The Acanthus Fountain is a custom cast adaptation of old and new patterns. The stems are highlighted with Acanthus and Anthemion ornamentation of classical Greek Design. The bowls feature an Egg and Tongue motif.

Most of the patterns used to cast the fountain predate the Civil War. They were used by the J. W. Fiske Ironworks of New York from the 1850s to the early 1920s. Fiske did not survive a general waning of public interest in cast iron ornamentation in the 1920s and the patterns were subsequently moved to Alabama for storage and occasional castings.

The Acanthus Fountain is cast in iron in several hundred individual sections. Each section has been meticulously ground, fitted, welded and/or bolted into place. It has a total weight of approximately 4000 pounds with tiers of 8', 6'4" and 3'4". The overall height of the fountain is 10'5".
