National Restaurant Association Menu Collection

Welcome -

At Gene's Place, along with fine food and friendly atmosphere, we've added our own personal touch of nostalgia.

Displayed on the walls throughout the dining area is an array of stars and songs from the 1930's and 1940's. Years when most Americans were trying to muddle through a pre-war depression and still keep their chins up.

Families gathered round their radios to listen to the Jack Benny Hour, Ozzie and Harriet, The Lone Ranger, and sat a little "closer together" when "Inner Sanctum" and "The Shadow" came over the airwaves.

Frank Sinatra, a skinny kid from Hoboken, New Jersey, was just starting into the entertainment world and thrilling millions of bobbysoxers with his voice.

Americans were lining up at theaters everywhere to see Margaret Mitchell's romantic novel of the old South, "Gone With the Wind".

Penny loafers and rolled up jeans were in.

Gasoline was eighteen cents a gallon and you could buy a brand new Chevy Pick-Up for only $650.00.

Forever Amber was number one on the best sellers book list. In 1937, Walt Disney completed the movie Snow White, and kids of all ages flocked to watch the seven dwarfs and swoon over Prince Charming.

Flash Gordon and Buck Rogers comics were selling like hotcakes. Shirley Temple was the idol of the Saturday matinee crowd and Jack Armstrong was selling tons of Wheaties to the nation.

The music and movies of that era were a delightful source of entertainment (cheap at ten cents a ticket), and will continue to bring a smile to a face that still remembers the words of an old song or the classic lines from an old film.

So enjoy while dining here at Gene's. Maybe one of the songs or a picture will bring back a pleasant memory or two for you.
