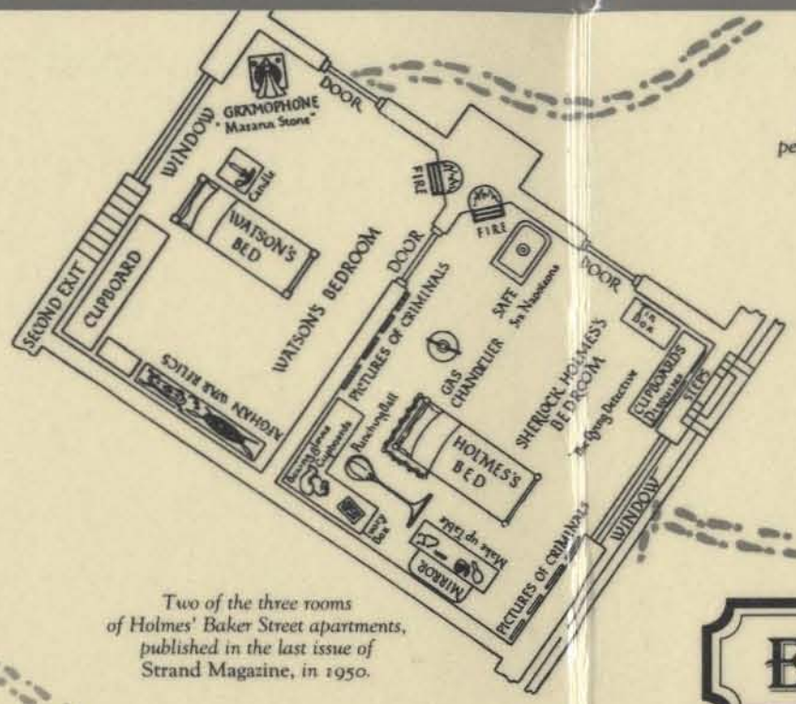
RESTAURANT AND BAR

We welcome you to "The Scotland Yard," where friends gather to raise a glass and share a hearty meal.



Two of the three rooms of Holmes' Baker Street apartments, published in the last issue of Strand Magazine, in 1950.

An illustration, dating from 1890, by Sidney Paget, one of the first, and perhaps greatest of Holmes' illustrators.

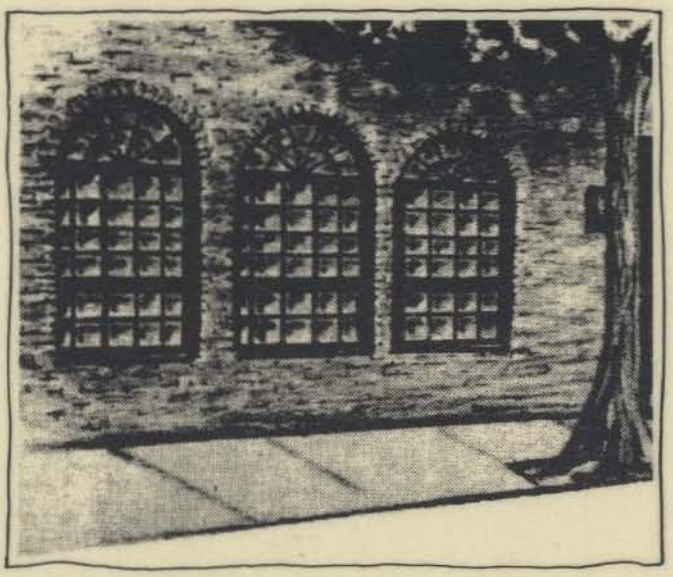
Times change, my dear Watson ...

... or so I venture to deduce from certain evidence brought to my notice."

The building that houses The Scotland Yard was built along with the Arcada Theatre in 1926 by one of St. Charles' most generous benefactors.

The rooms that make up The Scotland Yard were used from 1926 to 1933 as the offices of the Chronicle Publishing Company.

When Chronicle Publishing moved out in 1933, Mr. Norris decided to turn our section of the building into a small, beautifully designed supper club that offered the top nightclub entertainers direct from Chicago and New York. The result was the Club Arcada.



During the reign of the Club Arcada, there was a second floor tea room and dining room where the heads of established St. Charles businesses had their own tables reserved.

The Club continued to flourish through the 30's, 40's and 50's, but was closed in 1967.

After standing vacant for over 12 years, Scotland Yard, as you now see it, was born.

The unique blending of antiques and modern decor gives our restaurant a congenial and fun atmosphere.
