Providence mayor, David Cicilline. The agreement requires Johnson & Wales, and three other Providence colleges (Brown, PC, and RISD) to pay $50 million over the next 20 years. The funds will assist in financing city services and help close the budget gap Providence is facing. Mayor Cicilline has agreed in turn to not file any legislation in the General Assembly to impose a service fee or student tax.

The spokesmen for the group, Rhode Island School of Design President Roger Mandel says, "We feel that our respective institutions are an integral and vital part of Providence, but we also understand that the successful pursuit of our educational mission is greatly enhanced if the City of Providence remains a vibrant, flourishing community." Johnson & Wales University and the city of Providence will both benefit from this historic agreement," says University President John Bowen.

JWU Athletics Staff Member Inducted into UTEP Hall of Fame

Hollee Walton, of Providence, and fellow members of the 1974 and 1975 NCAA Division I national championship indie truck team will be inducted into the University of Texas at El Paso’s Hall of Fame on the weekend of September 26th.

After an all state career at Hope High School, Walton began collegiate running under the tutelage of JWU Hall of Fame member Colonel John F. McNulty. After receiving his associates degree from Johnson & Wales in 1972, he attended the University of Texas at El Paso. There, Walton’s main event was the distance medley. He set the pace for the rest of the team running the 800.

Bobby Doyle of Newport, Rhode Island’s premier marathoner during the seventies and early eighties was also a member of those UTEP championship teams. Walton and Doyle will be honored with the rest of those teams at halftime of the UTEP and Sam Houston State footbal game.

New Library Policies

As of this academic year, Johnson & Wales University will be initiating a new policy of charging fines for overdue library materials. Students will receive three levels of overdue notices via their University e-mail account or by mail to their local address. Fines for library materials are 50 cents per item per day. Patrons will receive a fourth and final billing notice if the item is still outstanding. At this time, the library will assess a replacement processing charge of $80.00 in addition to overdue fines. Please note that students with library obligations will have their diplomas held until they make a payment to the library.

(U-WIRE) HUNTINGTON, W.Va. -- As the world survives another day with its bad self it's good to know a few things: FOX News is there to report the facts, Ben Affleck did not think "Gigli" rose to the level of a good movie, President George W. Bush challenges the guerrillas in Iraq to "bring 'em on," and bring it on they do, killing our soldiers every day. -- and 2+2=5.

The oil-fields in Iraq are secure even if our soldiers aren't. Thank God we in the United States have real things to worry about, such as being famous, rebellious and litigious.

Celebrity, celebrity, celebrity... in your face, 24/7 coverage of celebrities "uncovered" exposes them as the shallow freaks we love to love.

Do we need to see Tommy Lee, for the umpteenth time, slip paparazzi to the ground while Pam Anderson and her breasts egg poor Tommy on to an eventual jail cell?

Hey Eminem, how much talent does it take to look into a camera and stick up your middle finger? Not much. He could be exonerated for his choice of fingers to use when being photographed if he claims street credibility. But his street credibility suffers when just like Celine Dion he talks to VH-1 about the difficulties of fame, being spoiled and rich and not being able to play basketball anonymously.

In a world gone crazy, FOX News is suing comedian, satirist Al Franken and Penguin books for using their trademark "Fair and Balanced." FOX trademarked the phrase in 1995. Franken's book, " Lies and the Lying Liars who Tell them: A Fair and Balanced Look at the Right," takes a look at the "fair and balanced" reporting and commentary of right wing talking heads and conservative agenda.

The cover of Franken's book has the word "Lies,"superimposed over photographs of conservative author Ann Coulter, Bill O'Reilly, Vice President Dick Cheney and President George Bush.

FOX News believes the public will not be able to discern whether Franken is an employee of FOX because of the words "Fair and Balanced" in the title. Talk about "the most ridiculous item of the day" -- sorry Mr. O'Reilly, sue me.

In legal papers filed Monday, FOX claims Franken's "intent is clear...to exploit FOX News trademark, confuse the public as to the origins of the book and accordingly boost sales."

FOX believes that you, the public, are so stupid that if you see the words "fair and balanced" on a book cover you might mistake it for right-wing rabble-rousing FOX News regularly spews.

FOX's "intent is clear" as well, FOX calls Franken a "C-level talking head" and a "parasite."

Do not believe for one minute this case is about trademark infringement. Try sour grapes instead. The FOX News/Franken feud has been going on for a while.

What's next, Aeros, of fable fame, "FOX and the Sour Grapes," receives a court order to cease and desist?

Some have accused FOX of not being able to take a joke. The real joke is that FOX has the audacity to consider itself "fair and balanced."

The surreal summer of 2003 is almost over. Coming up next the California recall, the Scott Peterson case, the presidential elections, the fun never ends.
