The Old North Church

This ancient building, still standing on Salem Street in the North End, is Boston's oldest church edifice and one may still take worship at its simple services. From its steeple shone the lanterns displayed on the night of April 18, 1775 at the famous order of Paul Revere, "One if by land and two if by sea." By these famous words were the people of the countryside warned of the approach of the British—who as a result of Revere's warning were met by the Minute Men at Lexington and Concord.
