Wyclef, De La Soul, and Black Eyed Peas
Invasion Johnson & Wales

Songs of Old & New along with Intense Freestyles allow Students to Vibe before Midterms

Tuesday, October 3rd Johnson & Wales University received some mainstream entertainment as MTV and their Campus Invasion Tour invaded us. Johnson & Wales was the start of this year's tour, which included Wyclef Jean, De La Soul, and Black Eyed Peas. MTV has begun this tour in hopes to bring artist to college campuses and all the entertainment that accompanies them. The unique campus of J & W was transformed into a musical showcase that was enjoyable for most.

Festivities began early afternoon when MTV tents shot up in Gaede Commons transforming the grounds into a virtual music playground for students as well as the public. There were activities, giveaways, and a chance to meet Wyclef in person before his performance later in the evening. The main event that everybody was waiting for kicked off around 7pm, when the doors opened to Lupó's. Students gathered in front of the doors trying to catch the performers when they arrived at Lupó's. Wyclef's tour bus sat outside displaying a photo of him on the side of the bus. Many asked who would perform first, what songs they would do, and would there be any special guest.

Black Eyed Peas started the line-up. Arriving at about 8:30 to find the BPE's already in their set and tearing up the stage with dancing and wicked rhymes, really moving the crowd. This crowd was the first surprise, finding it to be at least 85% Caucasian students. The majority of the excited crowd seemed to be underclassmen, particularly individuals who found themselves questioning bits played by De La Soul. The show was sold out but how well did the ticket buyers actually know music by the artists. There was a presence of frustration among Poshnoues and Trugouy when they had run through about three or four tracks and three quarters of the audience was still ice, with no movement. The only memorable piece of their set was Mase's Introduction on the tables. One fan of the Black Eyed Peas said, "Black Eyed Peas is a up and coming Tribe Called Quest." Their beats are most impressive setting the crowd on a lyrical high.

Black Eyed Peas were followed by Wyclef Jean or it Willie Johnson. Students do not have to know his music because three quarters of his material are radio classics that create a new vibe. He knows how to part though rolling a un&just set long enough that the excitement was weary after the second Marley cover 'I Shot The Sheriff'. Wyclef wanted to keep the party going for as long as he could and he had the energy.

Wildcat Pride Showcased at Family & Homecoming Weekend

University Doubles Attendance

Family may mean various things to different people but on Saturday, October 14, students of Johnson & Wales University shared the same exact feelings of happiness. As parents travelled from far and near, the office of Student Activities at J & W was preparing for what was one of the largest turns out in Family Weekend history, with over 1,700 family members present. Events ranged from water and trolley tours to trips to Foxwoods Casino, Newport Mansions and Sakonnet Vineyard. There was fun for most families that attended.

The start of Family Weekend was showcased by the anticipated parade. The Master of Ceremonies, John Parente, made the crowd excited to see what was coming around the corner on each occasion. The parade consisted of 25 entries broken down into 17 floats and 8 performances. Parents and students stoodארך long side the road to see what creations students and staff came up with. Judges used creativity, theme, and performance to judge the floats and performances.

There was a general theme of Harvest and Halloween. Many of the floats were visually appealing to parents and students. For the first time in parade history the parents also had a say in who was number one, they placed their votes in the Parents Pick booths located on the main parade strip. The judges tallied in their votes and these were the results:

Flots 1st Place: Renaissance Hall
2nd Place: T & F
3rd Place: South Hall

Performances
1st Place: Latin American Club
2nd Place: Dominican Student Association
3rd Place: Student Government Association

Johnson & Wales crowned their Homecoming King and Queen. It was a tough battle for the two individuals but they came out on top. Congratulations to Georgio Phillips - King and Victoria Berthelot - Queen. These two students sat proudly on the band stand with the judges of the parade.

As the day winded down and everyone came back to a level head people began to make their way under the big tent, where they were serving a harvest lunch and live entertainment. During the night parents and student entered bingo and the Wildcat Dance of Providence tour. Over the next years of your stay at Johnson & Wales make the effort to witness the enthusiasm and pride put into J & W's Family & Homecoming Weekend.

Zilo.com is a radical new 3D virtual college community. It is designed to be a "Role Playing Game," where people can have interactive entertainment. Zilo tours college and university campuses bringing extreme games on-campus for students. During Family & Homecoming Weekend, Zilo was on hand for a fun-filled activity for all.

The competition wall was the activity of the day. The winner, the one who had the fastest time, won a trip to California to take part in the championships. The students were segmented into girls and guys, then eliminated based on their time. Students were competitive and ready to give it their all for the Call trip. As students were eliminated, suspense grew. Who will win the trip? Each student was given two chances, one on each side of the wall. The different sides were a fast course and a slow course. The times were tallied up and it was now down to two students. The atmosphere around the wall was thick with interest about who the winner will be.

The winner of the trip to Call was a student from the Culinary program here at J & W. Congratulations. The student will now head to California, which ironically is also hometown. Zilo and the Extreme Team College Games were brought to the campus by the office of Student Activities. The student body thanks Zilo for coming to the campus and allowing us to part take in excitement of Zilo.com

...And the Winner of Lyricist Lounge Is?

There also was the entertaining lyricist lounge show that took place on the stage. Many of the eager MC's wanted to make their mark on the invasion tour. MC's passed the mic' getting the audience involved in the battle of lyrical essence. Wyctel maintained the ability to come out on top no matter which softly put up a fight. Some of the contestants really had no shame in displaying their freestyle image. After the show Wyctel still displayed his energy and the love of a good show by running outside and talking to certain individuals. He signed autographs on various things that people asked him to sign, one individual gave up her bus pass for Jean to sign. Overall the show was a good experience for students and the school. The entropy tampering activities have come a long way since the days of old. The one thing that was crucial about the invasion, is the day of the week it was on. Having such a event as this on a Tuesday made classes rough the next day. For those who attended is was quite enjoyable.

Is Singing in the Rain Still Safe for Rhode Islanders?

Mercury Found in Rhode Island Rain

Ryan Finlay

A National Wildlife Federation (NWF) report reveals that the rain falling over Rhode Island and New England contains levels of mercury that far exceed what the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) considers "safe" for people, aquatic life, and wildlife in surface waters. Serious human health implications of eating fish contaminated with mercury from rain prompted the NWF to bring the Clean Rain Campaign to Rhode Island. This campaign is designed to alert Americans to the dangers of mercury and to hopefully reduce the risk to residents in New England. Mercury is a potent toxic metal, when ingested in even the tiniest amounts has negative effects on the human nervous system. Illnesses associated with the consumption of mercury are brain, lung, and kidney damage. It also may result in death. For more information, or to help out with the Clean the Rain campaign, contact Linda Shotwell, National Wildlife Federation at 703-790.4083, Almea Tavares, Clean Water Action, 401-578-4572.

Johnson & Wales University - Denver Campus
Building for Today, Tommorrow, and the Future

Courtesy of Johnson & Wales Public Relations

Hot on the heels of the opening of the Denver Campus, Johnson & Wales has announced that it will purchase an additional 13 acres of its campus from the University of Denver(DU). Johnson & Wales is attempting to create stronger presence in the west with the purchase of this land. Many of the Colorado employees at the University are enthusiastic about this proposed plan. “Denver Campus President Mark Burke said. This purchase will enable us to grow and add additional programs in the very near future.”

President Burke predicts enrollment to increase dramatically in the next five years, reaching 1,800 by 2006. The Denver Campus has already received more than 20,000 inquiries for next year’s freshman class. The Denver Campus opened with 325 students, 245 concentrating in culinary arts and 80 studying business. Among the majors from which students can currently choose are: associate degree programs in culinary arts, business administration and marketing; and bachelor’s degree programs in marketing, international business and management. The University also offers an advanced standing program in which industry experience is counted toward the completion of culinary arts degree.

Plans call for degree programs in hospitality to be added in Fall 2001. Among those slated are: associate degree programs in hotel management and food and beverage management; and bachelor’s degree programs in hotel management, food service management, financial services management and sports, event and entertainment management.

Johnson & Wales is currently in the midst of a phased renovation of buildings on the original 13 acres. The two buildings in which students are attending classes have undergone dramatic changes. The Academic and Business Center has been completely gutted and now contains four classrooms, faculty offices, conference rooms and an e-mail center for students. Unique to the building is an outside classroom, which is carpeted, allowing instructors to take advantage of Denver’s beautiful autumn and spring seasons.

The hub of the Denver Campus culinary program will be the former Hutchinson Hall, a renovated building with square footage that now extends to 25,000. The centerpiece of the building is its dining room, which has been designed as a "restaurant," providing students with a realistic setting in which they can train. It also includes four kitchens, one bake shop, a mixology lab, a computer lab, two classrooms, an area for faculty and a storeroom.

The Johnson & Wales Rotaract club is an international community service organization consisting of J & W students and alumni. These activities are formulated and executed by the members but often are assisted by the Providence Rotary.

I was born in the Congo. I walked to the Fertile Crescent and built the sphinx.

I designed a pyramid so tough that a star that only glows every one hundred years falls into the center giving divine perfect light. I am baad.

I sat on the throne drinking nectar with Allah. I got hot and sent an ice age to Europe to cool my thirst.

My oldest daughter Nefertiti

The tears from my birth pains created the Nile.

I am a beautiful woman.

I gazed on the forest and burned out the Sahara Desert.

With a packet of goat’s meat and a change of clothes I crossed it in two hours. I am a gazelle so swift so swift you can’t catch me.

For a Birthday present when he was three I gave my son Hannibal an elephant.

He gave me Rome for Mother’s Day. My strength flows over on.

My son Noah built new ark and I stood proudly at the helm as we sailed on a soft summer day I turned myself into myself and was Jesus.

Men intone my loving name

All praises all praises I am the one who would save

I sowed diamonds in my backyard

My bowls deliver uranium

The flings from my fingernails are semi-precious jewels

On a trip North I caught a cold and blew my nose.

Giving oil to the Arab World I am so hip even my errors are correct.

I sailed west to reach East and had

To round off the Earth as I went

The hair from my head thinned and Gold was laid across three continents

I am so perfect, so divine, so external, so surreal I cannot be comprehended except by my permission

I mean I can fly

Like a bird in the sky...

Chelo’s Waterfront

It was about 7 p.m. on October 1st when we ventured to Chelo’s Waterfront, located in East Greenwich. When we arrived, we briefly waited to approach the host. A hostess greeted us and sat us almost immediately. As we waited for our server we looked over the menu. When he arrived he promptly asked for our drink orders and we placed an order for potato skins as our appetizer. He then brought out over a place setting for Chelo’s, it was fine until he threw down the silverware in front of her. Not impressed... now we all know that this is no five star establishment, but I think we would all agree that silverware is not to be tossed or thrown in front of a guest. Well, this point we knew our drinks were being refilled and our potato skins were arriving to our table. So when he finally asked us if we were ready to order, with strike two under his belt we proceeded ordering our entrees, as we enjoyed our potato skins, a must try item on their menu. Chelo’s offers a variety of options utilizing menu items in more than one way... Let us explain.

Chelo ordered the Lite Chicken dinner, which includes a grilled chicken breast in a lite herb sauce, salad and a baked potato. This can also be ordered as a sandwich with fries. This can be done with a handful of their menu items. Dave ordered the Monterey Chicken, a grilled chicken breast with BBQ sauce, bacon and jack cheese also served with a baked potato. While Brian ordered the Plank Steak, which is simply a grilled Delmonico steak with a baked potato. After our very simple but satisfying dinner, we decided to tackle dessert. Chelo’s offers the usual variety of desserts, as well as many seasonal pies. Brian ended his meal with a traditional and huge piece of carrot cake. It was delicious. Chelo kept it simple with a slice of cheesecake, topped with strawberry sauce, also mouth watering. Dave was treated to one of the largest strawberry shortcakes we’ve ever seen.

Wow... the only word that came to our minds.

The prices range from $2.95-$5.60 for starters, $4.95-$12.45 for entrees and sandwiches, and $1.38-$2.69 for single serving desserts. They also sell whole pies and cakes starting at $10.29. Not bad prices for the average college student. Other food for thought... they make their own breads on-site and offer wait staff meals for the health conscious.

We then ventured into the restrooms, both clean and smelling nice. Although, we began to feel a little rushed when we noticed that the wait was obviously cleaning to close for the night. The sound of a vacuum and the dashing of various employees throughout the dining room gave us the impression it was time to go home. The customer should never feel rushed, there are more subtle ways of doing side work.

In a rush, the food was good, but if you’re a stickler for service, you may want to see what our future articles bring to the plate. Until next time. Happy Dining! Next stop Bertucci’s.

Featuring: Charming Billy

By: Alice McDermott

Have you ever found out that a huge secret that could have changed your life forever was kept from you? In a small bar, friends and family gathered to celebrate the life of Billy Lynch. People laughed, people cried, people remembered the good and the bad. When it was all said and done, a secret was revealed that just might have altered the lives of all the people Billy knew. Falling in love is one of the most wonderful and emotional times in a person’s life. For Billy it happened the summer he spent in Long Island. Billy and his best friend Dennis were spending the summer repairing the cottage that Dennis’ stepfather owned. One day on the beach changed Billy’s life. Her name was Eva, from Ireland. Billy took one look at her and fell in love. For the rest of her time in the country, Billy, Dennis and Eva’s cousin Mary were together. Then Eva had to go home to her family. They vowed to be together again and let nothing stand between them. Billy decided to save all the money he could and send for Eva and her family, and that is just what he did. All the plans were made and Billy was the happiest he had ever been, but the boat never sailed.

One man knew what happened but could not bring himself to tell his best friend the truth. This is an emotional story of a man, his life, his drinking, his wife, his best friend, and the girl who captured his heart and never let go.

Alice McDermott does a wonderful job at pulling the heartstrings of one’s life. The book is beautifully written from cover to cover, everything flows into the next and you start to feel the events the take place in Billy’s life. She does a few of the other books she has written: At Weddings and Wakes, A Bigamists Daughter, and That Night.

"We are Family!"
Family weekend prompts reflection.

Ryan Ford
Editor

The dictionary definition of family is persons living in one house, a group of individuals comprising of immediate kin from parents to children. Does this definition sum up all of the emotions, feelings and events we encounter with our families? All family structures are set up differently based on age, culture and area they reside. Thus, what family means directly to you. Would you fit the definition suite your feelings on family?

Family can consist of friends, pets, peers or educators. Anyone who evokes love and compassion from you could be considered your extended family. They could understand you in the same magnitude as your parents. When you are home under the supervision of parents you want to break free and become independent. Now that we are free or independent we relish the thought of going back and having the "comfort zone" again. That is actually what it was living under your parents roof. A lot of the teen worries were handled or addressed by parents or loved ones. Thinking of all the hassles, fight arguments, and pain you endure through the teen years, was it worth it? At the time, you feel you won't make it, but then you realize that you can prevail over all the nonsense and become someone. Family never allows you to take huge steps backward, they educate you when you are young giving you morals to live by, stick with you when you have been naughty to install the beliefs of the family, and then open their hands and let you fly high. To use a warm-blooded animal to identify the love and caring a family would have would be birds. Birds never leave a baby unattended. They keep their babies covered until it is time for them to become a full fledged bird. They train the babies through a series of demonstrations and aerial drops. Finally, the young bird learns to fly and takes a trip south (or in this case to Providence, RI).

After this family and homecoming weekend, we all have the thought of family in our minds and hearts. Think of particular events, trips, and gatherings you've had with your family. Do they make you smile, cry or laugh? Take time out to call, write, e-mail parents and other family members to tell them thank you for sending me to school, being there or plainly tell them you love them! This may bring you slightly closer to than you already are. Family will always back you up on the decisions you make or made, maybe not right away but family love prevails in the end.

Have you been feeling down and just need something to bring up your spirits, or do you just want to watch a funny and hilarious movie? Then, Meet The Parents is a winner. The star of the movie is Robert DeNiro (the future father-in-law) and his co-star is Ben Stiller (the future son-in-law). The story line was very well written. It started off with an upbeat tone and the characters seem to be having a blast in their worlds.

Ben Stiller (Greg) and Teri Polo (Pam) were going out as a couple for some months, they were in love and he felt that it was the right time to pop the question. But somehow he found out that he should ask for her father's approval first. If you think that you had a bad Friday the 13th or that your days have been going downhill then you should definitely see this movie. You will thank God for all your days, because they will be tremendous days compared to the weekend that Ben Stiller spent with his father-in-law to be, who has OCD (obsessive compulsive disorder), a bunch of mishaps occur. His days went from bad to worse to oh-my-god-somebody-shoot-me-days.

Some of us wonder what are parents thinking when they name their children? Ben Stiller's last name in the movie was Focker, and yes, it is said the same way as the F word. You think that's messed up, wait till you find out his first name. At first everyone called him Greg, but when you watch the movie you'll find out what his name really was. You will be horrified and you will crack up. The movie will have you rolling on the floor with laughter. I recommend this movie for anyone having a serious case of I-need-some-laughter in-my-life is it. Will definitely be cooked.

"True love exists all" is a yes in this movie. For those of us, who are just whooping for our Mr. Right and Charming, you will be wowed by the kind of love that Greg Focker for his future wife. The movie is the type that will be appreciated by all kinds of audiences e.g. chick flics, guys flics, and I'm sure you'll see with my man/girl audience.

"One of the best comedies of the year"  Excellent

J & W Campus Fashions:
Blisterly Cold but Extremely Fashionable

Melanie Anton
Fashion Writer

The winter season is rapidly approaching. Before long, the infamous New England weather will be setting in and we'll all be reaching into our closets for sweaters and jackets. For those students here at JWU, who aren't familiar with the winter weather here in Rhode Island, it can get pretty chilly. This article is to help preview the fashions that will be popular this winter.

It's unquestionable that sweaters will never go out of style. This year, look for a variety of winter wear including sweaters and sweatshirts at cheaper prices. At Abercrombie & Fitch, hooded sweatshirts, reversible vests and waistcoats are sure to keep you warm this winter. As for jackets, leather is definitely the current trend for both men and women. For women all colors are hot, especially non-traditional ones such as purple, red and electric blue. Leather pants may complete the ensemble for those people bold enough to wear them. Men tend to stay with the traditional black or brown leather jacket. Bubble jackets also may be popular this year. Gap and Guess are friendly examples of this jacket. Whatever you decide to wear this winter, layers will definitely be beneficial. A turtleneck with a sweater layered over it and a jacket to complete the outfit will keep you warm while revealing your style at the same time.

Play the Music...

NBA Creates Friction Between Player and Entertainer
Allen Iverson Changes Lyrics for Divid Stern, NBA Commissioner.

Seventy-Sixers prime star and recent media spotlight, Allen Iverson, must change his lyrics because of ethical, racial and violent nature of music. Iverson in previous interviews made mention that he would not change any of his lyrics, stating that those lyrics are his music and not his viewpoints in life. The NBA has criticized the soon to be release rap album of Iverson for the violent and offensive nature that is portrayed by the leagues fans. Iverson and other rap and hip-hop artist express that the lyrics said in Iverson’s album are regularly mentioned or talked about in many rap/hip-hop albums. With Iverson’ radio released song “40 Bars”, he raps about women, blacks and gays. One lyric from this released song is, “Man enough to pull a gun, be man enough to squeeze it.” Following these lyrics at the end is a gun being shot. The lyrics spat out by Iverson are not meant to be hear by individuals who under the age of 18, which draws controversy because fans of Iverson may be younger teens and children who would be then be influenced by this music. The issue has drawn interest by many in the rap industry as well as the NBA. Players aren’t comment- ing on the situation but just waiting for the album to be released and for the season to begin.

Iverson being the star player that he is is receiving negative attention because he is being portrayed as a rap who makes discriminating music. Should his professional career in the NBA be incorporated into his musical one? Many have strong feelings that he is role model to many children, so he shouldn’t create music that is so harsh towards culture, races and genders.

We all must wait to hear the exact words song by Iverson himself and then make the deci- sion on whether his music interferes with his NBA career and fans.

The amount of Latinos in this freshman class is extraordinary. If you have not yet noticed the presence of the Latino community at Johnson & Wales, you will be surprised. In an effort to acknowledge and display the pride that we feel, the Dominican Student Association, Latino Student League, Sigma Lambda Beta, Sigma Lambda Gamma, and Sigma Lambda Upsilon sorority and the Latin American Student Alliance have united their efforts to form the Latino Alliance. This alliance will serve as the connection point between all five organizations to educate the Johnson & Wales community in the diversity of our culture. We have to put together a series of programs for you to see and learn about our culture and heritage.

Keep in mind that you do not have to be Latino to be part of any of these organizations, be open-minded. Come learn about others, as you teach them about you...leadership comes with diversity!

Hispanics Are Not a Race
The True Meaning of Race in America

Rogier Hernandez
New Jersey Institute of Technology

The old labels of black and white can't begin to capture the subtleties of blood and identity," says Newsweek magazine in its special report on "Redefining Race in America." Unfortunately, the editors bungled it when it came to the "subtleties of Hispanicity." The report did not attempt to straighten out the very American misconceptions about a sense of optimism and virility. Rather, it is an ongoing process, a race of our own, distinct and apart from black, white, Asian, and Indian.

The mistake began in the lead story, which opened with a brief profile of a Peruvian-American teenager who Newsweek noted had "studied Latins, whites and Indians." As if this could possibly be also a white or Indian. A little later Newsweek reported that at Nettel's, an basics of the writers who are "Indians, other Asians and Hispanic whites brought below the 50 percent limit. It is not likely that some of those Hispanic whites be too white?

Only in a chart did the magazine acknowledge that Hispanics might be "of any race. The inconsistency speaks volumes about the news media's confusion about Hispanics. The unspoken assumption, in the news media in this country in general, is that Hispanics belong to a race other than black, white, Indian or Asian. That is just the plain wrong. There is no such thing as a Hispanic race. The undisputed fact - understood just about everywhere in the world except the United States - is that Hispanic individuals may be of any race or combination of races.

Cesar Chavez was mestizo, the mixed descendant of Spaniards and the indigenous people of Mexico - two distinct races. Since most Mexicans share similar racial origins, and most Hispanics' in the United States are indeed mestizo, with the brown-skinned "look" that most Americans associate with being Latin. But then the subtleties that Newsweek ignore come into play. The fact that most Mexican names do not mean all are. There are black. There are white Mexicans - new President Vicente Fox is a white Mexican of Spanish ancestry, like just about every president of Mexico has ever had (surely a sign of racial discrimination in Mexico, and a reminder that Mexicans themselves are aware of racial distinctiveness inside the country). There are Hispanics of unmixed indigenous blood - "Indios," so put it in different terms.

What Hispanic's have in common is language and some cultural affinities. If Americans can readily grasp the notion that people born in say, Massachusetts can be racially black or white, why is it so difficult to understand that the same thing applies to people born in, say, Guatemala? All of this is evident in the popular culture of the parallel histories of Anglo America and Latin America.

Both regions were originally populated by what are termed "Indians," whether Sioux in the North or Incas in the south. After 1492, whites from Europe began to arrive and the descendants of Englishmen are still in "Anglo" America, while the descendants of Spaniards and Portuguese are still in "Latin" America. Then those Anglos and Latins settled blacks from Africa as slaves, which is why Brazil, Spanish-speaking parts of the Caribbean and the United States all have a black popula-

We’ll Feed Your Need To Succeed!

We’ll Feed Your Need To Succeed!
ARIES * (March 21 - April 19)
Unexpected developments might have you rethinking your current plans or indulging by doing something you want to do. Bring friends together. You enjoy yourself wherever you are. A loved one appreciates your extra caring this week. Where your friends are is this week. Avoid strong actions until Wednesday, when the moon pops into your sign and energies ebb.

TAURUS * (April 20 - May 20)
You are unusually content with others. Let another make plans. Give in to spontaneity, and romantic feelings will build. If single, someone you meet today could become very special. Trust another to express his needs. Tonight: Out and about. This week: "All’s well that ends well" becomes your theme this week. Remember that through the rough moments.

GEMINI * (May 21 - June 20)
You might not be sure what to do with the unexpected. Someone who might be quite different has an interesting way of energizing you. Unique. Important in a relationship. Tonight: Take off. This week: Accept responsibility by Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday and Thursday, zoom in and make your wishes known.

CANCER * (June 21 - July 22)
A loved one or a dear friend devises what is suitable. You could be pleasantly surprised by his choice. Allow more feelings to come out. Caring breeds in the present atmosphere of spontaneity. Tonight: Go along with another’s wishes. This week: Read between the lines, and you can gain professionally. Demonstrate your sound leadership capacities from Wednesday on.

LEO * (July 23 - Aug. 22)
Others have strong ideas about what they want. You don’t need to do much, but don’t be surprised when you have to regroup and change your plans more than once. Be loving with a family member whose nervous could be raw. Tonight: Just go along for the ride. This week: Deal with others one-on-one. Take time to digest different points of view.

VIRGO * (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
Get a head start on a project if you can. Consider signing up for a course in yoga or another subject. Others feel welcomed by you as you set the red carpet. Your caring speaks. Tonight: Go with the flow. This week: Opportunities clarify the cards this week. Let them play out. You watch.

LIBRA * (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Laugh at another’s unpredictability and enjoy him for what he offers. You might opt for a major expenditure or purchase that adds a lot to the moment and, potentially, to your life. You can’t seem to avoid a risk. Why fight it? Tonight: Play the night away. This week: Dig into work and don’t get into other people’s stuff. On Wednesday, you’re more in the mood for relaxation.

SCORPIO * (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
You clearly adore another. You feel as if a loved one might be a bit off-the-wall. You also might wonder how much you contribute to this odd behavior. Lie back and observe rather than playing up to this person. Do something special for an older relative. Tonight: You don’t have to go far. This week: Your mind draws you into never-never land. By Wednesday, you’re forced to funnel this energy into work.

SAGITTARIUS * (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Others surprise you with their words and actions. Do not take another’s behavior personally. Distance yourself and get a perspective. Get feedback from a trusted friend who has insight. Let your sense of humor change your role. Tonight: At a favorite spot. This week: Though you try not to let other people interfere with your work, it just might. Maybe you’d better deal with the issue.

CAPRICORN * (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Your finances could see peaks and valleys if you don’t check your spending. You might covet items that you feel are important. Only you can make the judgement call. A friend means more to you than you realize. Tonight: Order in or go out. This week: Make calls and reach out for others. Don’t let a lack of response affect you. Nail what you want. Tonight: Just be yourself. This week: Expenses pile up, but you know how to handle this problem. Schedule important actions from Wednesday on.

PISCES * (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20)
Sit back and watch. You could be amused by your new quirky PC skills Office ’97’s jive. Maintain a distance. Your caring means a lot to another. Express what you are and what you want. Let another know how you feel. Start discussing the future.

TUESDAY: At a good time. Tonight: A good movie this week. Your personality jumps over barriers. You’re busy making money this week.

The Campus Herald - Variety 10-18-00
TIPS TO CURB THE ROAD RAGE

Make Commuting Less Stressful

Jennifer Makiel

It happens every day. You are driving to school, work, wherever you are going, and suddenly, out of nowhere, comes a car, which swerves in front of you, causing you to slam on your brakes. Next thing you know, they are trying to get to where they came from, a bullying signal in sight. Even though I am 20, I only got my driver's license this past summer. I never understood what it meant to have "road rage," or to get so angry, that you just want to do anything possible to get in front of that car that just cut you off so rudely. Now, after driving for two short months, I completely understand.

A survey taken by The Automobile Association suggests that as many as 1,200 deaths occur each year due to actions described above. That is quite scary, considering the fact that these events occur at least once a day to most drivers. "Road rage" can be as small as a dirty look to something as drastic as physical violence. One thing that everyone should keep in mind is the fact that no matter how bad the driver seems to be, there is a good chance that they are not as bad as they seem. Drivers often have a lot going on at any given moment when we (already have)! The Automobile Association has another tip on how to deal with others suffering from road rage:

- Exercise extra caution on main roads where the majority of road rage incidents take place.

If you're being hassled by a driver, don't react. Avoid making eye contact, which is often interpreted as confrontational. If you feel threatened (as tempting as it may be) by accelerating, braking or swerving. Not only will this provoke another driver, but it may cause you to lose control of your own car.

If you're being chased and harassed, head for a well-lit public place with a phone, and call 911. Stop at a fire or police station if you see one, but keep in mind that officers may not be able to assist you.

When stopping for a traffic light, leave enough space between your car and the car in front of you to pull out if you face an emergency. Be alert to other drivers who may leave their cars and approach you.

The Automobile Association also released these tips to curb your own road rage:

- Leave plenty of time to reach your destination so you are not rushed.
- Avoid road rage: "If you are feeling angry or upset, take a deep breath and stay away from the car. It is important to stay calm and take a break if you feel you need one."

- Be patient: "Exercise extra caution on main roads where the majority of road rage incidents take place."

Although it may seem that drivers are just trying to make your life miserable, they aren't, and by dealing with this rationality, and not exerting any road rage, you are making the driving world a safer place for all of us.

College Students - Travel Smart

Find the Cheapest Transportation for Students!

Tired of not having enough money to travel during holidays or to take vacations? As college students you can attest to the fact that traveling has become too expensive, even if it wasn't to students before. Now that we have responsibilities, we have to be cautious about how we do things and where our money goes. If you want to be able to travel on holidays or on the weekends doing it the cheapest way is the best way. Part of being responsible is being wise. Knowing how to use the little money you have to get more and how to shop around for the cheapest deals or points is key. The only way to this is to research everyone knows what resources are available but why not use it?

The implied way to do this is to log on to the internet and find sites that offer students good deals on airline's and for ground travel. In many cases going online to make reservations is the cheapest way. Travel agencies charge too much, people don't realize that they charge for commissions and many other things. Students think that they only pay for their tickets, not knowing they are paying for it and then some. One site that offers cheaper rates is www.Bestfare.com. Bestfare.com has what they call "Noose you Loose" fares. If you think you might just miss a great chance of traveling cheaper and in style. This site has a travel agent that tells us everything we need to know about traveling cheaper. Bestfare.com offers you a generous array of free travel bargains, from information on how to save 90 percent of airline tickets, strategies to get cheap tickets and how to watch for travel scams. They also offer weekly airline net specials. Airlines like Continental, US Airways, Jet Blue, Delta, offer airline discounts for students who are credit card holders. To get these bargain reservations have to be made on these airline websites. Bestfare.com only offers the information on how to get their sites.

Ground travel is the major way that most students travel for the simple fact that it's much cheaper than airlines; even so don't hesitate to look for the cheapest price. Greyhound and Bonanza bus line, as well the Rhode Island Public Transportation Authority (RIPTA) offer discounts that are too good to miss out on. Greyhound for instance, which goes almost to every state, offers discounts and bargains that students are looking for. Like the students discount card, which is offered to students on-line. The only thing students have to do is sign up for the card and bring it when they are going to purchase a ticket to get the discount. There is a massive advantage in making reservations days before your departure date. Greyhound is offering students the chance to pay half the full price if they are traveling with a friend. Say, for instance, your destination is from Rhode Island to New York City. The price for a round trip fare is $41 if you're traveling alone. But if you are with a friend the price will be some where around $19.00, which is better off than paying the full price. If you miss this deal, take into consideration going to this site www.greyhound.com and other major bus line companies. You may also visit a nearby station to get further information on discounted travel and special advantages they will have for next holidays.

Traveling cheap doesn't make you look less ambitious; as a matter of fact it makes you look wiser. You could be sitting on a bus, Amtrak train, or sitting on a plane beside a person going to the same destination, who ends up paying much more for that ticket, because they didn't take time to search for the cheapest way. Even though these offers appear good and seem like you can cut your travel expenses in a major way, be aware that there have been on-line services that have been for fraud, because they give out unauthorized information. These are the things that bestfare.com warns you about. Whether you're going by air, land, or water look for the cheapest deal. You can get to the airplane website or bestfare.com page. As students, you should take advantage of these opportunities to travel for less. The reservations time in so you can get special offers.
The final games of an unbeatable season are upon the Johnson & Wales women's soccer team. With two league games to play, the Wildcats are 7-0 in league play, and 13-1-1 overall. It has added up to a lot of excitement, but now, for the first time, lots of expectations.

The Wildcats head into a winner-take-all match with Western New England College on Wednesday knowing that a win will give them the top seed in next week's Great Northeast Athletic Conference playoffs. But WNEC, the defending GNAC champs, is also 7-0 in league play, and although the Golden Bears' record is not as gaudy as J & W's, Western New England will play the battle of the unbeaten on its home turf in Springfield.

Nonetheless, Johnson & Wales has proven it can hold its own with anyone. Now ranked 16th in New England and Division III teams, J & W's only loss came back on September 6th, when nationally-ranked Framingham State beat the Cats, 2-1, in overtime. The other minor blemish on the Wildcat schedule is a scoreless tie with powerful Salem State three weeks ago.

Now, remember, we're talking about a Johnson & Wales team that is only three seasons removed from a 3-14 year. And as every opponent they've played will tell you, those lean years of soccer are about as prehistoric as T-Rex.

Witness J & W's 4-0 victory over UMass-Dartmouth last week. There would be absolutely no way Johnson & Wales would have even put a powerhouse like UMD on its schedule in 1997. The Corsairs have a great program, and play with some pretty hefty company in the Little East Conference. Now, it's just another game, and, last week, UMD was just another victim.

Patrice Merendina, the leading scorer in the GNAC, registered her 16th and 17th goals of the season, and added an assist as the 'Cats scored twice in each half to beat the Corsairs.

Senior Lauren Beneck, who has seen the fortunes of J & W soccer change from night to day, celebrated her final regular-season game with a goal and an assist. Beneck opened the scoring with just under 13 minutes gone when she took a Mashi Perry cross and bent it home.

Perry then made it 2-0 about nine minutes later, when Merendina lofted a perfect chip to Perry from about 15 yards from the goal.

After weathering a couple of UMD breakaways, the 'Cats started to nail down their school-record 13th win when Carla Walton's 35-yard blast hit the crossbar and fell right to Merendina, who poached the rebound home tomahawk-style 3-0.

Ten minutes later, Beneck assisted on Merendina's second goal at 72:38.

Freshman Jess Obist registered her seventh shutout and launched an attack to Holly Bodwell's year-old single-season record of nine. Obist stopped eight shots.

The GNAC quarterfinals will be held on Tuesday, October 24th, with the Wildcats hosting one of the four matches at Pierce Stadium. The 'Cats have also clinched home field advantage for the semifinals, which are set for Thursday, October 26. The finals are set for Saturday, October 28th.

The J & W cross country season is funny, in a way. The Wildcats slowly prepare for their conference championship by participating in some of the toughest races in southern New England. Then they show up at the GNAC championship meet and turn it on, big time.

This year is no exception. As they head to Southern Vermont's Invitational, the prelude to the GNACs, coaches Holie Walton and Thom Spinn say their Wildcats are gearing up for the big one.

In their last three outings, several of the Wildcats have set personal bests, and in some cases, the figures are astounding.

"Lasta Johnson's time has gone down by seven minutes from the first meet," said Walton. "Meghan Maas, Monisa Fisher, Vanessa Soughley, and a few of the others, are taking their times down each week." Rachel Carroll, another newcomer, has been around the 27 minute mark since the start of the season.

Rose Raymond was named GNAC Cross Country Rookie of the Week, after she ran a 22-minute race at Roger Williams last week. Senior Talitha Hallock's 22:20 at UMass-Dartmouth has been her best of the season, and while she's nursing a minor injury, Walton says Hallock is one of the major reasons why the Wildcats will compete in the GNACs.

Over on the men's side, Bob Jackman's 29:27 at CCRI (6,000 meters) was a personal best, and his 10th-place finish helped the 'Cats to a fifth-place finish. One week later, Larry Moger was J & W's top finisher in a time of 19:34 at the Williams Invitational.

Jackman led the 'Cats at UMass-Dartmouth's five-mile, averaging 5:50 and completing the course in 17th place in a time of 29:13.

Patrick Purcell was next for the 'Cats, finishing 47th in a time of 31:19.

"The big meets help because our teams get to see the others and get pushed by the older schools. By the time we get to the GNAC race, and if we're healthy, we'll be OK," said Walton.

The team to beat at the conference championship is Norwich. "The 'Cadets, bolstered by the participation of their military students, took the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th spots in beating Southern Vermont just a couple of weeks ago.

The GNAC race is set for Saturday, October 28th, at Rivier College in Nashua.

Golf Team Possesses Talent to Go All the Way

Last fall, the Johnson & Wales golf team went into the Great Northeast Athletic Conference championships undefeated, but lost to Western New England in the title match. This season, the Wildcats know they have the talent to make it a very different ending to the campaign.

In their first two matches of the year, J & W edged a very good Roger Williams team by a stroke, 339-340, then beat Daniel Webster, 332-400. At 2-0, and with the bulk of the season coming up in the next couple of weeks, the Wildcats are loading up.

Euyong Kim fired a brilliant 75 to win medal honors against Roger Williams, then came up with a 79 to lead the Wildcats against Daniel Webster.

Andrew Lantz, all-GNAC selection last year, shot an 88, and Justin McShane fired an 88, and David Calabro came up with a 90 to give the Wildcats just enough to beat Roger Williams.

Later 90 against Daniel Webster was the team's fourth scorer. Paco Morales came up with a fine 79 at the Wildcats' new home, Fenner Hills Country Club, under rainy, new conditions. Dave Horta shot an 85.

The Wildcats play Rhode Island College, Roger Williams, and Becker College on the 20th, then face Emerson, Mass., College of Pharmacy, and Gordon College on the 27th. The 'Cats play Western New England, Suffolk, Emerson, and Daniel Webster for the GNAC crown on the 28th.
Newcomers and Vets' Keep 'Cats a Step ahead in the GNAC

Riding the play of a talented newcomer and four veterans, Johnson & Wales' women's tennis team maintains a one-game lead over Simmons College as the Wildcats look for a second consecutive Great Northeast Athletic Conference regular-season title.

The 'Cats have now reeled off four straight victories, including three conference wins, since they lost a 5-4 heartbreaker to In-state rival Roger Williams. In their last three matches, though, the Wildcats have beaten the opposition by a combined total of 21-1. And J & W is serving note (no pun intended) that they want not only the regular-season title, but the GNAC championship come October 28th.

Playing at fifth singles, Emily Herr is putting together yet another sensational year. The sophomore won her seventh singles match in a row, and raised her record to 5-1 with victories over Western New England, a match the Wildcats won, 8-1. Herr has the GNAC's third-best overall winning percentage at .923.

Teammate Erin Papapipilakas is not far behind. The 'Cats fourth-singles player, Papapipilakas picked up two points in each of J & W's last two conference wins, and raised her singles record to 6-1 and her doubles mark to 7-1.

The newcomer is Tori Spence, who was thrust into the number-one singles spot despite the fact that she's just a freshman. Spence has responded to Dr. Allan Freedman's challenge, and has ripped off six wins in an unbeaten singles season, including a victory over Suffolk's Liz Ringler, who knocked off the number-one player in the GNAC last year, Lara Cecereilli of Emmanuel.

Spence is also 5-1 in doubles play, and her 11-1 mark ranks her fifth in the GNAC.

But there's more. Freedman's two senlors, Kristina Dunn and Nicole Manginelli, are at 5-4 and 10-2 respectively. Dunn, like Papapipilakas, picked up four wins in two conference matches last week.

And, at number-six singles, Amanda Ryburn picked up GNAC Rookie of the Week honors last week when she won both of her singles matches in straight sets.

The Wildcats, who play Simmons on Saturday for the regular-season crown, head to Boston on the 28th for the GNAC championships. Last season, just one point separated the 'Cats from eventual champion St. Joseph College. Stay tuned.
