■ "The epitome of an old-time smoked-fish emporium", this thriving slice of "Lower East Side history" remains among "the best around" for "smoked salmon of every variety" as well as "can't-be-beat" sturgeon, sable and herring, "delicious salads", top-quality caviar and a "fabulous appetizing" selection, all "displayed as if it were jewelry" and presided over by "men who remind you of your grandpa"; there are also "gorgeous" hand-dipped chocolates, halvah and dried fruits.
