Diamond Jim Brady’s, as it was originally known, opened almost 40 years ago at Seven Mile & Greenfield. It became one of Detroit’s most popular restaurants with a reputation for superb burgers, homemade soups, legendary chili, and generous drinks.

For decades, Brady’s continued to enjoy success as a popular neighborhood eatery, as well as a favorite for business executives and salesmen from all over the metropolitan Detroit area.

Continuing the grand tradition, Brady’s relocated to the suburbs in February of 1990. Opening first on Southfield Road in Beverly Hills, then in Farmington Hills in the Holiday Inn.

Today, Brady’s Tavern is proud to maintain the great traditions that made us so popular for so many years. You’ll still enjoy great burgers, award-winning chili, over-sized salads, and of course, generous drinks.

It’s nice to know you can always count on some things!
