Students reflect on James M. Brown, Jr.

by Jeannine Kimball
Managing Editor

To say that the death of James M. Brown, Jr. was difficult for people to accept, would be an understatement. The outpouring of grief and anger that the friends of James feel is tangible, even to outsiders. James' death affected everyone who knew him, anyone he had ever spoken to, and the University as a whole. For those of us who did not personally know him, it may be hard to understand why so many people cared so much for him. After speaking with five of his closest friends, it becomes easier.

Travis Albright, Joe Beal, George Barham, David Trawick and Aki Washington all knew that James was one of those unforgettable people, the kind of person that come along once in a lifetime. Before James began college at Charleston, SC, he was enrolled in the military. Real respected James for his return to college because it took a lot of courage to do so, especially at age 27. James was an exceptional student, he even appeared on the National Dean's list.

His positive outlook and ability to learn, permeated all aspects of his day-to-day life. Although he was soft-spoken, he was never intimidated into silence. Whenever one of his friends had a problem, James was the first person they sought guidance from. Regardless of his own schedule, James was always nearby and ready to listen. James' friends would never believed to sit outside, in front of his room, just watching people come and go.

At the memorial service held for him, the pastor suggested that from every life there is a lesson we may learn. James already knew how to create lessons; he learned from every experience. Every conclusion he came to, he shared with his friends; which added them in their decisions. Although James has passed on, he left behind many memories. His distinctive laugh will be echoed forever in the minds of his friends. The loss... Continued on page 5

JWU Student Dies

by Jeannine Kimball
Managing Editor

James M. Brown, Jr. died suddenly on October 19, at approximately 7:30 p.m. Brown, a 27-year-old culinary arts major from Willowton, South Carolina, was in Providence to complete his practicum assignment. Kent County Memorial Hospital indicated that the preliminary cause of death was anaphylactic shock due to an allergic reaction to shellfish. After speaking with two Johnson & Wales University students at the Airport Center East residence hall to drive him to the hospital, he died on the way.

Memorial services were held on October 22 at the Asbury Methodist Church in Warwick. Brown was the son of Mrs. Annie Dolores Brown.

Adjustment in University Mission

by Darius Broadnax
Production Editor

A diverse group of students, faculty and administration was established to develop a new mission statement and statement of purposes, which was approved July 14 by the board of trustees of JWU. The new mission statement, as stated in the August 1993 report on the self-study of Johnson & Wales University, "empowers its diverse student body to succeed in today's dynamic world by integrating general education, professional skills, and career-focused education."

To this end, the University employs its faculty, services, curriculum, and facilities to equip students with the conceptual and practical tools required to become contributing members of society and to achieve success in employment fields with high growth potential."

The new mission statement meets the needs of the University and its students by providing quality career education and adding general studies to give students a better rounded education. The purpose of the mission statement is to guide the board of trustees and administration in the decision making process, according to the self-study. This will allow the community to realize that the school is about diversity. To accomplish this end, JWU provides resources, faculty and the utilities for the individual student to succeed in the real world.

Use Your Health Insurance

by Darius Broadnax
Production Editor

Students need some type of health coverage as accidents and sickness arise.

The health insurance plan at Johnson & Wales University is issued by Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company. A claim form must be filled out to get the bill paid. Coverage lasts from Sept. 1 to Aug. 31 of the next year. New rules have allowed for evening, graduate, and international students to obtain insurance.

The insurance is separated into two parts: accident and medical. Paying the general fee allows all students to obtain the accident portion of the plan. The accident portion covers $200 then reverts to another plan. The medical portion of the plan is optional, depending on whether or not the student has comparable insurance. Coverage provides $20 for an office visit, $25 for prescription reimbursement, and $75 for lab visit. Acquiring the medical portion of the plan allows students to receive reduced rates and obtain prescriptions (if in stock) from the Providence Medical Center.

The Health Services office serves residents and commuters free of charge. All accidents must be reported to the Health Services office. The two locations are at the Student Center, first floor and Xavier Residence Hall, lower level.

A doctor is on campus from 9:30-11:30 a.m. at the Student Center on Tuesdays and Thursdays and at Xavier on Mondays and Wednesdays.
Pulling the community together

In the aftermath of James M. Brown Jr.’s death, the University community is forced to cope with a tragedy that hit close to home. His death was an unforeseen accident, that left many people emotionally distraught. Death is never an easy issue to come to grips with, the fact that James was a fellow student and had a long life ahead of him made it even more unfortunate. We would like to take this opportunity to express our condolences to and our support for the family and friends of James.

The University needs to take the time to pull together in order to help the students who are feeling the grief. There are students, staff and teachers on campus who are willing to assist you in handling your emotional problems. Take advantage of this and ask for their help.

We would like to recognize James in our thoughts and ask that the University community take a moment of silence in his honor.

Quote of the Week

A good man is always a beginner.

- Martial

Who are your friends?

Are they really?

Friendship is understanding and communication between individuals. Chums share the highs and lows of life without judgment. They listen intently, without interruption.

Camaraderie is also knowing when to tell the truth. The true test is when the truth is the hardest and most painful thing to convey to your friend. It is difficult to share a thought that causes a loved one pain. However, a true friend owns your concern and trusts in the comment’s meaning.

Friendship is also trust. Trust incorporates the sharing and truth—it harbors a safe environment.

Friendship is love; perhaps, the greatest love of all. Love in a friendship is all encompassing. It encompasses more, dada, siblings, peers, co-workers, and some of those people you run around with.

If you sit down and search yourself with honesty, I would bet almost every single person can count their friends on one hand. The individual who has earned two real friends is far better off than the person followed by an entourage.

Do you think that you deserve everything that has happened to you? Do you expect to be given praise you’ve received? Do you believe that you have earned it? Which would you rather?

In order for anything in my life to have meaning, I need to believe that I have earned it. That is my idea of success both personally and professionally. I cannot be happy with my success, if I believe I am getting it because that is the way it is expected to be. There are some that want absolute success, no matter what it costs others.

The basic Judeo-Christian belief is “Do unto others as you would have done unto you.” This ensures that people behave in a humane way toward each other. If this moral holds true, then why do people continue to intentionally hurt each other and then have the audacity to expect the respect of their peers? They still feel that they deserve the same consideration and rewards as others who do believe in basic morals and do have a higher sense of integrity.

One also needs to consider the current “work ethic” existing in America. Many people believe that they deserve everything, whether they have worked for it or not. The current trend of Americans is to be lazy. Expectations run high of how life should be. Many believe that they have a “right” to success. If more work is needed for these achievements, some cry prejudice. They have the notion that supression has occurred; therefore, they should be compensated for it. They shout, “We have a right to success!” They continue to expect the same success and respect that their parents have gotten but in exchange for less work. Is this realistic? No, not really.

I believe this is where the cliché, “you get what you deserve,” comes into play. If you expect honors, you might receive them; and if you do, what do you mean? When honors are earned, the satisfaction will outweigh the process by which they are achieved. Hard work is the only substitute for hard work. There is no moral way to achieve success without your own personal influence and work. Amoral people have no problem achieving their idea of success, because they have nothing to base their lives on. Letters

Are you disgruntled, or are you pleased with something the university community is doing? Write a letter to the editor.

Letters to the editor must be typed, double spaced, and signed with a phone number. Their content will be published in whole or in part at the discretion of The Campus Herald Editorial Board. All letters must be received by 4 p.m. on the Monday before the upcoming issue you wish publication. Opinions expressed in this newspaper are not necessarily those of the University or student body.

Preliminary outline offered

Dear Editor:

Today, the visiting team of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges completed its four-day visit to Johnson & Wales University. Over 100 interviews were conducted by the 11 members of the team, in group and individual settings with students, faculty, administration, and members of the Board of Trustees.

Dr. William Young, the Chair of the team, spoke for his colleagues in thanking Johnson & Wales for its hospitality and, in particular, noted the high level of preparation and readiness displayed by the Self-study Committee.

His remarks today afforded us a preliminary outline of the written report which will be compiled by the team. The next step in the process includes visits to our campuses in Massachusetts, Virginia, South Carolina, Florida, and Sweden; the observations recorded there will be in the team's report.

The written report will take the form of a recommendation to the New England Regional Commission which will meet in April 1994 to consider Johnson & Wales' application for accreditation.

The preliminary outline was an in-depth review of the University and its adherence to the 11 standards of the commission. The outline was positive in its tone, highlighting the accomplishments of the University and identifying strengths, suggestions, recommendations, and concerns. Although the preliminary outline at this point is confidential and the final report will be in the form of a recommendation to the commission, we are optimistic that the efforts of Johnson & Wales over many years will be recognized as meeting the standards of the commission.

May I thank all of the hundreds of students, faculty, staff, and trustees that participated in the self-study and the team visit? And, in particular, my thanks to the tireless members of the Self-study Committee. Well done!

John Yeno, President

ACLU's Mission

Dear Editor:

I am writing to inform the student body of Johnson & Wales of an organization that is working to become a Johnson & Wales Chapter of the Rhode Island Affiliate of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The ACLU is a national organization interested in preserving the rights Americans have under the Constitution. This includes the freedom of speech, assembly, to choose, religion, and to do what you want with evil persecution. The organization also is involved in unfair labor practices and almost any type of discrimination based on race, gender, handicap, sexual preference, age, and beliefs.

The ACLU has a reputation for being a radical organization that believes in absolute anarchy. This is just not true. We are defenders of the Constitution who believe everyone has the rights to the liberties entitled them under the Constitution.

The ACLU has worked on issues such as Roe v. Wade, Civil Rights, school desegregation, and so forth.

Our mission at Johnson & Wales is to inform the public and student body of various issues and make sure that the students of Johnson & Wales' rights are not infringed upon.

We would like you to become involved in a new campus organization. As soon as we receive full recognition, we will be the 64th chapter in the nation on a college campus. We will also become the second in Rhode Island and the first in many years. For more information, contact Jason at 3773.

Transportation & parking still a problem

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter, presumably on behalf of all the commuting students attending Johnson & Wales University.

Why does the university turn a blind eye and a deaf ear on those of us who are at the mercy of the City of Providence's $10.00 extortion scheme? Have any plans been considered to address the needs of commuting students? (I'll spell it out...P.A.R.K.I.N.G.)

The current arrangement is for us to park at Harborside Campus and "blue bus" our way downtown. I applaud the university for the provided shuttle service, it is unquestionably good. Unfortunately, many of us "square pegs" will not fit into this "round hole" solution.

Any student journeying from points north of Providence would simply have to brave the perils and anguish of the junctures of the major interstate highways, pass by the school (which is the ultimate destination), park at the culinary campus, catch the next bus to the downtown campus; then reverse the whole process for the ride home (or to work, which is more often the case). All in the name of convenient parking...and for a mere $10 per school year for a parking sticker. Not too bad of an arrangement if one has ample time to get to and from classes. But quite an inconvenient situation if one falls in disfavor with the scheduling gods and ends up with the schedule from hell such as periods 1.5 & 8.

The alternative? Take your chances in the hunting grounds for an open space to rent for two hours at a time (an arrangement in which one has to relocate every hour and a half because the parking enforcement gets a little over zealous at times...especially when it's inclement weather); or pay to park in a lot somewhere in town...anywhere from $3 to $15 per day...which averages about $500 per person per school year; or become a member of the staff because they are provided a parking lot.

The downtown facilities are good and getting better; now let's consider accessibility. The new commons at McNulty is very pretty. A student/faculty parking garage would have been prettier.

Phil Sigma Kappa raised $11,000

Dear Editor:

Phil Sigma Kappa fraternity, Johnson & Wales Chapter, recently conducted a fundraiser for the benefit of the American Cancer Society. This event was the third annual Crane Lift on Friday, Oct 8 from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. The fraternity surpassed it's goal and raised $11,000. This money will fund the research, patient services, and education programs of the American Cancer Society.

Media personalities Paul and Al from WHJY radio performed their show live from the top of a crane in Kennedy Plaza. For every $1000 donated, the crane was lifted 10 feet higher into the air. The fraternity brothers collected money from all over downtown Providence as well as took pledges from WHJY's call-in pledge phone number.

On behalf of the American Cancer Society, we are grateful to the members of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity for their organization, effort, and generosity.

Honorary degree nominations welcome
Members of the Johnson & Wales University community are invited to identify deserving individuals to receive honorary degrees at the 1994 Commencement in Providence, Charleston and Norfolk.
On behalf of the Board of Trustees Nominating Committee, University President John A. Yena is inviting students, faculty and staff to recommend prominent men and women who would bring honor and recognition to the University.
"Honorary degree recipients," Dr. Yena explained, "are traditionally men and women who are prominent in business, industry, education, or government, and have made or can make major contributions to the University by sharing their talents and or personal or corporate resources with us."
Last year's honorees included Jurgen Bartels, President of the Carlson Hospitality Group, and Michael Mondavi, of the Mondavi Vineyards. Other past recipients include heads of leading corporations such as PepsiCo and the DuPont, leading hoteliers, chefs and business entrepreneurs from around the world.
Well-known government officials, such as governors, mayors and senators, have also been honored in the past, as well as the Today show's Willard Scott.
Recommendations must be made on an official form which is available from the Advancement Office, second floor, Plantations Hall; from Student Activities; or from the various Dean's offices. Completed forms must be returned to the Advancement office by Friday, October 29th, at 4:30 p.m.

their conduct. The only question that they need to ask themselves is: Do I need respect in order to be happy? It is hard to feel respected if you are immoral and unethical.

Still, other people believe that they can influence what happens to them. I can agree with this to a point. I believe that events basically occur in your life for two reasons: first, is that you make them happen through your decisions. Secondly, things take place when you’re not paying attention. The unknown comes to visit.

Ultimately, you have the final word on your decisions. These decisions will guide you through the unknown. When you have gained control of your life through positive decisions, the unknown is less of a problem. You learn to handle situations with more finesse and knowledge. This allows you to strive for achievements, not merely believe they exist only for you to receive.

When you see things for what they are, you see the whole. Viewing pieces is like looking at a ripped picture, you only see half. By visualizing the whole picture, you learn to earn your success.

Along with the mission statement, a statement of purposes was adopted to act as a guide to the mission to make sure that the university could evaluate its progress. The establishments of a school of academic departments, the reviewing and revision of the current curriculum, and the building of a new library are a few examples of the mission statement and its purpose at work.

The mission statement will be reviewed on a regular basis by the mission committee to better meet the needs of the community in the future.

...Reflection

In the end, you are simply left with the things you have learned. Gary Wenk, a University of Arizona psychology professor, researched caffeine as a professor at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Wenk said caffeine acts as a general stimulant to the central nervous system raising heart and blood pressure rates. The substance also drains sodium from the body, he said.

"It seems to enhance mental function," Wenk said. He added that caffeine is less addicting than nicotine or other drugs and will positively affect only people who are physically or mentally fatigued. Those well rested will only experience anxiety, he said. And Wenk said that the body does build up a tolerance to caffeine—an event that could create "nasty headaches" for about three days if a regular drinker does not ingest caffeine.

Students stopping caffeinated beverages in the student union had their own reasons why caffeine is part of their lives. "I drink tea because of its flavor," said Sonya Wodepatov. She said she drank a beverage containing caffeine about four times per day. Christopher Johnson, an English Literature senior, has a different reason for drinking coffee.

"It’s something that is relatively cheap that might earn you a bachelor’s degree," Johnson said, adding that it helps him wake up in the morning and study for long periods of time. "I just couldn’t be doing college if I didn’t have coffee," Johnson said.

Caffeine: A student's breakfast of champions
by Laura Ingalls
College Press service
The libation that courses through the veins of college students, pushing them toward academic achievement. And sometimes, as a popular button proclaims, it is your only friend. It’s caffeine, and students devour it in mass quantities. Maria Celio, a Union Square Cafe employee, said the University of Arizona Student Union restaurant sells about 15 pounds of coffee and 2,400 ounces of cola each day. And that’s just the beginning. Add to that a daily total of about 10 hot espresso, 15 gallons of cold espresso and six gallons of tea. Becky Snyder, another Union Square employee, said a female this summer drank three 32-ounce cups of coffee at each meal each day. She said it was not unusual for a regular cafe customer to drink three to four cups of some kind of coffee per day. Some students said they use caffeine to replace eating and sleeping.

"When you only get two hours of sleep each night you really need it," said Colleen Graham, an English and French senior. She said caffeine became a regimen in her life when she had early classes her freshman year. "It was Mountain Dew and M&Ms for breakfast that would keep me going," Graham said.

Jennifer Webb, an English and German senior, said she recently had the choice of using her last three quarters for coffee or bus fare. "I walked home," she said, adding that the caffeine gave her enough energy to make the trek. Both said they have no plans to stop drinking caffeinated beverages, and Graham added that she gets headaches when she doesn’t have coffee regularly. Gary Wenk, a University of Arizona psychology professor, researched caffeine as a professor at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Wenk said caffeine acts as a general stimulant to the central nervous system raising heart and blood pressure rates. The substance also drains sodium from the body, he said.

"It seems to enhance mental function," Wenk said. He added that caffeine is less addicting than nicotine or other drugs and will positively affect only people who are physically or mentally fatigued. A Bright Future for AS220

by Angela Livingston & Elizabeth A. Salm

Relocating from Richmond Street to Empire Street, AS220 is currently under construction to provide an alternative and unrestricted outlet for creative individuals. With the support from the community, local artists are looking forward to what Umberto Creca, artistic director and founder of AS220, has in store for their new building. Eight years ago, AS220 set out to create a performance space and art gallery managed but completely uncensored for local, original work. This one purpose has been the success behind AS220 and has established itself as the most unique entertainment scene downtown.

The new building embodies 22,000 square feet that includes Groundworks Dance Company and Perishable Theater. Along with the gallery and performance space, it will house 12 live-in artists on the third floor and provide 11 studios for renting.

AS220 hosts many fund-raisers, such as the third annual "Coming Out Day" Celebration/Stravaganza held in October. It's composed of a multi-media expression of what it's like to be gay to benefit the local lesbian & gay community.

AS220 is more than a club. It grabs hold of you and never lets go. As a live-in artist and part of the staff at AS220, Tom Paulhus said he finds it has offered him an alternative living situation. It has inspired him to produce as an artist and performer.

Wayne Wohlschlegel describes AS220 as a supportive atmosphere that provides a resource for people to find themselves. "It brings out the artist in people," he said.

AS220 exists without definition. It has represented all states of culture imaginable for eight years. It means so many things to so many people, and the love for this unique "adult clubhouse" extends to all walks of life.

Within the walls of AS220, people express all that makes them an individual, and it is in truth that the people themselves bring AS220 alive.

A Day in the Life of....

It's rather interesting that I have been given the nickname, "The Mosher." I have a little secret to tell everyone... I have not moshed since April of '92. Shocking isn't it? But guess what? I broke my year and a half dry spell. Two Mondays ago, at Cypress Hill, I was in the pit doing the monster stomp. I'm still wearing the bruises to prove it.

The only thing is when Air Supply or any song in that matter comes on now, I'm ready to form a little mosh pit right then and there! I guess you could say that I am a little mosh crazy now.

For all you King's X fans out there, I have some wicked cool news. King's X has gone back in the studio and is recording a new album to be released in early '94.

The Mosh Pit by Joery L. Wood

Hold on that's not all! Panters is about to release a new record some time next month. This is going to be an awesome year for concerts!

We have Rage Against the Machine coming to Culinary, White Zombie at Rockwell, Colour and Robert Cray at Lupoo's, Therapy? is coming back to Babyhead, and Vince Neil to the Strand.

What more can you ask for? Can I get a scream?? (Just warming you up for what's coming) The Cypress Hill concert on October 11 was one of the best shows I've seen this year. The four acts: Cypress Hill, House of Pain, Funkdoobe DST, and Hooligan were pumping some serious beats and lyrics.

You know it had to be good; I didn't mosh at Faith No More and Helmet or Pantera, but I did at Cypress Hill. They even took to a little crowd surfing with my help. This concert was the wildest thing since the mosh pit around the bonfire in Lord of the Rings.

Do I hear a "Y'all"? How about a "Heshaw"? It's time to discuss the shindig I went to at Lupoo's on October 15. The Jackyl/Mind Bomb show was a bigger hoedown than the time I won the "Carolina Hollerin' contest".

The opening band, Mind Bomb, was more intense than they were last month at Club Babyhead. They worked the crowd into a good frenzy before letting Jackyl take over the reins. Mind Bomb is a must see band.

I've seen them twice in the last month; and if they were here every week, I'd go see them every time. The band is the master of industrial metal. Sorry Ministry fans, but Mind Bomb is better.

Well, about the time the dust started to settle, somethin' was a rustlin' out back. We all knew that it was time for the boys of Atlanta to come on and deliver some good 'ole, down-home fun.

They were absolutely flawless in their hour-and-a-half set. Jackyl showed everyone at Lupoo's that southern rock will never die. We had everything: the Atlanta two-step, barroom brawls, chain saws, and even a few shotgun blasts to stir things up even more.

This may best be described as the "bar room scene" in western movies. I know this may be rather wild, but it all added to the persona of Jackyl.

Well, I had a good dose of different styles of music this week, loved every bit of it, and I think that all of you would have enjoyed it just as much as I did.

I hope to see more of you at the upcoming shows; and remember, King's X rules.

Question of the Week

Do you expect to have an encounter with the "Great Pumpkin" this week and why?

Megan Conway: “I think the Great Pumpkin is coming to deliver beverages to all the people that are in the dorms.”

Professor Brian Terry: “Because this is an up-and-coming university, we’re becoming quite the attraction, and I think that we will have a lot of visiting dignitaries...so why not the Great Pumpkin?”

Eugene Lawler: “No, I don’t think the Great Pumpkin is coming to JWU because the Great Pumpkin is indicative of cartoons, and JWU represents real life and reality.”

Why not the Great Pumpkin?
After all, just because the Great Pumpkin didn’t show up for Lucy and Linus doesn’t mean that he won’t appear for us. If the JWU community believes, then the Great Pumpkin might not let us down. That’s what the underlying message of the Peanut’s Great Pumpkin story was about believing.

We can all remember when we were younger and untouched by adult realism. We would believe anything just because we wanted to. It didn’t matter how ridiculous it sounded, we were ready to accept it.

I think every age group could use some form of this faith and child like hope. In a society that can sometimes be so serious and other times be so confused, it helps to have some beliefs and faiths to get us through.

So grab a pillow and blanket, and I’ll see you in the pumpkin patch. Watch out for the visit from the Great Pumpkin!

Hockey season opens

By Jason Bach
Sports Editor

The Johnson & Wales hockey team kicked off the season Oct. 16 at Southern Connecticut University with a 6-5 loss.

Andrew DeGroseille, a freshman from Auburn, Maine, led the Griffins with three goals and an assist. Freshman Joe Bonfiglio, and senior Greg Breiner, added a goal each.

The Griffins, who are part of the Northeast Collegiate Hockey Association (NECHA) Division II and the American Collegiate Hockey Association (ACHA), have their home opener Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. at Schneider Arena against last season's regular season champions Franklin Pierce College.

This year's team has a new home at Schneider Arena on the campus of Providence College. This is the first facility the team has had in the city of Providence, making it easier for JWU students to come to the home games.

"My expectations for this team are the expectations they have set for themselves," said Head Coach Mike Pasquarella. "Do well in the classroom—team G.P.A. of 2.75, win NECHA Regional Championship, and be invited to ACHA National Championship; get students involved—average attendance of 750, raise $5000 for the Atletic Department, and have fun playing the game."

The hockey regular season runs until Feb. 20 with the NECHA Division II playoffs from Feb. 25-27 and the ACHA National Division II Championships in early to mid March. Locations are yet to be determined.

Women Griffins defeat LaSell

By Jason Bach
Sports Editor

The Johnson & Wales women's soccer team defeated LaSell College 5-0 at home Oct. 16, to extend their overall record to 4-2-2 with a divisional record of 3-0.

Heather Olson scored the first Griffin goal, followed by Marcie Hawley and two from Jamie Roalson to take a 4-0 lead going into the half. Kristen Lowd went on to score in the second half to extend the lead to 5-0, with goalie Nicole Candido credited with the shutout.

Soccer playoffs will take place Oct. 30 and 31 at Massachusetts Bay Community College in Wellesley, Mass. "The team seems to have a really good attitude," said Head Coach Greg Miller, "and I think they have the potential to even make it to the finals."

Men's soccer ties Coast Guard

By Jason Bach
Sports Editor

The Johnson & Wales men's soccer team tied the Coast Guard Academy 1-1 in New London, Conn., despite missing 10 players. The win, accompanied with a 2-0 win over Bunker Hill Community College Oct. 19, put their regular season record at 11-1-2.

The only Griffin goal came in the first half from freshman, Ron Richards, with the assist from Petar Karazaz. The Coast Guard Academy tied the game with an early second half goal, which was let stand despite the Coast Guard having two players offside.

"We conducted ourselves in a very professional manner today," said Coach Gregg Miller after the game, "despite our injury weaknesses and some dubious decisions that affected the outcome of the game. I am very pleased with the team performances and discipline at this stage of the season."

The men's team, which is currently 4-0 in conference play, will participate in playoffs Oct. 30 and 31 at Massachusetts Bay Community College in Wellesley, Mass.
